Note.—On an examination of this Account, it will be found that in some instances the quantity of Wheat entered for Home Consumption in a particular week, computed at the rate of Duty then in operation, will not produce a sum corresponding precisely with the amount of Duty which is stated to have been received in that week; the disagreement in such cases is ascribable to the postponement of entries, the abatement of Duty on quantities damaged, and other causes connected with the practical regulations of the Custom House.

* Previously to 1833, the Monthly Returns of the Importation and Consumption of Foreign and Colonial Corn were collected together, in annual periods, commencing on 1st January, and terminating on 31st December. From 1833, downwards, they have been made up, like the other Accounts of this department, in periods commencing on 6th January in each year, and terminating on 5th January in the year succeeding. This circumstance is necessary to be noted, inasmuch as it explains why the aggregate Imports and Consumption of the several years, from 1828 to 1832 inclusive, as exhibited in the present Statement, will be found to differ to a small extent from the quantities shown in other Accounts, which have been compiled, not, as in this case, from special Monthly Returns of the Corn Trade, but from the ordinary records of the general commerce of the country.

† Note.—The Returns for 1841 will be liable to alteration (although not to any considerable extent) when the Accounts of that Year shall have been finally adjusted.

CORN-LADEN SHIPS.

AN ACCOUNT of the Number of Days occupied in performing Voyages from the several Ports of the United States to the Port of Liverpool, by all Vessels laden with Flour or Corn, in the Year 1841; specifying the Average Number of Days on the Voyage from each Port.

GRAIN AND FLOUR.

RETURN to an ORDER of the Honourable The House of Commons, dated 7 March 1842;—for,

A RETURN of ALLOWANCES granted on GRAIN and FLOUR for Wastage on Entry for Home Consumption or Re-exportation from Bond:

A Similar RETURN of ALLOWANCES on other BONDED ARTICLES.

Ordered, by The House of Commons, to be Printed, 17 March 1842.

A RETURN of ALLOWANCES granted on GRAIN and FLOUR for Wastage on Entry for Home Consumption or Re-exportation from Bond.

BY Treasury Letter, dated 23d December 1837, and Board's Minute, 8th March 1838, it is directed that a per-centage shall be allowed on grain when imported in a heated state; and upon inquiry we find that the average allowance has been about two per cent., which is deducted from the foot of the account at the time of landing, as an increase of measurable quantity produced by heat.

Grain and flour bonded in warehouses of special security, and entered for exportation, the duty on the deficiency, when delivered from the warehouse, is not charged; but if entered for home consumption, the duty is paid upon the landed quantity.

Grain and flour bonded in warehouses not of special security, the duty is paid upon the landed quantity when imported either for home consumption or exportation.

ALLOWANCES granted on other BONDED ARTICLES.

BY the 18th section of the Warehousing Act, the full duties are paid upon the landing account, without any abatement on account of any deficiencies, except otherwise provided for; viz.

All goods bonded in warehouses of special security, when entered for exportation, the duty is not charged upon the deficiencies.

The following goods, when entered for home consumption in warehouses of special security, are allowed an abatement of duty on account of the deficiencies (unless in cases of suspicion):—

By 3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 57, s. 19,
Tobacco, Sugar, and Spirits; and

By 4 & 5 Will. 4, c. 89, s. 20,
Wine, Currants, Raisins, Figs, Hams, Cheese, and Mahogany, are charged with duty upon the quantities ascertained at the time the same are actually delivered from the warehouse.

British Plantation Rum is delivered at the actual gauge when taken out of the bonded warehouses, either for home consumption or exportation, whether the bonded warehouses are of special security or otherwise.

ALLOWANCES of Deficiencies on GOODS delivered from BONDED WAREHOUSES not of Special Security, at the Legal Quays; viz.

Treasury Order, 6th, and Board's Minute, 12th September 1834:

THE whole of the deficiencies on the following goods: Hams, Cheese, Currants, Raisins, and Figs, when entered for home consumption.

Treasury Letter, 8th, and Board's Minute, 15th January 1839:

THE following ALLOWANCES are directed to be made on FOREIGN SPIRITS taken out of Bond for Home Consumption.

For any time not exceeding 6 months	-	1 gallon.
— exceeding 6 and not exceeding 18 months	-	3 —

— exceeding 2 years, and not exceeding 2½ years	-	6 —
— exceeding 2½ years, and not exceeding 3 years	-	7 —

3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 57, s. 40:

THE following ALLOWANCES are directed to be made on Wine, Spirits, Coffee, Cocoa Nuts, and Pepper, deposited in Warehouses not of special security, upon the Exportation thereof.

The above are the average prices for the quarter.

1st Quarter.

The severe winter has not injured the crops on the ground.

With the exception of Wheat, the arrivals from the interior, of every description of corn, have been considerable.

Stock on hand, small.

	Qrs.
Wheat - - - -	600
Rye - - - -	14,000
Barley - - -	40,000
Oats - - -	4,000

The greatest arrivals, however, consisted of Rye Meal, on account of the Russian Government, and amounting to upwards of 125,000 cwts.

2d Quarter.

Stock on hand much reduced.

The crops wear a very promising appearance.

The above are the average prices for the quarter.

3d Quarter.

Although the crops have been got in in good order, yet Wheat and Rye are shorter by one-fourth than last year, as respects quantity. The quality, however, is fine.

Barley and Oats are fine crops, both as regards quality and quantity.

Stocks on hand insignificant.

At present, trade dull; no demand from foreign countries.

4th Quarter.

Prices are likely to remain steady.

Stock on hand:

	Qrs.
Wheat - - - -	200
Rye - - -	7,000
Barley - - -	6,000
Oats - - - -	600

REMARKS.

1st Quarter.

On the 24th March (port being now free from ice) some purchases of Wheat were made, for loading ships long lying chartered.

Freights accepted at 6*s.* 6*d.* per quarter, for England, by ships on protest, in consequence of breach of former charters.

27,439 qrs. of Wheat were exported during March.

Stocks on hand in Town:

Wheat { Soft - 105,000 Qrs.
Hard - 20,000 „
Rye and Barley None.
Oats - - 15,000 „

2d Quarter.

The charges for purchasing and putting Wheat on board amount to about 2*s.* 4*d.* per qr. Coals being in great demand in the Mediterranean, freights appear likely to be permanently affected with regard to English vessels in the Black Sea; for ships, after discharging their outward cargoes, frequently run here, satisfied by obtaining a return cargo at very moderate rates.

The lengthened drought gives rise to serious fears for the crops; those within 20 to 100 miles of this port are considered as entirely lost.

In Poland it is expected that the crops of autumn-sown grain will be abundant, but the spring-sown scanty. In Bessarabia, the crops are very deficient. In the districts near the Asoph Sea, generally good. In the central provinces, the crops of Rye promise relief from great distress, in consequence of the failure last year.

Stock on hand (30 June) in Town:

Wheat { Soft - 135,000 Qrs.
Hard - 10,000 „
Oats - - 10,000 „

Exported to England during this Quarter: Wheat, 20,671 qrs.

Odessa,
30 June 1841.

James Yeames,
Consul-general.

3d Quarter.

Stock on hand:
About 250,000 qrs. Soft Wheat.

During this quarter 181,188 qrs. have been exported, of which, 27,493 qrs. were shipped for England.

The crops on the Steppe are unsatisfactory, consequently the Hard Wheat is deficient in quantity and quality; but this Wheat is in little demand, the sole inquiries in the market being for England, where the Soft Wheat is preferred.

The crops of Soft Wheat in the Governments of Kief and Podolia are reported to be abundant, but inferior in quality, particularly as regards weight, to the crops of last year.

The charges on the purchase and shipment of Wheat are about 2*s.* 4*d.* per qr.

4th Quarter.

Stock on hand:

Wheat { Soft - 220,000 Qrs.
Hard - 30,000 „
Oats - - 15,000 „

The want of British shipping is severely felt by purchasers, whose operations are thereby restricted.

Freight:
To England, 11*s.* 6*d.* per qr.

The Corn market dull, in consequence of the want of shipping, and as the winter may set in from day to day, the merchants fear to have their goods long on hand.

During this quarter, 190,047 qrs. of Soft Wheat have been exported, of which, 45,611 qrs. were destined for England.

Odessa,
31 December 1841.

James Yeames,
Consul-general.

1st and 2d Quarters.

In Denmark, the exportation of corn is allowed free of duty; and the importation is permitted at a duty not exceeding 2*s.* 3*d.* sterling, per quarter, for Wheat.

Freights to England, 4*s.* 6*d.* per Imperial quarter to the East Coast of England.

The reports from England, respecting the prospects of the harvest, being less favourable than some weeks back, the tendency of the Danish Corn-market is towards a rise.

The Stock of Wheat in this country is but very limited at the present moment. The new crops wear a promising appearance.

Consul.

3d Quarter.

The reports from the different parts of the kingdom, respecting the late harvest, not having as yet been received, it is hardly possible to form a correct judgment as to its actual result.

From the information, however, received, there is reason to believe, that, notwithstanding the wet summer, the crops of Barley and Oats have yielded plentifully; but those of Wheat seem to have suffered materially from rust. Less Wheat has been sown this year than last. Rye is reported as much below an average crop.

Owing to the demand, from England, prices advanced considerably during this quarter.

Freight to the East Coast of England, 3*s.* 6*d.* sterling per Imperial quarter.

Elsinore,
30 September 1841.

Francis Macgregor,
Consul.

4th Quarter.

The exportation of Corn from Denmark is allowed duty-free, but on importation it is liable to a moderate duty of 2*s.* 3*d.* per quarter for Wheat. Prices are likely to keep up during winter, as, independently of the demand anticipated from England next spring, great apprehensions are entertained in this country about the next winter crops; the weather in the autumn having proved so unfavourable for all farming operations.

Elsinore,
31 December 1841.

Francis Macgregor,
Consul.

REMARKS.

1st Quarter.

Stocks on hand: Wheat, 42,000 qrs.; Rye 18,000 qrs.; other grain, 7,000 qrs.

2d Quarter.

During this Quarter the following shipments have been made:—

To Britain: Wheat, 68,930 qrs.; Rye, 1,610 qrs.; Barley, 20 qrs.; Flour, 4,844 barrels and bags.

To Guernsey and Jersey: Wheat, 1,410 qrs.

To Holland: Wheat, 16,370 qrs.; Barley, 190 qrs.; Flour, 5,249 qrs.

To other countries: Wheat, 2,120 qrs.; Rye, 28,380 qrs.; Barley, 640 qrs.; Flour, 35,413 qrs.

Stocks on hand (for shipping):

		Qrs.
Have been,	Wheat –	130,000
„	Rye –	25,000
„	Barley –	3,000
„	Oats –	1,500

Stocks remaining in warehouse: Wheat, 80,000 qrs.; Rye, 20,000 qrs.; other grain, 7,000 qrs.

Freights: London, 3*s.* 3*d.* to 3*s.* 6*d.* per quarter, Wheat; Liverpool, 4*s.* to 4*s.* 6*d.* ditto; Hull, 3*s.* 3*d.* ditto; Newcastle, 2*s.* 6*d.* to 2*s.* 9*d.* ditto.

Upon the whole there has been a favourable spring; Wheat and Rye, however, suffered during the winter, and they are expected to prove short. During the last fortnight speculation has revived, and large parcels of Wheat have changed hands; the chief supply has been from the neighbourhood. The quantity from the interior of Poland would be considerable, did not the shallows of the Vistula and Bug keep it back; and the want of water in the rivers will probably impede navigation till autumn, and prices are therefore likely to rule high.

Danzig, 30 June 1841.

H. R. Plaw,
Consul.

3d Quarter.

Since the date of the last report (30 June) there have been shipped,—

To Britain: Wheat, 240,200 qrs.; Rye, 1,720 qrs.; Barley, 3,550 qrs.; Oats, 10 qrs.; Flour, 6,513 barrels.

To Guernsey and Jersey: Wheat, 2,500 qrs.

To Holland: Wheat, 13,350 qrs.; Rye, 4,720 qrs.

To other countries: Wheat, 330 qrs.; Rye, 8,630 qrs.; Flour, 5,753 barrels and bags.

The supplies at market, for the same period, have been,—

Wheat, 200,000 qrs.; Rye, 35,000 qrs.; Barley, 6,000 qrs.; Oats, 2,000 qrs.

Stocks remaining in warehouse: Wheat, 30,000 to 40,000 qrs.; Rye, 25,000 qrs.; other grain, 14,000 qrs.

Freights: London, 3*s.* 3*d.* to 5*s.* 3*d.* per quarter, Wheat; Liverpool, 4*s.* to 5*s.* 6*d.*, ditto; Hull, 3*s.* 3*d.* to 5*s.*, ditto; Newcastle, 2*s.* 9*d.* to 4*s.* 6*d.*, ditto.

The general report as to the harvest, which may be considered as now finished, is,—Wheat and Rye very good in quality, but short in quantity; other descriptions of grain, "average crops." In Poland, it is stated that the crops are short, but of good quality.

It is expected that about 4,000 lasts (44,150 qrs.) of Wheat may still arrive before the shipping season closes, part of which will be of this year's growth.

The low water has been, and continues to be, a great cause of detention to craft along the Vistula.

At the present moment, scarcely any thing doing in the corn trade.

Danzig, 30 September 1841.

H. R. Plaw,
Consul.

4th Quarter.

Exported, during this Quarter:

To Britain: Wheat, 21,130 qrs.; Rye, 260 qrs.; Barley, 8,150 qrs.

To Guernsey and Jersey: Wheat, 2,650 qrs.

To Holland: Wheat, 6,050 qrs.

To other countries: Rye, 5,370 qrs.; Barley, 460 qrs.

Stocks on hand at close of shipping season: Wheat, 112,000 qrs.; Rye, 10,800 qrs.; other grain, 20,000 qrs.

Freights: London, 3*s.* 10*d.* to 5*s.* 3*d.* per qr.

The last harvest has proved short for most descriptions of grain. Wheat and Rye are reported to yield at least 1*s.* 3*d.* below an average crop both in this neighbourhood and in Poland.

The stocks in the interior are represented to be large.

The growing crops wear a very promising appearance up to the present time.

Danzig, 31 December 1841.

H. R. Plaw,
Consul.

Formerly the Poles used to supply this market annually, from 100,000 to 200,000 quarters of grain; this year their barges have scarcely brought 4,000 quarters of all sorts. In the course of the next month, however, about 20,000 quarters of Volhynian Wheat may be expected; but this is all that is likely to arrive before harvest. Crops expected to turn out of good quality.

1st Quarter.

During the winter, which has been long and severe, considerable purchases have been made of Wheat, for British account, and of Rye for the Russian Government; and preparations are now in progress to despatch the same to their respective destinations.

Stocks on hand:
Wheat, 44,000 qrs.; Rye, 17,800 qrs.; Barley, 8,200 qrs.; Oats, 7,200 qrs.

The stock in the country is considered to be extensive, therefore the Stettin market can be well supplied for some time to come.

Freight, from 3*s.* to 4*s.* 6*d.* the quarter to the East and West Coasts of Great Britain.

2d Quarter.

During this quarter the weather has, for the most part, been very propitious for the crops; and an early as well as a fine harvest may be expected.

Stock on hand:
Wheat, 131,000 qrs.; Rye, 47,500 qrs.; Barley, 8,000 qrs.; Oats, 18,000 qrs.

Nearly the whole quantity has been exported, Wheat to Great Britain, and Rye to St. Petersburgh; also some Barley and Rye to Norway; so that the present stock on hand is inconsiderable.

Freights on the decline; about 3*s.* per quarter to London.

Stettin, 30 June 1841.

F. H. Petersen,
Vice-Consul.

3d Quarter.

The expectation of a fine crop of corn and grain in Pomerania, expressed in the last quarter's return, has been frustrated, owing to the rainy weather, which set in before and during harvest. The crop in this part is a deficient one, both as to quantity and quality, as regards Wheat, Rye and Barley. Oats are an average crop.

In Silesia, however, the crops of all kinds of corn and grain have been abundant, with the exception of Barley. The quality here is also superior, and large supplies may be expected from that country during the next year.

During this quarter, 114,000 qrs. Wheat, 28,500 qrs. Rye, 18,500 qrs. Barley, and 8,700 qrs., Oats, arrived at Stettin, and the whole quantity, together with that in store, have been exported; viz. the Wheat and Barley to Great Britain, and the Rye to Holland, Norway and Russia.

Stock on hand:
A mere trifle, but supplies are beginning to arrive from the interior and Silesia. Prices fluctuate according to the accounts from Great Britain. Trade has been very brisk this quarter; above 200 British vessels arrived.

Stettin, 30 September 1841.

F. H. Petersen,
Vice-Consul.

4th Quarter.

Owing to the low water in the Oder, the supplies from Silesia could not reach here, notwithstanding the rainy weather, otherwise the stocks on hand would have been considerable; as it is, they are very small.

The following is the amount of each sort of corn that arrived at this place during the year 1841;—

Wheat, 307,000 qrs.; Rye, 123,700, qrs.; Barley, 47,800 qrs.; Oats, 34,600 qrs.

The principal part of the Wheat wasshipped for England.

Freights, to the East Coast of England, from 4*s.* to 5*s.* per quarter for Wheat.

Stettin, 31 December 1841.

F. H. Petersen,
Vice-Consul.

1st Quarter.

The accumulation of all descriptions of grain during the last quarter has been very limited. The price of Wheat is nominal, as the demand for exportation has nearly ceased. Speculators, however, are inclined to purchase, as the accounts from England lead them to expect a demand thither before next harvest. Rye is in great demand for St. Petersburgh, to which place considerable shipments will be made on the re-opening of the navigation. In Barley and Oats but little is transpiring.

Freights continue low: To England: Wheat, 5 s.; Rye, 4 s. 6 d.; Barley, 4 s. 3 d.; Oats, 3 s. 6 d.; per quarter.

Sound Dues, per Quarter: Wheat, 5½ d.; Rye, 3 d.; Barley, 3 d.; Oats, 1½ d.

Stock on hand: Wheat, 1,575 qrs.; Rye, 13,125 qrs.; Barley, 2,625 qrs.; Oats, 3,675 qrs.

2d Quarter.

No stocks of corn having come to market, the stock on hand is next to nothing. Trade exceedingly dull, and Freights very much depressed.

Memel, 30 June 1841.

W. J. Hertslet,
V. Consul.

3d Quarter.

There are no stocks of Wheat, and barely enough for home consumption. The harvest is now completed; Wheat and Rye are reported to have yielded far below an average, and as the prices are rapidly advancing, it is expected that shipments to foreign markets next season will be limited. Barley and Oats it is expected will turn out both abundant and of excellent quality.

4th Quarter.

The late harvest has turned out very indifferent, and the quantity is considered to be insufficient for the home consumption. Barley, Oats and Potatoes, however, have yielded abundantly and of good quality.

No. 1.

From the St. Petersburg Commercial Gazette, No. 88, of the 24th of July, 1837 (O.S.), published at the Department of Foreign Trade.

Extract from a Report presented to His Imperial Highness the Hereditary Grand Duke, on the occasion of his visit to Tamboff in July, 1837.

Translation from the Russ.

" The government of Tamboff contains 1,700,000 inhabitants, nine-tenths of whom are entirely occupied in agriculture. The extent of land under cultivation (arable) is from four to four and a half millions of deciatines; and as, according to their practice, one-third lies fallow, two-thirds of this land is annually sown with grain and oleaginous seed.

" RYE occupies nearly one-half of this space, and produces on the average the tenth grain. The government produces annually from eight to twelve millions of chetwerts of this grain; whereof about four millions are consumed on the spot for food and seed; three millions distilled and transported by the Okat and the Volga, and the remainder is according to circumstances kept in granary. The price of rye in years of abundance, at the bazaars and places of embarkation, is from three to four roubles, B.N., per chetwert; in ordinary years from five to seven roubles, B.N.; and in 1833, a year of scarcity, it rose to twenty-eight roubles, B.N.

" WHEAT, winter-sown, is produced to the amount of from thirty to fifty thousand chetwerts; little of which is consumed in the provinces, the greater part being ground on the spot for the supply of the capitals. Its price varies from ten to fifteen roubles, B.N., per chetwert.

" OATS: about four and a half to six and a half millions of chetwerts are grown annually; the greater part of which is consumed in the provinces, a small portion going to the capitals. The price varies from two to four roubles, B.N., per chetwert.

" BUCK WHEAT: from three and a half to five and a half millions of chetwerts are produced; it forms the principal food of the inhabitants; a considerable quantity goes to the capitals, and to supplying the army. The price is always the same as that of rye.

" PEAS: from two to four hundred thousand chetwerts are produced; the greater part is conveyed to Moscow and to the southern provinces, and for supplying the fleet. The price of SMALL PEAS varies from six to eight roubles, B.N., per chetwert, and of LARGE PEAS from ten to fifteen roubles, B.N., per chetwert.

" MILLET is produced to the amount of from fifty to one hundred thousand chetwerts; but as it requires virgin land, the produce diminishes every year. It is principally consumed in the capitals.

" Very little wheat is sown in summer, and it is worked up with the winter corn.

" HEMP-SEED, LINSEED, and POPPY-SEED, are produced to the amount of from twenty to fifty thousand chetwerts.

Recapitulation in British Measure and Currency.

One hundred chetwerts = about seventy quarters. Average exchange 11d. per rouble, B.N.

No. 3.

(Extract.) Mr. Vice Consul Miller to Sir E. Baynes.

Sir, St. Petersburgh, September 25 1841.

I BEG herewith to transmit to you the statement of present prices of agricultural produce in this market, which owing to the quantity of foreign grain imported are unusually low in comparison with the current rates in the interior of the country—where this year's crops have proved very deficient, and in the same districts that have been almost in a state of famine for the last three or four years. Between this and Moscow, the season has been favourable and the crops good, and from Moscow eastward to the Baltic and Prussia, also excellent. You are, however, aware that the great corn-growing country is not here included, which is situate east of longitude 38° 2′, south of latitude 54°, the accounts from which districts are miserable, and caused by a continuance of dry weather to such an extent as not only to decrease materially the yield of the crops and burn up the grass on the pasture lands, thereby rendering it necessary to adopt grain for the feeding of the cattle, and at an unusually early period begin upon the small supplies of fodder which in ordinary seasons are reserved for the winter and spring keep,—but the drought has also parched the land to that degree that no sowing can take place before the spring, which is dangerous, and a great disadvantage to Russia, from the soil being so long in an unfit state to receive the seed after the melting of the snow.

No. 4.

Extract of a Dispatch from Mr. Consul Baker.

Riga, November $\frac{18}{30}$, 1841.

WITH the exception of barley and oats, the crops of grain this year have averaged very indifferently, and in so far as the question bears on the exportation of grain from the port of Riga, I must remark that Livonia seldom furnishes for exportation any quantity of corn worth mentioning, and never wheat. The soil in general is not adapted for wheat. Rye is the article chiefly grown and almost entirely appropriated for the numerous distilleries, and the consumption of the province.

The barley grown is also chiefly consumed by the former, especially this year, owing to the scarcity of rye, and for the same reason barley bread is, in some districts, becoming a substitute for rye bread. Oats as well as barley have, in point of abundance, proved good crops, yet as there are no old stocks left they will not more than suffice for the home consumption, until the next harvest, whilst of wheat and rye there is as before observed a scarcity.

Riga, in the first instance, obtains its grain from the neighbouring province of Courland, and likewise from Lithuania, but in case of a demand for exportation, principally from the provinces of Smolensk and White Russia, and if the demand is very encouraging, additional supplies may be expected from those of Orel and Kalouga.

The harvest in Courland and Lithuania, where the soil is more especially favourable for the growth of wheat, has only turned out satisfactory with regard to the spring corn, whilst the wheat and rye crops have not yielded even a middling average, so that but little rye, and no wheat, can be looked for from these two provinces for next year's exportation. The millers are buying up the latter at from 170 roubles to 175 roubles per last, the highest notation would be about 52*s*. 10*d*. to 54*s*. 4*d*. per quarter free on board. My remarks as to the exhausted state of the old stocks of every description of grain in Livonia, equally apply to Courland and Lithuania. Courland wheat and barley are considered the best.

White Russia, which also gives good wheat and barley, and also oats considered superior to those from Courland, is in the same position with respect to the harvest and to stocks; and so I am informed are Kalouga and Orel. Great Britain, therefore, has little or no wheat and barley to expect from Riga next year, nor of oats, unless a British demand, at high prices, should manifest itself sufficiently early to permit contracts for the delivery of the article here from the more distant provinces, so as to enable the inland corn-dealers to take advantage of the winter roads for the conveyance of grain to the places of embarkation by the barks.

There was no wheat, and only 477 lasts of oats, or 6678 quarters exported this year, which went to the United Kingdom. The remainder of the trifling supply by the barks was partly shipped to St. Petersburg, and partly consumed here. Of the 865 lasts of barley exported, only 179 lasts, or 2028 quarters, went to Great Britain, the remainder to Holland and Belgium. Rye is an article of comparatively little importance to the United Kingdom, but is, as already mentioned, the description of grain principally cultivated in all the provinces that supply this port, as also the only kind of grain of which there is any stock on hand, or of which any contracts for spring delivery, by the barks, have taken place. These contracts have been closed chiefly for account of Finland, Sweden, and Norway; and likewise with a view to the renewal, in spring, of the shipments to St. Petersburg, which, as well as those to Finland, were rather extensive this year. The last contract price was 85 roubles per last, with 10 per cent. hand money, about 28*s.* 7*d.* sterling per quarter free on board; and the price for rye on the spot 82 roubles. It proves the stagnation in the corn trade, with reference to the other descriptions of grain, that no prices for them have appeared in the broker's prices current for a great length of time.

It appears from the opening of the navigation until the 1st of last October, the total of all exportations from the port of Riga, amounted to 11,066,367 roubles silver (£1,844,561 3*s.* 4*d.* sterling), and the imports to 3,530,696 roubles silver (£558,449 6*s.* 8*d.* sterling). During the corresponding period in 1840, the exportation amounted to 9,669,547 roubles silver (£1,611,591 3*s.* 4*d.* sterling), and the imports to 3,421,278 roubles silver (£570,213 sterling). In 1841, the increase in the exports was in flax and linseed oil, and the diminution in hemp, codilla, quills, tallow, hides, cables, mats, grain, and building timber. The imports in 1841 presented an increase in coffee, salt, tobacco, colours, groceries, wines and hardware; and a falling off in sugar, cheese, raw cotton, herrings, manufactured goods, ardent spirits, and porter.

Liebau, December, 1841.

AT this moment nothing particular is worthy of notice, unless that in consequence of the insurrection which has taken place in Livonia and Estland, but which is now quelled, as no doubt your Lordship is acquainted with, most of the fields in those provinces have not been cultivated this year, and that there will be, without doubt, a great want of winter as well as of summer corn, which has been already proved by the sending of several cargoes of rye from here to Revel and Peraan, which has raised the price of this article here.

We have seldom, unless some extraordinary circumstances occur, been in want of corn in Courland, as the peasants in this duchy are industrious, rather wealthy, and are treated more generously than in some other districts of Russia.

Extract of a Letter from Mr. Consul Yeames to Lord Stuart de Rothesay.

Odessa, November 26, 1841.

THE weather here continues mild, but ships which are much wanted by the trade are kept away by contrary winds. The stock of wheat now accumulated on the spot is large, and may perhaps amount to 350,000 quarters of which 80,000 quarters have been purchased and are waiting shipment for England. The stocks in the several ports of the Sea of Asoph may altogether amount to about 80,000 quarters, of which about 10,000 quarters are lying for British account.

In order to arrive at a tolerably correct result it was absolutely necessary, in making the calculations on which the above averages are founded, to assume throughout one and the same description of wheat, the same weight, and the same mode of purchase. Whereas the prices quoted in the official prices current relate sometimes to one and often to another description or weight: the mode of purchase and payment being likewise subject to frequent and material alterations. The following system has, in order to reduce the whole to a uniform scale, been adopted in all cases where the exact price, on any particular day, of the precise description of wheat required, could not be accurately ascertained. It has been assumed as a general rule, subject however to some exceptions, under particular circumstances, that Courish wheat is dearer than Polish wheat of the same weight, by about seven roubles silver per last; that Courish wheat is dearer than Russian wheat of the same weight, by about fifteen roubles silver per last; that Polish wheat is dearer than Russian wheat of the same weight, by about eight roubles silver per last; that one pound difference in price, of about two roubles silver per last; that wheat bought with the whole amount, paid in advance, is cheaper by about three to four roubles silver per last, than an article bought with only fifty per cent. paid in advance; that wheat, bought with the whole amount paid in advance, is cheaper by about five to six roubles silver per last, than an article bought with only ten per cent. paid in advance.

BEET-ROOT FOR SUGAR.

The culture of beet-root for sugar was for a time pursued with that eagerness which of late years has attended every new "industriel" experiment in this country. But it would appear that the speculators are beginning to discover that the occupation is not quite so profitable as they had been led to imagine.

According to the "Journal de St. Pétersbourg," the number of the beet-root refineries in Russia at the beginning of the current year was 174, of which 29 were in the government of Toula. And in the "Gazette of Commerce," published at the Department of Foreign Trade, the total produce is rated at 125,000 poods, or about 2009 tons English. The average annual import of colonial sugar during the years 1837, 38, and 39, is stated in the same official paper at 1,675,806 poods, or about 26,932 tons.

TOBACCO.

Tobacco is extensively cultivated chiefly in the Southern provinces, and particularly in the Ukraine.

The leaves of "Sarepta," a Moravian colony on the Larpa, near its confluence with the Volga, and those of the Ukraine, are esteemed the best.

There are no returns of the quantity raised, but the subjoined statement will show the quantity manufactured, imported, and exported, in 1839.

Official Statement.

In 1839, the quantity of tobacco manufactured in Russia, including the remains of 1838, was—

Pipe Tobacco, poods	3,800,000
Snuff	2,200,000
Cigars	62,500,000

It does not appear that any sensible increase has taken place in the culture of hemp.

The surplus produce of the province of Vologda and the surrounding country is exported from Archangel.

The best quality is produced in the Governments that supply the port of Riga, viz., Vitepsk, Smolensk, Mohileff, and Tchernigoff.

The greatest quantity is raised in the Governments of Koursk, Orel, Kaluga, and part of Tchernigoff; and the exportation takes place through St. Petersburgh, Narva, &c.

The subjoined statement will show that the exportation from St. Petersburgh has decreased since 1798.

Extract of a Dispatch from Mr. Evans, Acting British Consul at Warsaw.

October 11, 1841.

THIS year's harvest has been much below an average one; wheat has completely failed, in consequence of which, and the high price of wheat in England, and although there is much difficulty in getting grain to Dantzig, the water in the Vistula being very low, all kinds of grain are very high in price, which your Lordship will perceive by the inclosed list of prices for the last six months.

No. 10.

Extract of a Dispatch from Her Majesty's Ambassador at St. Petersburgh.

December 16, 1841.

HER Majesty's Consul at Riga has transmitted the papers, copies of which I have the honour to inclose, containing further information, which has been sent to England from Riga, respecting the production of the soil in Courland, and in the Russian Governments which have been in the habit of shipping grain from Riga during the last ten years, with a view to ascertain what will be the probable result of any change in our legislation respecting the importation of foreign corn.

REMARKS.

The question whether it is probable that a considerable extent of land, in Livonia and the neighbouring provinces, would be thrown into cultivation of wheat if the import duty in England was fixed at 8*s*. per quarter, is difficult to answer, but I am inclined to think that in that case an increased quantity would be cultivated in the more distant, but not in the nearer provinces. In Livonia for instance, where not only the climate, but also the soil in most parts of the province, is ill adapted to the growth of wheat, a reduction of the duty in England would probably make no difference whatever in the extent of the cultivation, especially as in the only part of Livonia (generally called Esthonian Livonia) where the article is ever produced to any extent, the production of flax is likewise a matter of so much importance, that it is not likely, even if the duty in England were to be materially reduced, that the culture of the latter, which is an article of ready and certain sale, would be superseded in any material degree by that of wheat, the cultivation of which in the part of the country in question, is attended with so much risk, that persons well acquainted with the subject affirm that it may be safely assumed that of three crops one at least will prove a total failure. In Esthonia the same causes, as regard soil and climate, modified in some respects, would produce nearly the same results; but even if in consequence of the reduction of duty in England, the cultivation of wheat in this province was, contrary to all probability, to be extended, that circumstance would probably have little or no direct influence on the Riga exportations, both Revel and Pernau being more conveniently situated for the conveyance thither of landed produce, not only from the whole of Esthonia, but also from that part of Livonia where wheat is principally cultivated.

In Courland, where not only the soil in many parts of the province but also the climate is more favourable to the growth of wheat, than is the case in any part of Livonia or Esthonia, (the difference in climate being even greater than the difference in latitude would lead one to believe,) other causes would probably lead to nearly the same result, viz.: first, that the proximity of Riga, where, even in years when there is no demand for exportation, the growers of wheat can always be certain of finding buyers for home consumption, has rendered the agriculturists, to a certain degree, independent of a foreign demand, and has consequently induced the great landed proprietors to throw as large an extent of ground into the cultivation of wheat, that even a more ready sale, at higher prices, would probably leave but little margin for an increase of cultivation, though I, at the same time, believe that such increase would take place in a moderate degree in the event of a reduction in the English duty: and secondly, that even if more land, adapted to the growth of wheat, was available, than is actually the case, it is not likely that such land would be applied exclusively to the cultivation of this article, in prejudice to that of flax, which, (as in Esthonia and part of Livonia,) is likewise cultivated in Courland to a considerable extent, and which, being, as already mentioned, an article of certain sale, for cash payment, would certainly never be abandoned altogether in favour of wheat, the sale of which, at remunerating prices, (beyond a certain extent for home consumption, as above alluded to,) would always be uncertain, and dependent on the extent of the foreign demand and the result of the crops in foreign countries.

In the Governments of Smolenski, Witcpok, &c., the cultivation of wheat would most probably be somewhat extended, if the duty in England was to be sufficiently reduced to afford a fair prospect of a ready and regular sale for exportation at Riga, but I do not think that such increase would be very material for some time to come, though it might possibly gradually become so, as flax is in those provinces a most important article of produce, and affords (as already mentioned with reference to other provinces) such facilities in many respects, that it is improbable that its cultivation would ever, without very immediate and palpable advantages, be suspended by that of any other article. Persons well acquainted with the provinces assert that the largest annual supply of wheat which could, even under favourable circumstances, be looked forward to from thence would not exceed 2,000 or at most 2,500 lasts, [22,666 or 28,333 imperial quarters,] a statement, however, which I consider to be much below the mark.

On the other hand, I believe that in some of the more distant provinces, and especially in the Government of Orel, where large quantities of wheat are already cultivated, the growth of the article would be considerably extended, if the duty in England were to be reduced to such an extent as to render an annual demand for foreign exportation certain or even probable, but in how far such an increase might affect the quantity available for exportation from Riga, it is impossible to foresee till the experiment has been tried frequently, and on a large scale, as the facilities of conveyance from that province to St. Petersburgh are much the same as those from thence to Riga, and it would remain to be seen after frequent trial, which of the two ports would receive the bulk of the supply. Riga would, however, have the advantage, that shipments could be effected there much earlier than at St. Petersburgh.

Upon the whole, therefore, I am inclined to think that a reduction of the import duty of wheat into England would produce some, but for some years to come, at least, no very material increase in the quantity of the article available for exportation from Riga, but at the same time I am of opinion that the quantity available for exportation from all the ports of Russia, taken together, might be eventually (though probably only gradually) very considerably extended, in the event of such an extensive alteration of the present English corn laws taking place, as to produce a certain and regular annual demand for wheat in the Russian ports, at prices materially higher than those which may now be assumed as a fair average in common years, though a mere increase of demand at about the same prices which might now be obtained, would probably produce little or no alteration in the quantity of wheat at present cultivated, excepting perhaps in some of the more remote provinces.

No. 11.

Extract of Dispatch from Mr. Consul Sandison.

Brussa, September 17, 1841.

THE prices of wheat are from 18 to 23 piastres, and of barley $7\frac{1}{2}$ to 8 piastres per kilo of Constantinople, recently introduced here as the sole legal measure for grain, (about an English bushel,) which rates are equal to 26*s.* 2*d.* to 33*s.* 5*d.* for wheat, and 11*s.* to 11*s.* 8*d.* for barley per quarter.

The duties now levied on the seller are equal to $7\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. on wheat, and 10 per cent. on barley.

For the present abundant supplies keep coming in after the harvest, notwithstanding it has been deficient throughout the district, the corn not having filled in the ear, when ripening under drought and strong heats.

At Ghio good wheat is selling at the highest rate paying here; but I understand the crops have been good about Konia and the country on this side, from whence this market is chiefly furnished; and the cost there on the eve of getting in the new grain, is stated to me to have been sufficiently moderate to make wheat come to about 26*s.* per quarter, with carriage hither.

No. 12.

Extract of Dispatch from Mr. Consul Macgregor.

Elsinore, October 25, 1841.

IT appears that the winter seed last autumn was laid under rather adverse circumstances, nevertheless both wheat and rye were thriving well towards the commencement of winter, far better than had been generally anticipated by the farmers. At the approach of spring, however, the rye crops were found to have materially suffered during the cold season, and the wheat plants in many instances were but thinly scattered. The summer seed, in the mean time, was sown under more favourable auspices, and shooted forth luxuriantly under the influence of warm and genial weather, so that in the month of May the crops had advanced to a most promising state.

But from the middle of June down to the commencement of the harvest a constant succession of cold and rainy weather materially affected the wheat and rye crops in the very blooming season, retarding at the same time the growth and maturity of all other descriptions of grain.

Owing to the influence of these unfavourable circumstances, the result of the harvest, as regards the principal species of corn and grain, appears to have been as follows:—

Wheat has yielded less than an average crop, and though, on the whole, superior in quality to that of the preceding year, it is inferior in point of weight, which proves to be for marketable parcels, namely, of Holstein wheat from 124 to 129 lbs.; Zealand and Funen, from 121 to 126 lbs.; Lolland and Falster, from 120 to 124 lbs.; Dutch on an average. The deficiency in weight is sufficiently accounted for by the cold and damp weather which prevailed during the ripening season, no less than to rust and blight by which the grain was infected.

Rye has yielded but a very middling crop, as well in point of quantity as of quality; it has proved in many instances deficient in the grain, and is more than usually mixed with other seeds, the moist state of the ground having but too much favoured the rapid growth of different kinds of weeds. The average weight is from 111 to 117 lbs. Dutch, considering that the crops in Lolland and Falster have partially failed; that Zealand has only yielded a middling one, and that Funen, Jutland, and Sleswick-Holstein have produced much less than in years of common fertility, the yield of the rye crops all over the country may safely be calculated at one quarter below an average crop.

The Barley crop has been abundant, although less productive than in the year preceding, and of an inferior quality. The average weight of the two sowed sorts is from 100 lbs. to 108 lbs.; and of the six sowed, from 98 lbs. to 102 lbs. Dutch. The colour is not objectionable, though on the whole rather dark with a yellowish cast; and to judge from the samples that have hitherto been exhibited, it does not contain many grains with a tinge of brown. The barley has generally been housed in a dry state, and although in some parts of the country it is still lying in the fields, owing to the incessant rains, yet fortunately this is not of frequent occurrence.

Oats have yielded a crop equal in quantity to that of last year, and the colour of the grain is very bright, but of a yellowish hue. The weight is from 76 lbs. to 78 lbs. Dutch, and the crop has been secured in dry weather.

Of Peas, the return appears to have been very limited this year. The reports from Lolland and Falster, whence the supplies of that article are chiefly drawn, complain of both quantity and quality. Fine samples, notwithstanding, have appeared in the market.

Rape-seed seems to have produced little more than one-half of a common crop, and though housed in a damp state, still its appearance is not bad; but both the farmers and the merchants have been put to great trouble and expense to render it fit for shipment before the winter.

The prospects for laying the winter seed are highly unfavourable, and whoever has not sown his fields in September, has since been unable to do so from the wet state of the ground, which bears neither horse or harrow; nay, several of the lower parts of the country are perfectly inundated.

In consequence of these bad prospects, the price of rye, the bread-corn of this country, has already considerably risen, and should the rye crops actually prove deficient next year, it is highly probable that the importation of foreign rye must be resorted to.

As respects the capabilities of Denmark for the exportation of wheat next year, I do not think it will exceed 100,000 quarters, considering that the Dutch markets must be completely drained of their old stock, in consequence of the continued demand for foreign wheat in Great Britain. The exportation to the United Kingdom of barley and oats, however, will no doubt take place from this country to a large extent.

The present prices of grain, at Copenhagen, may be quoted as follows :—

	Market price.	Price free on board.
Wheat	40*s.* to 42*s.*	42*s.* to 44*s.*	Per Imperial measure.
Rye	28 „ 30	30 6 „ 32
Barley	17 „ 20	19 „ 21
Oats	10 „ 11	10 6 „ 11 6
Peas	22 „ 28	23 „ 29 6

Freight to the east coast of Great Britain 4*s.* to 4*s.* 6*d.* per quarter for wheat, and for other grain in proportion.

RETURN of the Quantity of Grain produced in the Territory of the Free Hanseatic City of Lubeck.

Wheat, Rye, Barley, Oats, Beans, and Peas Rapeseed	About of all kinds of grain 36,000 quarters.
Beetroot for Sugar, Tobacco, Hemp,	None.

No correct medium exists by which the quantity of grain produced may be ascertained. According to the opinion of the chief corn broker, 36,000 quarters of all kinds of grain is produced, although he could form no opinion of the quantities of each description. He, however, states, that on an average about 6,250 quarters of wheat and rye,

5,375 do. of barley and oats, are produced more than consumed.

Sir, Hamburgh, December 9, 1841.

HAVING referred to the Board of Trade your letter dated November 4, requiring a return of the quantity of grain and other agricultural produce raised in the territory of Hamburgh during an average of five or more years ; I am sorry to say that at present no means exist, of discriminating in the consumption of Hamburgh with any degree of accuracy, the small part of produce raised in the suburban region belonging to Hamburgh, or jointly to the two cities of Hamburgh and Lubeck.

The agricultural section of a Patriotic Association has not yet been able to collect the materials which would perhaps enable me to form something like a return to the Circular, which can scarcely be considered as applicable to the territory of Hamburgh. It is doubtful whether a single beetroot for sugar or a leaf of tobacco is raised in the Hamburgh terrritory. Hemp, if at all, is certainly not cultivated for the market. It is impossible to ascertain whether any and what proportion of 731,000 quarters of grain imported, and of 595,000 quarters exported, during eleven months of this year, is the produce of the Hamburgh territory.

I have, &c.,

Extract of a Dispatch from Mr. Consul Annesley.

Amsterdam, November 25, 1841.

I HAVE the honour to state that I have made a strict investigation into the working of the present system of corn duties in Holland, and have found a great difference of opinion on the subject, that of the merchant and consumer being naturally at variance with the agriculturist and grower; but it certainly would appear that trade has suffered more in comparison than agriculture has profited by it. The prices which now exist and those for some years past have been more than average; this has not been caused by the corn laws, but by a dimminution of inland produce, so that had no importation duty existed, the prices would have been the same. Fine harvests, which of course give to Europe an over produce, would require a higher rate in the scale of duty, which operates to the prejudice of the poorer class, a matter of importance to this country, as corn is in general too highly taxed with Government and city dues on the grinding.

From the year 1820 to 1830, a small fixed duty existed on wheat and rye; that on wheat was 7*fl.* 50*c.* per last, and on rye 4*fl.* 50*c.* From 1830 to 1835, this fixed duty was raised to 30*fl.* per last on wheat, and 9*fl.* on rye. Since that period, the duty has been regulated by the sliding scale system, according to a tariff, a copy of which I have now the honour to enclose, and there is no doubt that consequently the trade in corn has considerably diminished, the stock in bond less, and the prices to the consumer seriously augmented.

The stock of corn in bond is estimated at about

Wheat	- -	3,000 lasts.
Rye	- -	8,000 do.
Barley	- -	600 do.
Oats	- -	500 do.

without an appearance of any increase, which is an insignificant quantity, and would be very different under a system of free trade or fixed duty.

The crops of wheat this year in Holland have been very unfavourable, both in quantity and quality, and may be estimated at about half the produce of an ordinary crop; rye is rather better in quality, and oats abundant.

The import duties are regulated monthly according to the returns sent in by each province of the prices of its produce, and then the middle or average prices taken as a guide. The town-dues are considered peculiarly onerous, as well as the tax upon grinding, amounting to 178 florins upon each last of wheat, which, at the present prices, including all dues, costs the consumer 548 florins.

The high price at which bread is sold at Amsterdam, weighs heavily on the poor; and any remedy that could be found to remove this evil, would be regarded as a most benign and popular measure. Upon the whole, I am under the impression, that, although the present sliding-scale system cannot be said actually to have a pernicious influence, yet, that the re-establishment of the former plan of a fixed duty, would be the most beneficial to the country, giving an impetus to commerce, and certainly an increase in the receipts of the Royal Treasury.

No. 17.

Extract of Despatch from Vice Consul Sir James H. Turing.

Rotterdam, November 22, 1841.

The Corn Law at present in operation in Holland, was enacted in 1836, for the purpose of affording protection to the agriculturist, when prices are low, and of simultaneously regulating the trade in foreign corn, especially for home consumption (which had been previously unrestricted), by means of a sliding scale of duties, the bearing of which will be immediately perceived by reference to the following table, which I confine to the article of wheat, as constituting the principal object of interest, viz.—

Regulating Scale of Duties of Wheat in Holland.

„ 150 fl. Lower	.. 23*s.* 9*d.* ..	90 fl. or	14*s.* 3*d.*	..		3 fl. or	5¾*d.*

I shall now proceed to examine in how far this system has already, or may hereafter, realise the object of its adoption.

Owing to abundant harvests and ample stocks in granary, prices of Wheat had been declining for seasons, until, in 1835, the clamour raised by the agricultural body obtained the passing of the present law, which took effect from and after the 1st of January, 1836. So far, however, from affording the contemplated relief, prices, for a short time after its enactment, experienced a further decline; but presently extraneous causes came to the aid of the agriculturist, and have ever since been conducive to the maintenance of remunerating prices; I allude to the failure of the Wheat crop in the United States of America in 1835 and 1836, and the subsequent deficiencies in Europe, the effects of which continue to the present time, indeed, so far as regards Great Britain; owing to the unfavourable ingathering of her latest harvest, she has drawn so largely on the slender stock in this country during the months of August and September of the present year, as to cause an advance on the prices of Wheat, in that short period, of fully 14*s.* per quarter.

It is apparent, therefore, that the Corn Law in Holland has had little or no share in the improvement experienced by the agriculturist, inasmuch as the causes by which the contemplated benefit to the grower of Corn would have to be appreciated, have not existed.

The imperfection of the system, as far as concerns the objects to be gained, namely, protection to the farmer, and moderate prices to the consumer, appear however to be palpable.

In the first place, the bonding system, as applied to foreign grain in Holland, is, in point of expense and fiscal regulations, placed on a footing so extremely liberal and convenient to the holder of bonded Corn, as to ensure a supply, always ready at hand for consumption, whenever the duties become moderate; the effect of which supply is adverse to the farmers' interest.

In the next place, if protection be extended to the agriculturist when prices are low, by subjecting foreign grain, if taken into consumption, to an ascending duty; restriction on the other hand is imposed on the exportation of free Corn, by the fixed duty of 18 florins per last, or about 2*s.* 4½*d.* per quarter when the average price of Wheat exceeds 270 florins per last, or about 43*s.* per quarter, at which period foreign Corn is admissable at the lowest duty of 7½ florins per last, or about 1*s.* 2¼*d.* per quarter.

One object of the law is to check exportation when prices rule high, but as a period of six weeks elapses before the restrictive duty takes effect, the holder of Corn has abundance of time to regulate his operations and to escape the duty: the result of which calculation will probably be, that only a very moderate stock of wheat will be found to be available for home consumption when the averages reach the maximum.

Moreover, recent experience has shown, that when England requires supplies, the duty in question will not prevent wheat from leaving Holland. It is, besides, evident that in cases of deficient harvests and inadequate stocks, even independent of a demand from abroad, the natural course of the home market will cause prices to advance beyond the reach of legislative enactments, the more so that this country does not produce sufficient corn for her own use.

I have reason also to know that the feeling entertained by commercial men is not in favour of the present law, from a fear that neighbouring States, looking with dissatisfaction on a system, the object of which is to impose restrictions when prices are low (on the admission of their Corn into Holland) may thence be induced, when the case occurs, to adopt measures of retaliation prejudicial to the general interests of trade.

Upon the whole, therefore, it may be assumed that the system is defeetive, and inadequate to the attainment of the objects for which it was adopted.

Dresden, November 20, 1841.

THE quantity of corn of different sorts, raised in Saxony is so inadequate to the consumption of the country, that from 600,000 to 800,000 scheffels are annually imported, partly from Bohemia, partly from Prussian Saxony. The climate is so severe in the chain of mountains, the Erzgebeirge, which form the frontier between this kingdom and Bohemia, and constitute a great part of Saxony, that very little corn can be grown there. Even the crops of potatoes, which are the principal sustenance of the inhabitants, are very uncertain. This arises from the formation of these mountains, which run nearly from east to west; and although their height is not very great, they are very abrupt on the side of Bohemia, whilst towards Silesia the inclination is very gradual, and the land is consequently exposed to the cold of the north.

Very little beetroot is now cultivated for making sugar, the speculation having completely failed; a few years back there were eight manufactories, but this summer there were only three remaining, one of which has since stopped.

The cultivation of tobacco is still more inconsiderable; for the tax on it produces to the Government only 1,000 dollars yearly (about 150*l.*), and there is scarcely any hemp grown in this country; wool being their principal export, a large portion of the land is devoted to pasture for sheep, and as great a part of the remainder as can be spared from the cultivation of potatoes and corn, is employed in raising flax; but I have not been able to procure any certain return of the exact quantity grown in Saxony.

Millet and buckwheat are also cultivated to a certain extent; the latter is much used by the lower classes in soup.

Dresden, December 11, 1841.

I AM sorry to say, that M. de Zerchau tells me that it is totally impossible for him to furnish me with any of these details. The harvest has been very abundant, and principally in wheat; but the arable land is so subdivided between small proprietors, that there are no means of ascertaining the quantity nor quality of the different sorts of grain which have been raised.

I have already had the honour of stating, in my Despatch No. 24 of this year, that no corn is exported from this kingdom, but that a considerable quantity is annually imported. The expense of conveying grain down the Elbe to Hamburgh varies considerably according to the season. At present, on account of the water being low, it costs from 16 to 18 Prussian dollars per last, equal to about 80 bushels; but in spring, when the river is full, the freight is not more than from 8 to 9 dollars.

Munich, December 23, 1841.

With respect to the nature of the late harvest in Bavaria, I have heard from the best sources, that the crops of wheat and barley, both in quantity and quality, had been good and a fair average, but that oats, in consequence of the dry spring, had not been a good crop, and the price of them is accordingly high.

It appears, that in consequcnce of the commercial treaty (the Zoll verein,) between certain German States, corn of all sorts passes from Bavaria into the adjoining German States without any duty being taken, or any examination made, and the Custom Houses have been withdrawn, where they formerly existed, and therefore no means remain of noting what quantity or what sorts of grain, have been exported from Bavaria, except such portions as may have been exported to Austria and Switzerland, (these countries not being comprehended in the commercial league,) and the quantity has been always comparatively very small, so that it is impossible to find any grounds of calculation at present of the quantity of corn exported from, or consumed in, Bavaria.

Before the existence of the treaty (Zoll verein) above alluded to, the quantity of all grain of all sorts exported from Bavaria, was estimated at 260,000 English quarters, the value of which, of course, varied in different years.

Sir Thomas Sorell to John Bidwell, Esq.

Sir, Trieste, October 8, 1841.

I HAVE the honour to transmit herewith, the usual returns of the price of agricultural produce at the ports of Trieste, Venice, and Fiume, for the quarter ending the 30th ultimo.

With reference to the highest price which wheat has borne in the market at Trieste during the last quarter, it may be proper to observe, that although 6 florins per Haro was asked for wheat a short time since, in expectation that a large supply of foreign wheat would be required for the United Kingdom, I am not aware that boná fide sales at that rate were actually made.

I am, &c.,

Lord Howard de Walden to the Earl of Aberdeen, K.G.

My Lord, Lisbon, November 25, 1841.

I HAVE the honour to report to your Lordship, that no general return of the total amount of any quality of grain produced in this country is to be obtained, as desired hy your Lordship's circular despatch.

No hemp, tobacco, or beet-root, is in general cultivation anywhere in Portugal.

I have, &c.,

No. 24.

Statement respecting the Agricultural Produce of the Kingdom of Hanover, received from the Hon. Mr. Edgecombe, Her Majesty's Secretary of Legation at Hanover.

THE kingdom of Hanover contains about 14,590,000 Calenbergen morgens = to about 21,000,000 of acres.

Of this surface, $\frac{57}{100}$ths or about 12,000,000 acres are cultivated or productive, namely, 8,000,000 acres as garden land, farms, meadows, and pasture, and 4,000,000 acres under forest: consequently, $\frac{43}{100}$ths, or little less than one-half, are uncultivated; this includes roads, rivers, lakes, turf, moors, barren wastes, and commons. About 1,000,000 acres cannot be cultivated.

CORN.

Corn is produced throughout the whole kingdom: there is usually more than is required for home consumption.

The average crop is about 30,000,000 of himpten, or about 3,000,000 of quarters; of this a large proportion is rye, and other inferior descriptions of grain, but the quantities of each kind cannot be arrived at with any degree of certainty.

The average price of the best wheat on the Hanover town market, from 1815 to 1838, was 1*wf.* 4*ggl.* 7*vr.* per himpten, or about £1 14*s.* per quarter. The variations in price were very slight.

Before 1768 no corn was sent direct to foreign lands, such as England, France, and Portugal: the statements respecting the value of corn exported, vary from 50,000*wf.*=£7,500, to 500,000*wf.*=£75,000, and it is looked upon as a speculation depending chiefly on the state of the English market.

BEET-ROOT FOR SUGAR.

The growth of beet-root for sugar is of very slight importance in this kingdom, and it is not expected to increase much, unless a protective duty is established: this, however, is not much to be dreaded, as the exportation of linen to the West Indies in exchange for sugar, which is now very considerable, would suffer.

There are two manufactories of beet-root sugar, one at Nienburg, and the other near Osnabrück.

TOBACCO.

The soil generally chosen is down or moor-land, well manured; the whole produce of tobacco in the kingdom is of about the value of 70,000*wf.*=£10,500. The culture of it is decreasing, and the quality produced is very inferior.

There are 346 tobacco manufactories of greater or less extent: they employ about 1500 workmen, (many being registered that have only the master and one assistant,) and they deliver annually about 2,250,000lbs. of smoking tobacco, valued at 300,000*wf.*, or £45,000. Some foreign tobacco is smuggled into them, from Bremen and Hamburg, but their manufacture is chiefly of home produce.

The duty on foreign tobacco, according to the tariff, is—

Raw - -	1*wf.*	1*ggl.*	per cwt.	=3*s.* 1½*d.*
Manufactured	6	6	do.	=18 9

HEMP.

There is not much hemp grown in Hanover; some is produced in the district near Bremen, and a little near Lüneburg. They get the seed chiefly from abroad, Prussia furnishing a good deal of it, because it is imagined that hemp which has already produced seed, gives a linen difficult to bleach.

The land is not adapted to it, and capital to procure the machinery necessary is wanting: that which is produced is reckoned inferior to Russian hemp, as it is deficient in a certain resinous quality, which prevents the latter from rotting in the water.

The average price of hemp, from 1834 to 1841, on the markets of Celle and Harburg, was 1*wf.* per zentner, or 3*s.* per cwt.

The Osnabrück hempen linen, known as "Tecklenburghs," is bleached in the yarn, and takes a beautiful whiteness.

The average export of hemp, flax, and tow, altogether, is 14,000 zentners, or 700 tons, valued at 140,000*wf.*, or £21,000; that of linen yarn is valued at 500,000*wf.*, or £75,000.

FLAX.

Among the agricultural products of the kingdom, the most important is flax. The cultivation and manufacture of it are said to give occupation to nearly one-half of the inhabitants: it is unchecked by a guild, in which it has the advantage over almost every other branch of industry in the kingdom. For the cultivation of it a dry sandy soil is preferred, when not too barren; it is produced chiefly in the southern parts of the kingdom, especially about Hildeshiem. Seed is brought from abroad to the value of 50,000*wf.*, or £7,500 annually, and linen and yarn are exported to the value of 2,000,000*wf.*, or £300,000.

In 1837 the quantity of linen brought to the inspection depôts, to be examined and stamped, was less than in some preceding years, but the value was greater, which is a proof that linen of a better quality is being produced.

At the end of the 17th century, the linen trade was at its greatest height; towards the middle of the 18th century it fell off, as the Irish and Scotch linens drove it from the West Indies. During the American war it flourished again, but in 1806 Napoleon's Continental System nearly annihilated it, as almost all foreign ports were inaccessible to it. Since the Peace, the trade has again assumed a national importance, though it does not appear to have any prospect of again arriving at its former condition.

January 11, 1842.

I HAVE at length obtained from Count Beroldingen the information which your Lordship directed me to procure in your dispatch marked "Separate," and dated November 30, 1841, relative to the growth, consumption, and exportation of corn in the kingdom of Wurtemberg, and I lose no time in forwarding it to you.

From the Baden Government I have not yet received replies to the questions which I put to them upon that subject, but I have on two or three occasions pressed for the answers, and I am now in hopes that I shall receive them without much further delay.

Replies to the Queries made by Mr. Aubin.

IN order to reply in the best possible manner to the queries made with a view to ascertain the agricultural products of the Papal States, and especially the produce of grain, these tables are subjoined:—the first showing the extent and division of territory as variously destined, whether to cultivation or natural produce;—the second, showing the crops of different sorts which are usually gathered in the several provinces;—the third, showing what produce might be raised by an extension and melioration of agriculture.

And here it will be fitting, first, to observe, that the commerce in corn and grain, at one time so flourishing, is now extremely limited for want of demand. Could the certain sale of it be reckoned upon abroad, and at a suitable price, the sowing of corn would double, and even triple; while the uncertainty of sale restricts it to the mere wants of the country, and little more.

The cultivation of hemp, because it finds a sure market abroad, is most extensive, and more than fifty million of pounds of it are imported every year. More attention is bestowed at present on hay, it being exported to Algiers.

It must not be omitted, to give some idea of the active commerce of these States, an indication of the principal articles produced besides the crops, and which are partly sold abroad. Wool, besides what is required for home use, is exported to the amount of two or three million of pounds. About a million and a half of lamb and kid skins are exported. Each season two or three million pounds of silk are sold. There is also an exportation of timber for ship building; charcoal sold in the kingdom of Naples; rags for paper, to the amount of about 3,000,000 lbs. Rags of wool, bones, and other articles of manure in considerable quantities, conveyed to Genoa and other places, where manure is scarce and sought after.

The quantity of oil is less than the consumption in the section of the Adriatic, and surpasses what is needed in the section of the Mediterranean; so that in the first mentioned part it is imported, and drawn from the latter. Corn and rice are exported, and if wine could be exported also, plenty would be found; but many vineyards are neglected at present owing to the low price of wine.

If tobacco were in demand for foreign markets, it would be cultivated with advantage in many parts of these dominions, where, just now, the cultivation of it is restricted to the wants of the privileged contractors, that is, to the home consumption.

Finally, it is to be remarked that the superior quality of our pozzolana, and of our rock alum is such, that a considerable quantity is exported every year.

Inclosed are the regulations relative to the introduction and exportation of corn and oil, in order to convey a knowledge of the normal tariffs upon which the commerce of these articles, which were principally in demand, depends.

In giving a statement of the products of the Roman States, it has been thought fit to omit the Province of Beneventum, as its situation in the interior of the Kingdom of Naples has the effect of confounding the trade of the place with that of the kingdom, there being no outlet for the overplus except within the said kingdom, whence, also, it is necessary to draw what is needed.

The figures in the columns 1 and 3 denote Roman rubbia of 640 lbs. In the columns 2, 4, and following up to 13 inclusive, they are Roman rubbia of 720 lbs. In the columns 14 to 18 the figures denote so many Roman pounds. Each Roman pound corresponds in metrical weight to 339 gramms and 71 millegramms. 106 Roman rubbia are understood to be equal to 100 Imperial quarters English.

Extract of Despatch from Sir George B. Hamilton, dated Berlin, January 14, 1842.

I HAVE the honour to inclose herewith an account of the late Harvest in Prussia, and a translation of the same.

ABSTRACT

Of the result of the Harvest in the provinces of Prussia Proper, Posen, Silesia, and Lower Rhine, for 1841.

PRUSSIA PROPER.

In the province of Prussia the result of the harvest was very different in various places, according as they were more or less favoured by rain during the preceding dry weather. No general rain fell during the course of the summer. The produce is on the whole smaller. The winter crop failed in most places, so that many landowners scarcely obtained enough for seed.

Rye in many parts of the province, and wheat, in a few cases, was tolerably abundant.

The summer crops were much more favourable. Barley and oats were successful, though, for the most part, so weak in straw, that there will be a want of fodder for the winter. Peas, beans, and vetches, turned out less well; on the other hand, the flax was every where excellent. The fruit and garden crops had no great success. The potato harvest was tolerably satisfactory; but the potatoes, though numerous, were for the most part very small.

POSEN.

The produce of the winter crop here was also but small, and is estimated at from one-fifth to one-third less than that of 1840.

On the other hand, the produce of the summer crop in grain, as well as in straw, was very good. The potatoes were remarkable both for quantity and quality. The garden crop suffered from caterpillars. The fruit turned out very well; apples and plums were in particular abundant. The first crop of hay was very backward, as was expected; this failure was however repaired by the after crop, which was proportionably better.

In general, the harvest was satisfactory, though somewhat behind that of former years.

The flax crop was remarkably plentiful.

SILESIA.

The winter crop, as regards grain, was from one-fourth to one-third less than that of 1840.

The produce of straw was every where small. The harvest, neverthelesss, counts as a good middling one, for the summer crop covers the failure of the winter. In the same way, the second hay crop repaired the failure of the first. The late-sown flax turned out very well; but the potato crop, with the exception of some few districts, was middling, and in part bad. The fruit was small, and began to rot quickly. The vegetable crop was worse than usual, in consequence of the caterpillars. Tobacco was middling; but the beet root turned out well.

RHINE.

The winter harvest succeeded better in this province. It was, however, interrupted by frequent rains. This partly caused the crop lying in the fields to swell, so that the wheat crop is reckoned a bad one, and the rye, as regards quantity, as unsatisfactory. The same may also be said of the first hay crop: on the other hand, the second, and the clover crop were satisfactory. The plentiful potato crop has suffered much from rottenness, so that the overplus, which at other times has been employed for potato brandy, is not mentioned this winter. The beetroot did not answer the expectations that were formed of it. The flax also had no great success, and the produce of hops and tobacco was less than middling. The fruit was only partially plentiful, and nothing particular in quality; as a proof that, in general, even in this province, the harvest was but middling, it appears that the exportation of corn from the rich corn country of Julich to the poorer mountain districts began in the month of November, consequently earlier than usual. On the whole, the late corn harvest throughout the entire kingdom of Prussia, whether as regards quantity or quality, must be reckoned amongst the middling harvests. As the potato crop, in consequence of a like failure, did not suffice, less grain than usual has been brought to market in most places, and therefore as large a quantity as in good corn years will not be disposable for exportation by sea.

Extract of Despatch from Sir E. Disbrowe, dated the Hague, Jan. 28, 1842.

I NOW beg leave to inclose an account of grain grown in the Netherlands in the year 1841.

With regard to tobacco, I have to state that it averages about four thousand (4,000) tons per annum. It is chiefly grown round Amersfort, Rhenen, &c. The greater part goes to Hamburg, where it is mixed with Havannah, and unshipped in its additional state for this and other markets.

According to the most particular inquiries, the following is the result of the last year's grain crop in the kingdom of the Netherlands:—

	Lasts.		Imperial Quarters.
Wheat	60,000	= about	645,000
Rye	50,000		537,500
Barley	30,000		322,500
Oats	32,000		344,000
Beans	8,000		86,000
Peas	6,000		64,500
Buck wheat	18,000		193,500

Rotterdam, Jan. 16, 1842.

No. 33.

Extract of Dispatch from Her Majesty's Minister at Turin, dated Jan. 29, 1842.

I AM now enabled to lay before your Lordship the following details with regard to the points specified in Lord Canning's circular dispatch.

Before entering at length upon these subjects, I must first place before your Lordship the relative proportions between the measures of England and Sardinia, which are used in this report, and according to which the various calculations have been made.

Two species of dry measures are used in the Sardinian calculations—

FRENCH - - { Metric Quintals, and Hectolitres.

These measures I have throughout reduced into English quarters. I calculate the metric quintal as equal to 1*cwt.* 3*qr.* 24*lbs.* 8*oz.* English.

The hectolitre is 100 litres, and 290 litres are equal to 1 English quarter.

The Statistical Commission in this country having only been a short time in activity, it has not been possible to furnish as complete an answer to the points referred to in Lord Canning's dispatch as would have been desired; but I trust that the information which I have now the honour to transmit to your Lordship may in part satisfy the objects Her Majesty's Government have in view; and, as the details are collected from the official documents of the Commission, their correctness, as far they go, may, I believe, be generally reckoned upon.

To form a proximate idea of the agricultural productions of this country, a calculation of the annual consumption of indigenous primary articles will be useful.

It is calculated that each inhabitant of the country, upon an average, consumes yearly $4\frac{1}{2}$ hectolitres, = $1\frac{1}{2}\frac{6}{9}$ English quarters of farinaceous food.

The inhabitants of the towns, and the richer classes of persons residing in the country, consume less, owing to their greater use of meat, fruits, and garden productions. A reduction, therefore, of $\frac{1}{2}$ a hectolitre, = $\frac{5}{2}\frac{}{9}$ English quarters, has to be made, which will reduce the average upon the whole population of the Continental States of Piedmont to 4 hectolitres, = $1\frac{1}{2}\frac{1}{9}$ English quarters.

The Census of 1839, which is the most recent, gives a population of 4,125,725 souls, which, according to the average of four hectolitres per head, would make the quantity of farinaceous food required yearly amount to 16,502,900 hectolitres, = 5,672,871$\frac{7}{8}$ English quarters.

From the above calculations a further reduction is, however, necessary, from two causes; the first, the great consumption of fish used by the population on the sea-coast, amounting to about 600,000 souls; and, secondly, to the diminished proportion of farinaceous food used by the inhabitants of those provinces in which wine is drunk at each meal,—a great difference in this respect having been observed between the population of the wine-growing districts and that of the plains, where the peasants have little or no wine at their disposal. From these reasons about 2,000,000 of hectolitres have to be taken off, leaving about 14,000,000 hectolitres, = 4,812,500 English quarters, of farinaceous food for the yearly consumption of the whole population of the Continental States of Piedmont.

In the towns wheat is almost solely used. The inhabitants of the plains and low hills of Piedmont consume at least as much Indian corn and rye as wheat. In the Alpine valleys wheat is an article of luxury, and Indian corn, potatoes, rye, and buck-wheat are the only articles of food used by the great majority of the inhabitants. In the Apennines and the hills of Montperral chestnuts form an important article of consumption; and, lastly, rice, the production of the provinces of Verceil, Novara, and Vigirano, of which about 400,000 hectolitres, = 137,500 English quarters are consumed in the country.

The following Table, adopting the above calculations, will show in detail the amount of the several quantities of farinaceous food consumed in the Continental States of the King of Sardinia :—

	Hectolitres.		English Quarters
Wheat - - -	6,500,000	=	2,234,375
Indian Corn - -	4,500,000	,,	1,546,875
Rye - - -	1,000,000	,,	343,750
Chestnuts - -	1,000,000	,,	343,750
Beans, Buck-wheat, Barley, Rice -	1,000,000	,,	343,750
Total -	14,000,000	,,	4,812,500

The Continental States of the Kingdom of Sardinia do not, as it appears, from the returns, produce a sufficient quantity of farinaceous food for the wants of the population.

During the period from 1831 to 1840, there was imported into Sardinia, of

	Hectolitres.		English Quarters.
Wheat - - -	6,611,662	=	2,272,758
Indian Corn and other Grain	1,846,132	,,	634,607
Total	8,457,794	,,	2,907,365

During the same period there was exported the productions of Sardinia, as well of Foreign Growth, from the warehouses of the Custom House, of

	Hectolitres.		English Quarters.
Wheat - - -	1,756,287	=	603,723
Indian Corn and other Grain	467,402	,,	160,669
Total	2,223,689	,,	764,392

The excess of importation over exportation for the above-mentioned time, is therefore of

	Hectolitres.		English Quarters.
Wheat - - -	5,855,375	=	2,012,785
Indian Corn and other Grain	1,378,730	,,	473,938
Total - -	7,234,105	,,	2,486,723

The average importation therefore of Foreign Grain may be calculated as follows, of

	Hectolitres.		English Quarters.
Wheat - - - -	585,537	=	201,278
Indian Corn and other Grain	137,873	,,	47,393
Total - - -	723,410	,,	248,671

The quantity of rice yearly exported from the Continental States of Sardinia, may be calculated as amounting to about

Hectolitres.		English Quarters.
300,000	=	103,125

No proximate calculation can be made as to the quantity of oats consumed by horses in Sardinia; but the number of these animals being small in proportion to other countries north of the Alps, oxen and cows being generally used for agricultural purposes. The Continental States of Sardinia produce sufficient for the supply, except in bad years, when the deficiency is made up by importation from Lombardy and the Romagna.

	Hectolitres.		English Quarters.
About - - -	500,000	=	171,875

Barley is greatly consumed for the feeding of swine.

The farinaceous parts of Genoa, which have considerable reputation, employ from 20,000 to 25,000 hectolitres, = 6875 to 8593 quarters of wheat, giving a return in money of from 300,000 to 400,000 francs, = 1200*l.* to 1600*l.*

Beer is made in the country, but in small quantities, and the brewers mostly import a large proportion of the ingredients necessary.

From the above details, therefore, the average yearly production of grain in the continental States of Sardinia may be reckoned under:—

	Hectolitres.		English Quarters.
Wheat - - -	7,300,000	=	2,509,375
Indian Corn - -	4,700,000	,,	1,615,625
Barley - - -	1,300,000	,,	446,875
Chestnuts - - -	1,000,000	,,	343,750
Rice and other Grains -	1,200,000	,,	412,500
Total - -	15,500,000	,,	5,328,125

From the above amount is, however, to be deducted for seed, for the various kinds of grains, about 1,830,000 hectolitres, = 629,062 English Quarters, leaving for the consumption of the population 13,670,000 hectolitres, = 4,696,562 English Quarters; thus making the average yearly production of Sardinia to fall short by about 330,000 hectolitres, =113,437 English Quarters, which are required to supply the calculated yearly consumption of farinaceous food in the continental States by His Sardinian Majesty.

Beetroot is very little cultivated in the continental States of Sardinia. A few years ago, it was attempted to grow beetroot for the purpose of making sugar; but the sugar thus produced coming dearer than West India sugars, the cultivation of beetroot for this object has entirely ceased.

The quantity of hemp produced in the continental States of Sardinia represent a yearly value of about 10,000,000 of francs, = 400,000*l.* sterling, but the produce of the country is not sufficient for its wants, or for those of the Naval Arsenal at Genoa.

What flax is grown in Piedmont is consumed in the country.

Tobacco being a Royal monopoly, the cultivation of this plant is strictly prohibited: a small quantity is, however, grown on the island of Sardinia, but to what amount, I have not been able to learn.

I have now endeavoured to reply, as correctly as was in my power, to the questions which your Lordship has addressed to me; and I hope that the details which I have the honour to forward may, in some measure, answer the objects which Her Majesty's Government have in view. I must, however, request that your Lordship will excuse any omissions that may be found in this Report, and ascribe them to the difficulty of obtaining correct information where only imperfect official Returns exist.

Prices of Flour in the Montreal Market.

16 July. The price of Flour has not varied much, but the market is decidedly flatter.

American and Canadian fine Flour may be quoted at 29*s.* to 30*s.* the barrel, but the sales are unimportant.

17 Septr. The market still continues dull, and there are but few transactions. Holders are willing to sell at 33*s.* 9*d.*, which may be quoted as the full market rate.

Sales of fine American Flour were made at 33*s.* 9*d.*, although a price of 35*s.* per barrel is demanded for very fine brands. Stocks are getting higher, and the receipts are falling off.

The Exports of Flour and Wheat from Canada to Great Britain, in 1841, were as follows:—

	Flour.	Wheat.
Exports from Quebec . .	150,976 barrels.	149,584 bushels.
Export from Montreal . .	179,267 „	386,302 „
Total . .	330,243	535,885

Exports of Beef, Flour, and Pork, from the Ports of Quebec and Montreal to the Eastern Provinces and to the West Indies, in 1841, viz.:—

Flour . . .	21,231 „	6,807 „
Pork . . .	17,707 „	14,551 „

Total.—Beef, 4,689 barrels; Flour, 28,038 barrels; Pork, 32,158 barrels.

Note.—The crop of 1836 being short, both here and in the United States, what was not purchased for exportation to that country was required for home consumption, and prices in consequence ruled very high. Upon the coming in of the abundant crop of 1837, they receded to the proportionate value for the English markets.

The principal part of the wheat and flour received from Ohio comes through the Ohio Canal, which connects the Ohio River with Lake Erie, terminating at Cleveland. Chilichote, about 280 miles from Cleveland, is the most southern point from which produce is brought to the Canada markets; all beyond that usually finds its way to New Orleans. The cost of Wheat and Flour from Chilichote to Montreal is nearly as follows, viz.:—

Cost, delivered at Montreal, of 100 bushels of Wheat, purchased at Ohio at 50 cents per bushel, without taking any interest into account. Funds are generally provided by drawing on New York, in pursuance of letters of credit from the banks here. The price of Flour in Montreal in the month of October, for the last six years, has ruled readily as follows, viz. :—

October, 1835 - -	26*s.* 3*d.* — 28*s.* 9*d.*	per barrel.
—— 1836 - -	40*s.* — 41*s.* 3*d.*	„

—— 1840 - -	28*s.* — 30*s.*	„

The present price of Wheat (March, 1841).

At Chilichote, Ohio -	2*s.* 6*d.*	per bushel	(20*s.* per quarter.)
— Cleveland, ditto -	3*s.* 6*d.*	„	(28*s.* „)
— Gananogue, Canada	4*s.* 6*d.*	„	(36*s.* „)

Flour in Montreal - -	27*s.* 6*d.* per barrel.
Wheat, ditto - -	5*s.* 6*d.* per bushel.

These prices just pay the persons engaged, the freight, commission, grinding, &c., &c., but no chance to make a profit, unless an advance takes place, and if it should fall in Montreal, there would be a loss.

4.—Statement from Mr. Carfrae, Collector of Customs, Toronto.

The following statement of the expense of forwarding Wheat and Flour from hence to Montreal, I have received from Mr. Thorne, and from the "forwarders." I have taken it at the summer rates. The charges are all increased when forwarded late in the fall; but as only a small portion is sent down at that period, I have taken no notice of it.

Charges on 100 bushels of Wheat from Toronto to Montreal.

Lake freight - -	per bushel	$4\frac{1}{2}d.$
River ditto - -	,,	$7\frac{1}{2}d.$
Storage and shipping -	,,	$3d.$
Insurance - - -	,,	$0\frac{1}{2}d.$
100 bushels at $1s.\ 3\frac{1}{2}d.$	is	£6 9 2

Supposing 100 bushels of Wheat to make 23 barrels of flour, the charge will be,—

Lake freight - -	per barrel	$1s.\ 0d.$
River ditto - -	,,	$2s.\ 0d.$
Insurance - -	,,	$0s.\ 2d.$
Storage - -	,,	$0s.\ 4d.$
23 barrels at $3s.\ 6d.$	is	4 0 6
		£2 8 8

Thus leaving a balance in favour of Flour of £2 8 8 upon every 100 bushel of Wheat. The bean and shorts cover the expense of barrelling.

The average price of Wheat has been $4s.\ 0\frac{1}{2}d.$, and of Flour $21s.\ 3d.$

Custom-House, Toronto, 23rd March, 1841.

5.—The following is a Statement of the Average Prices of Wheat and Flour in Montreal.

	Wheat.	Flour.
1837,	$6s.\ 0d.$ — $8s.\ 0d.$ per bushel	$40s.\ 0d.$ — $43s.\ 9d.$ per barrel.
1838,	$9s.\ 0d.$ — $5s.\ 0d.$,,	$50s.\ 0d.$ — $33s.\ 9d.$,,
1839,	$8s.\ 0d.$ — $7s.\ 0d.$,,	$40s.\ 0d.$ — $35s.\ 0d.$,,
1840,	$5s.\ 0d.$ — $6s.\ 6d.$,,	$33s.\ 9d.$ — $26s.\ 3d.$,,

In 1837 the wheat crop was a failure throughout the United States, and partially so in Upper Canada; and there were large importations of grain from England.

In 1838 the importations were still larger, from the same cause; therefore these years must be considered as anomalous in relation to the trade springing directly from the Country or States adjoining, and the effect must also have been felt in the year following.

6.—Extract of a Letter from Chicago, dated 6th March, 1841.

"It is only four years since the first shipment of Wheat was made on Lake Michigan. In 1840, 800,000 bushels (in Wheat and Flour) were shipped. This year there will not be more than half that quantity, owing to the destruction of the harvest by rust. The export next year, if the crop is good, will exceed a million of bushels. The average price paid to the farmer has been $2s.\ 6d.$ The downfall of American stocks, and the "tinkering" of currency by 26 States, and unwise Legislation here, have effectually put a stop to the Illinois and Michigan Canal, now more than half completed. It is a sad blow to this place, and blasts the hopes of many persons.

Sir, Downing-street, 2 March 1842.

No. 1. Despatch from Lord Stanley to the Right Hon. Sir Charles Bagot, 2 March 1842.

In the anxious consideration which it has been the duty of Her Majesty's Government to give to the important and complicated question of the importation of corn into this country, they have, of course, not overlooked the interest which is felt in this question by the province of Canada, and which has been expressed in Memorials from the legislative body, and from other parties, addressed to Her Majesty and the Legislature of this country, and although in present circumstances Her Majesty's Government have not felt themselves justified in recommending to Parliament a compliance with the general request of the various memorialists, that Canadian corn and flour should be imported at a nominal duty into the United Kingdom, I trust that the steps which we have taken, and the grounds upon which we have declined to advance further in the same direction, will convince the people of Canada that the course which we have pursued has been dictated by no unfriendly feeling towards the interests of Canada, and especially of Canadian agriculture.

The steps which have been taken, so far as they go, have been decidedly in favour of those interests. By the law, as it has hitherto stood, Canadian wheat and wheat flour have been admissible into Great Britain at a rate of duty estimated at 5*s.* per quarter, until the price in the English market reached 67*s.*, at which amount the duty fell to 6*d.* By the Bill which is now before Parliament, the duty of 5*s.* is leviable only while the price is below 55*s.*, and at 58*s.* falls to 1 s. only. But in addition to this reduction in the amount of price at which the lower duty becomes payable, it is proposed to take off the restriction which has hitherto been imposed upon the importation of Canadian flour into Ireland, and thus to open a new market to that which may justly be considered as one of the manufactures of Canada.

In the measures which they have adopted, not without the most anxious attention to the various interests involved, Her Majesty's Government have been desirous, while they gave a general facility of admission to the British market, of disturbing as little as possible the relative advantages possessed by the colonial and foreign suppliers of that market. In this sense, while they have continued to the Channel Islands the facilities which they have heretofore enjoyed, of a free importation of their own produce (limited as it necessarily is in extent) into Great Britain, together with the means which they at present enjoy, of having their own supplies furnished from the neighbouring and cheaper market, they have not felt themselves called upon to remove from the Isle of Man the restrictions which have been recently imposed on that island, as to its foreign imports, while it possesses the advantages of an unrestricted commerce with Great Britain. The same principle has guided Her Majesty's Government in the course which they have felt it their duty to pursue with regard to Canada.

It is impossible to be more fully convinced than are the Members of Her Majesty's Government of the importance to the interests, both of the colony and of the mother country, of maintaining between the two the most unrestricted freedom of commercial intercourse. Even a cursory examination of facts and figures must demonstrate the value to be attached in a commercial, and much more in a moral and political, point of view to the continuance and improvement of that rapidly-increasing intercourse; and Her Majesty's Government would have had much less difficulty in approaching the question of an unrestricted admission of Canadian wheat and flour into the British markets, if it had been in their power to look at that question as one of intercourse between Great Britain and her most important colony, and independent of all considerations of foreign trade. But it was impossible for Her Majesty's Government so to regard it,—it was impossible that they should not advert to the geographical position of Canada, in reference to the great corn-growing States of the West of America,—it was impossible not to see that, however desirable it might be even to encourage the transit through Canada of the produce of those States, with the advantage to Canada of any manufacturing process which it might undergo in the transit, a relaxation of duty to the extent of free, or nearly free, admission would have been a relaxation not limited, as in this case it ought to be, to the produce of a British colony.

It is true that the Imperial Parliament, at the time that they admitted Canadian produce at a nominal duty, might constitutionally have imposed a corresponding duty upon the import of American wheat into Canada, and might thus have placed a check upon the undue influx of foreign, under the name of Canadian, produce; but looking back to the proceedings of the last Session of the Legislature of Canada, I find that such an impost was considered, and ultimately rejected; and whatever might be the view taken by Her Majesty's Government under a different state of circumstances, in which a tax imposed by Colonial authority, and of course receivable into the Colonial Treasury, upon wheat imported from the United States might secure the agriculturists of England against the competition of foreign growers, they have been unwilling to impose such a tax, by the authority of Parliament, upon a raw article which might be required for home consumption in Canada, and, in the absence of such a tax, have felt it impossible to propose to Parliament a further reduction than that which they have submitted in favour of wheat and wheat flour shipped from the ports of Canada.

I have to request that you will take an early opportunity, after the assembling of the Provincial Parliament, of laying before them so much of this despatch as may put them fully in possession of the principles on which Her Majesty's Government have proceeded in reference to wheat and flour imported from Canada, in the general consideration which it has been their duty to give, in the most impartial spirit, and with an earnest desire to consult and conciliate all conflicting interests, to the amendment of the laws regulating the importation of corn into the British Islands.

My Lord, Government House, Kingston, 14 April 1842.

I HAVE the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your Lordship's despatch of the 2d ultimo (No. 83), explaining the course which Her Majesty's Government have felt it their duty to adopt with reference to Canadian produce, in the measures which they have submitted to the Imperial Legislature for an alteration of the laws affecting the importation of corn into the United Kingdom. No. 3. Despatch from the Right Hon. Sir Charles Bagot to Lord Stanley, 11 November 1842.

THE Wheat Duty Bill I have reserved for the signification of Her Majesty, because its provisions are mainly based, as its preamble declares, upon an anticipation that the Imperial Parliament may be induced to alter the law with regard to the duty on Canadian wheat and wheat flour imported into the United Kingdom. I shall have occasion shortly to address your Lordship further upon this important subject, and to transmit to you such information as may assist Her Majesty's Government in forming an opinion upon it.

Enclosure in No. 3.

(No. 134.)

AN ACT to impose a Duty upon FOREIGN WHEAT imported into this Province.

WHEREAS the free introduction of wheat and wheat-flour into the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland from this Province would, by affording a market for these articles at all times certain and available, promote essentially the agricultural and commercial interests of Canada: And whereas foreign wheat is at present admitted free of duty into Canada: And whereas the intention of the laws of the United Kingdom aforesaid is to preserve the home market for Her Majesty's subjects by certain restrictions, and by the imposition of duties: And whereas the introduction of foreign wheat into the United Kingdom free of duty, after the introduction of the same into Canada free of duty, would be in manifest violation of the said intention of the laws of the said United Kingdom: And whereas the chief objection to the free admission of wheat and wheat-flour into the said United Kingdom from Canada arises from the free admission of foreign wheat into Canada: And whereas a certain despatch, addressed to the Governor of this Province by Her Majesty's Secretary of State for the Colonies, dated the Second day of March last, a copy whereof has been laid by his Excellency's command before the Legislature of this Province, affords the strongest ground for the confident belief and expectation that, upon the imposition of a duty upon foreign wheat imported into this Province, Her Majesty will be graciously pleased to recommend to Parliament the removal or reduction of the duties on wheat and flour imported into the said United Kingdom from Canada: Be it therefore enacted, by The Queen's most Excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Legislative Council and of the Legislative Assembly of the Province of Canada, constituted and assembled by virtue of and under the authority of an Act passed in the Parliament of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, and intituled, "An Act to re-unite the Provinces of Upper and Lower Canada, and for the Government of Canada," and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same, That from and after the Fifth day of July next, there shall be raised, levied, collected and paid to Her Majesty, to and for the public uses of this Province, upon all wheat imported into this Province, except from the said United Kingdom, or any of Her Majesty's Possessions, and being the growth and produce thereof, a duty of Three shillings sterling money of Great Britain, for each imperial quarter of such wheat, and so in proportion for any greater or less quantity thereof. Encl. in No. 3.

And be it enacted, That foreign wheat imported by sea into this Province, for the use of the fisheries, shall be free of duty, and subject to the regulations expressed and enacted in regard to certain articles specified in the Eighth section of the Act of Parliament of the said United Kingdom, passed in the last Session of the said Parliament, and intituled, "An Act to amend the Laws for the Regulation of the Trade of the British Possessions Abroad."

And be it enacted, That the duties imposed by this Act shall be levied, recovered and received, under the same regulations, and in the same coins, to be received at the same rates, and according to the same weights and measures, and under the same penalties, to be enforced and applied in the same manner, and with the same restrictions and regulations for ensuring the payment or punishing the evasion thereof, as the duties imposed in and by the said Act, intituled, "An Act to amend the Laws for the Regulation of the British Possessions Abroad."

And be it enacted, That all sums which shall arise from the duty hereby imposed shall be paid over, by the officers receiving the same, to Her Majesty's Receiver-General for this Province and shall form part of the Consolidated Revenue Fund thereof, and shall, as shall also all fines, penalties and confiscations incurred under this Act, be accounted for to Her Majesty, Her heirs and successors, through the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury for the time being, in such manner and form as Her Majesty, Her heirs and successors, shall direct.

I do hereby certify the above to be a true copy of a Bill passed by the Legislative Council and Legislative Assembly of the Province of Canada, in the second Session of the first Provincial Parliament, and reserved for the signification of Her Majesty's pleasure, by his Excellency the Governor-General, on Wednesday, the Twelfth day of October, One thousand eight hundred and Forty-two.

Sir, Downing-street, 1 February 1843.

No. 4. Despatch from Lord Stanley to the Right Hon. Sir Charles Bagot, 1 February 1843.

YOUR despatch of the 11th November last (No. 234), enclosing authenticated copies of the Acts passed by the Legislature of Canada during its last Session, and assented to by you in Her Majesty's name; together with copies of two Bills reserved for the signification of Her Majesty's pleasure, intimated your intention of transmitting by the next mail an explanation of the grounds of those measures. Especially with regard to the Wheat Duty Bill, you expressed your intention intention of transmitting to me such information as might assist Her Majesty's Government in forming an opinion upon it.

I am well aware that, since the date of that despatch, the state of your health has furnished but too conclusive an impediment to your execution of the purpose which you thus announced to me; but as the time within which Her Majesty's decision on these laws ought to be pronounced is rapidly passing away; and as it is scarcely possible for me to proceed to that decision, unaided by the information which you have led me to expect; I would suggest to you that, if the state of your health should still prevent, as I fear it will prevent, the fulfilment of your intention, you should request the Executive Council of Canada to enter upon the consideration of the subject, and to furnish me with such information as to these enactments as may assist Her Majesty's Government in forming their decision. I would particularly direct your attention, in reference to the Wheat Duty Bill, to the exemption contained in the second clause, and request that you will consider how far that exemption might facilitate the commission of frauds upon the revenue; and especially report what security may be taken that, under it, foreign wheat may not be landed, converted into flour, and fraudulently re-shipped for importation, free of duty, into the United Kingdom.

No. 5.
Despatch from the Right Hon. Sir Charles Bagot to Lord Stanley, 21 February 1842.

My Lord, Government House, Kingston, 21 February 1842.

I HAVE the honour to transmit to your Lordship herewith Petitions from the Board of Trade of Montreal to the Throne, and to the two Houses of the Imperial Parliament, praying the repeal of the duties now levied on the importation into the United Kingdom of certain articles of provision, the produce of Canada. I also enclose, for your Lordship's information, a copy of the Memorial to myself, which accompanied these Petitions, and of the Answer which I returned to it.

I have to request that your Lordship would lay at the foot of the Throne the Address to Her Majesty, and would intrust to Members of the Houses of Lords and Commons the Petitions addressed to those Houses respectively.

I have, &c.

Enclosure 1, in No. 5.

To The QUEEN's most Excellent Majesty in Council.

The PETITION of the undersigned Merchants of Montreal, in Canada.

Encl. 1, in No. 5.

Humbly sheweth,

THAT the rapid increase of the trade and agriculture of Canada is in great danger of receiving a check from the want of a market for the produce of her soil.

That it is of the highest importance that the agricultural interests of Canada be fostered with the greatest care, as giving a means of subsistence to a numerous and rapidly-growing population, as well as of affording the best encouragement to the emigrant from the British Isles.

That the duties hitherto imposed on wheat and flour, although apparently moderate, act injuriously, inasmuch as, from the great distance from which those articles are transported, the remuneration afforded the Canadian farmer is not sufficient to allow even of the smallest impost: the duties on the coarser grains are almost prohibitory; while on beef, pork, butter, lard and cheese, they are completely so.

That the expense of inland transport, and freight across the Atlantic, is greater, in proportion to the produce of the soil in Canada, than are the rent and taxes paid by the farmer in Great Britain to the produce of the soil there; wherefore your Petitioners submit he is already sufficiently protected.

That the inhabitants of Canada, a British province, produce in abundance those articles which the mother country particularly requires, and take in return almost exclusively articles of British manufacture; therefore their produce ought to be regarded with especial favour.

Your

Your Petitioners would also respectfully suggest, that as the trade of Canada is carried on exclusively in British ships, the prosperity of that province is intimately connected with the maritime interests of the empire.

Wherefore your Petitioners most humbly pray, that your most Gracious Majesty will be pleased to recommend to Parliament the repeal of all duties now levied in the United Kingdom upon beef, pork, cheese, butter and lard, as well as upon wheat, rye, Indian corn, barley, oats, buck-wheat, beans, peas, and other grain, and the flour or meal made therefrom, such being imported from Canada.

And as in duty bound your Petitioners will ever pray.

Montreal, 1 February 1842. (Here follow the signatures of 159 persons.)

Enclosure 2, in No. 5.

To his Excellency the Right honourable Sir Charles Bagot, G. C. B., Governor-General, &c. &c. &c.

The MEMORIAL of the Board of Trade of the City of Montreal,

Respectfully sheweth,

THAT your Memorialists, considering it would be highly advantageous to the prosperity of Canada if the produce of its soil were allowed to be imported into the United Kingdom free from duty, have joined their fellow-citizens in a Petition to Her most Gracious Majesty and both Houses of Parliament, to grant the privilege prayed for. Encl. 2, in No. 5.

That your Excellency's expression of your desire to have the prayer of their Petition granted would, no doubt, have great weight with the Legislature of the empire.

Wherefore your Memorialists respectfully pray your Excellency to forward the same, accompanied by such remarks as to your Excellency may seem fit.

And as in duty bound your Memorialists will ever pray.

ANSWER.

Gentlemen,

I SHALL lose no time in transmitting to the Secretary of State the Petitions which you have addressed to Her Majesty and the two Houses of Parliament, praying the repeal of the duties on certain provisions, the produce of Canada, on importation into the United Kingdom. I feel quite confident that this Petition, affecting as it does to so great an extent the interests of this Province, will receive an attentive and respectful consideration from Her Majesty's Government. No. 6. Despatch from Lord Stanley to the Right Hon. Sir Charles Bagot, 3 April 1842.

I HAVE received your despatch (No. 39) of the 21st February, enclosing Petitions to the Queen and to the two Houses of Parliament from the Board of Trade of Montreal, praying the repeal of the duties now levied on the importation into the United Kingdom of certain articles of Canadian produce.

I have to instruct you to inform the Petitioners, that I have had the honour to lay their Petition to the Queen before Her Majesty, and that Her Majesty was pleased to receive it very graciously, and to direct it to be referred for the consideration of the Lords of the Committee of Her Privy Council for Trade.

The Petition to the House of Lords will be intrusted to the Earl of Ripon for presentation; that to the House of Commons will be presented by myself.

Despatch from the Right Hon. Sir Charles Bagot to Lord Stanley, 28 April 1842.

My Lord, Government House, Kingston, 28 April 1842.

I HAVE the honour to transmit to your Lordship herewith, in order that it may be laid at the foot of the Throne, a Petition from the merchants, millers, agriculturists, and others of the Home District of the late Province of Upper Canada, praying for the admission into the United Kingdom, duty free, of Canadian corn, and the imposition of the foreign duty upon American corn upon its importation into Canada.

This Petition is very numerously signed, and was presented to me on my late visit to Toronto. Although I fear that it will arrive too late to receive the consideration of Her Majesty's Government before the measures now before the Imperial Parliament for the alteration of the Corn Laws shall have become law, I have not felt myself at liberty to refuse the request of the Petitioners, that it might be transmitted to your Lordship.

I have, &c.

Enclosure in No. 7.

To Her most Gracious Majesty VICTORIA, Queen of Great Britain and Ireland.

The PETITION of sundry Merchants, Millers, Agriculturists and others.

May it please your Majesty,

Encl. in No. 7.

WE, your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, merchants, millers, and other inhabitants of the Home District, in the Province of Canada, humbly beg to represent to your Majesty, that the agricultural interests of this province are frequently subjected to great depression, from the impossibility of procuring for the surplus grain, and other articles of provision which form the staples of our trade, such prices as will repay the labour and expense necessary for their production.

If these recurrences, so severely felt by your Majesty's Canadian subjects, were solely attributable to the peace and abundance which for many past years have prevailed throughout the greater part of the civilized world, we should be compelled to make up our minds to yield to the pressure of circumstances, and to take our chance of those changes which must at intervals be produced by the fluctuation of seasons, and by the operation of other causes equally uncertain; but we persuade ourselves that the evils which we feel admit of a remedy, through your Majesty's gracious interposition, and without injury to any of those great interests which it is the anxious care of your Majesty to protect.

The cultivation of wheat is undoubtedly the object to which, more than any other, your Majesty's subjects inhabiting this fertile region are destined to devote their exertions. The climate and the soil are alike favourable to its growth; the labour which it requires furnished ready employment, of the most desirable kind, to the multitudes which emigrate annually from the British islands; and while in each year it converts thousands of acres of barren wilderness into fertile fields, it supplies to a numerous, intelligent and loyal people that occupation which is of all others the most favourable to virtue and happiness, and to that manly independence of character which is necessary to the preservation of rational freedom.

Whenever a period occurs in which the farmer can obtain a fair price for this commodity, prosperity is every where visible; he is encouraged to extend the sphere of his industry by reclaiming larger tracts from the wilderness; the lands of the province immediately rise in value; our fellow-subjects from Europe are led to employ their capital in a pursuit which yields them an adequate profit; an increased consumption of British goods produces a revival of trade beneficial alike to the parent state and to the colony; an augmented revenue affords us the means of prosecuting those improvements in our roads and inland navigation to which the inhabitants of Upper Canada are as much tempted, by the natural advantages held up by a kind Providence to their view, as any people that can be named.

We should be ungrateful, indeed, if we doubted for a moment that it is the anxious wish of your Majesty, and of those who, under your Majesty, are intrusted with the powers of Government, to give to this province, of which the value is now well known, the earliest and most ample enjoyment of such advantages as our position in the empire can be made to confer. Your Majesty's royal predecessors have constantly given proofs that the welfare of Canada was an object earnestly desired by them; and at the very commencement of a reign, which we fervently pray may be long and glorious, it has been our happiness to recognize, in the powerful exertion promptly made for our protection in the liberal arrangement of the Government, which has given to the British American Colonies the advantage of a direct intercourse with England with the aid of steam, and in the reduction of the rate of postage (an amount little more than nominal), the most convincing assurance that we shall experience under your Majesty's rule no diminution of that fostering care under which we have hitherto flourished.

We have observed the discussions which have taken place in Great Britain of late years upon the important and interesting question of the Corn Laws; and, however difficult it may be to reconcile the opinions which are entertained respecting them, it is yet evident that no class of persons endeavours to vindicate restriction upon the trade in grain on any othe footing than that of absolute necessity.

But we can scarcely believe it possible that the most zealous defender of the Corn Laws, if he will apply his mind fairly to the subject, can imagine that the regulation, to which we now earnestly entreat your Majesty's attention, can be maintained in its application to this province by any such argument.

As the law now stands, the average price of grain in England is such as generally subjects the wheat of this country to a duty of Five shillings per quarter upon importation. It can hardly be supposed that such a duty can form a real and substantial protection to the English farmer; and yet it is sufficient to make the article of wheat in general a precarious and hazardous remittance from this country; and it disables the merchant from giving the price for it which is necessary for repaying to the farmer the cost of its production.

If it be apprehended that, under such encouragement, the surplus quantity of grain raised in the Canadas and exported to England, would interfere inconveniently with the English agriculturist, we are convinced that a slight examination of the subject will show the apprehension to be unfounded. The quantity of bread required for consumption in England is so immense, that the proportion which this province could furnish for many years to come would be too small to be felt as an injury to any interest; and yet the privilege of a free market for wheat, which would, in fact, supply but a very few days' consumption, would speedily elevate this province to a condition she must otherwise be very long in attaining.

If the ground of alarm should be, that a large quantity of the wheat grown in the United States would find its way through Canada into the British market, and be received free of duty to the prejudice of the home-grower, the answer is, that such an inconvenience may be obviated by collecting in Canada, upon all grain of foreign growth, when it is introduced into that province, the same imperial duty to which such grain floured in Canada is now subjected when imported into Great Britain, or by making the trade subject to such other regulations in that respect as Parliament may deem expedient; and your Majesty may be assured that it would be the disposition of the people of this province to assist, for their own sakes, in carrying into execution strictly, and in good faith, whatever regulations might be prescribed for securing to their own productions a discriminating advantage in the market of the mother country.

We do most earnestly entreat your Majesty, that the experiment may be made of a policy, which is certain to be attended by the following benefits to this rising colony:—It would bring rapidly into cultivation large tracts of wilderness, which will otherwise lie for a much longer period unproductive to the empire. It would enrich the province by a great annual accession of wealth won by patient labour from the soil. It would spread content and habits of industry throughout the land, by holding out a certain and adequate reward for exertion. It would strengthen the ties between the parent state and her colony, by augmenting largely the demand in this country for British goods; and by encouragement which it would hold out to emigration, it would relieve the English landholder, by diminishing the direct burthen of the poor's rates, and the many indirect taxes upon industry which are necessarily occasioned by a multitude of unemployed poor.

When we enumerate among the advantages of a free trade in grain the increased demand for British manufactures, which it would assuredly create, we speak of no doubtful or unimportant benefit; for the official information in possession of your Majesty's Government will show, that even at this early period, and under present circumstances, the provinces of Canada alone purchase a larger amount of British manufactures, and furnish employment to a much greater number of British ships, than several of the most populous kingdoms in Europe combined.

We shall anxiously hope to find that no class of your Majesty's subjects will be opposed to a relaxation which we sincerely believe would bring advantage to many, and injury to none; and, assuring ourselves of your Majesty's earnest desire to advance the welfare of the Canadas, and to accede to the reasonable wishes of Her people, we shall confidently look for a favourable answer to our prayer through your Majesty's most gracious interposition.

We beg to renew on this occasion our assurances of entire devotion to your Majesty's Person and Government.

Note.—The foregoing Return will be liable to alteration (although not to any considerable extent), when the Accounts of the Year 1842 shall have been finally usted.
On an examination of this Account, it will be found that in some instances the Quantity of Wheat entered for Home Consumption in a particular Week, computed he rate of Duty then in operation, will not produce a sum corresponding precisely with the Amount of Duty which is stated to have been received in that
k. The disagreement in such cases is ascribable to the postponement of Entries, the abatement of Duty on Quantities damaged, and other causes connected h the practical regulations of the Custom House.

Inspector-General's Office, Custom House, London, 4 March 1843.

WILLIAM IRVING.

* Previously to 1833, the Monthly Returns of the Importation and Consumption of Foreign and Colonial Corn were collected together in annual periods, commencing on 1st January and terminating on 31st December. From 1833, downwards, they have been made up, like the other Accounts of this department, in periods commencing on 6th January in each year, and terminating on 5th January in the year succeeding. This circumstance is necessary to be noted, inasmuch as it explains why the aggregate Imports and Consumption of the several years, from 1828 to 1832 inclusive, as exhibited in the present Statement, will be found to differ to a small extent from the quantities shown in other Accounts, which have been compiled, not, as in this case, from special Monthly Returns of the Corn Trade, but from the ordinary records of the general commerce of the country.

Note.—The Returns for 1842 will be liable to alteration (although not to any considerable extent) when the Accounts of that year shall have been finally adjusted.

Inspector-General's Office, Custom-House, London, 4 March 1843.

William Irving.

Extracts of a Despatch from the Right hon. Sir Charles Bagot to Lord Stanley, 27 January 1843.

EXTRACTS of a DESPATCH from the Right honourable Sir Charles Bagot, G.C.B., to Lord Stanley, dated Government House, Kingston, 27 January 1843.

I HAVE the honour herewith to transmit a Petition addressed to Her Majesty by the Board of Trade at Quebec, praying that the Royal Assent may be withheld from the Bill passed in the last session of the Canadian Legislature, by which a duty was imposed on the importation of foreign wheat into Canada, until the Imperial Parliament shall have passed a law authorizing the free admission into the United Kingdom of all grain and flour exported from this province.

As the preamble of this Bill asserts, and the proceedings in both Houses attest, this measure was passed under the expectation, that if the Canadian Legislature consented to lay a tax upon American produce, the British Government would be willing to recommend to the Imperial Legislature to remove all duty upon grain and flour received from Canadian ports.

To this anticipation they were led by the statements made by Ministers in the House of Commons during the discussions upon the Corn Laws and the Colonial Customs Duties Bill, and by your Lordship's despatches upon this subject, particularly that of the 2d March 1842, No. 83.

For Lord Stanley's Despatch, 2 March 1842, No. 83, vide Papers ordered by the House of Commons to be printed, 13 Feb. 1843, No 18, p. 3.

It is a boon for which the producers and merchants of this province have long sought, and they hoped that when a change was made in the duty in England on foreign produce, they might, as far as Canadian produce was concerned, look to such an amount of favour as would keep undisturbed their relation to the foreign producer.

When they found that the chief obstacle to such an arrangement was the free admission of American produce into the province, they did not delay passing the measure which had been suggested and was deemed necessary to obtain it.

* * * * * * *

The attention which your Lordship and Her Majesty's Government have so lately given to this subject, renders it almost unnecessary for me to offer any observations or arguments upon it; I will, therefore, rather endeavour to supply such information with regard to prices and cost of transport as will enable you to judge whether any injury can arise to British interests from the desired concession.

Herewith I transmit a copy of a Report of a Special Committee of the House of Assembly of last session, upon a free trade with Great Britain in agricultural products. * * * * * * *

The rate of duty which the Canadian Legislature has fixed upon American wheat is that which was originally proposed by the Vice-President of the Board of Trade on the introduction of the Colonial Customs Bill. It is not excessive, nor likely to be burthensome on the Canadian consumer, while it exceeds the average of the duty now payable by Canadian wheat in England.

Encl. 1, in No. 2.

To The Queen's most Excellent Majesty.

The Petition of the President and Council of the Quebec Board of Trade, incorporated by Act of the Legislature of Canada.

Humbly sheweth,

That during the last Session of the Imperial Parliament, a law was passed, imposing a duty of Two shillings per barrel on all foreign flour imported into any of the British possessions in North America, after the Fifth of July next; and that the Legislative Council and Legislative Assembly of this province have since passed an Act, to impose a duty of Three shillings per Imperial quarter on all wheat imported into Canada, after the same date, which Act was reserved for the signification of your Majesty's pleasure thereon.

That hitherto, foreign wheat and flour have been permitted to be imported into this colony free of duty, and that by far the greater part of the flour consumed therein, and exported therefrom, has been so imported, or manufactured from wheat the growth of those parts of the United States bordering on the Great Lakes and Rivers of Canada.

That the transport of such wheat and flour has afforded the chief means of employment to the vessels and craft belonging to your Majesty's subjects on the lakes, rivers and canals of this province, extending more than Three thousand miles above Quebec, as well as to the vessels engaged in the intercolonial trade, and that the whole of such vessels and craft are owned and manned by your Majesty's subjects.

That in the humble opinion of your Majesty's petitioners, the vast improvements made, and now in progress, in the internal communication of the province, would be rendered unproductive and nearly useless, were this trade destroyed or materially interrupted.

That the commercial interests of the province are now depressed and suffering to an unprecedented extent, chiefly in consequence of the measures lately adopted by the Imperial Parliament, withdrawing or greatly limiting that protection which its principal products formerly enjoyed in competing with foreigners in the markets of the mother country and your Majesty's other colonies.

That in consequence of these measures, your Majesty's subjects in this province, from their greater distance from these markets can only now successfully compete with foreigners therein under the most favourable and rare circumstances; and should your Majesty assent to the said Act of the Legislative Council and Assembly of Canada, without at the same time conferring on your Majesty's subjects in this province some countervailing privilege in their trade with other parts of the empire, your Majesty's petitioners firmly believe that the result will be the utter prostration of the trade of the country, and the ruin of those engaged in it.

That it appears from the preamble of the said Act, that it was enacted upon an express assurance by persons representing your Majesty's Government in the Legislature, that some such countervailing privilege would be granted, and that, without such an assurance, it would not have been passed.

Wherefore your Majesty's petitioners humbly pray, that your Majesty may be graciously pleased to withhold the Royal Assent to the said Act, until a law shall have been passed by the Imperial Parliament, authorizing the admission into the United Kingdom and the other colonies, free of duty, of all grain and flour exported from this province.

Encl. 2, in No. 2.

Report of a Special Committee of the Legislative Assembly of Canada, on the subject of a Free Trade with Great Britain in the Agricultural Productions of British North America, and of a Protection to those Productions from the Competition of Foreigners in the Colonial and Home Markets.—Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 10th October 1842.

The Special Committee to which was referred the Petition of the Right honourable the Earl of Mount Cashell and others, Members of the North American Committee of the Colonial Society in London; the Petition of the Municipal Council of the District of Niagara; and the Return to the Address of the House of the 22d September last; with the several Despatches on the subject of the Importation of Wheat and Wheaten Flour, with power to report from time to time, have the honour to Report:—

That they have examined the several documents referred to, and feel gratified to witness the interest manifested by their fellow-subjects in Britain in the prosperity of Canada. (See Appendix, No. 1.)

Originating

Originating any measure relating to the alteration of duties, as recommended by the despatch of Lord Sydenham (see Appendix, No. 2) in the Provincial Assembly, by Bill, subject to the approval of the Imperial Parliament, as pointed out under the provisions of the forty-second clause of the Union Act, would remove the practical inconvenience and uncertainty which attend the practice heretofore adopted by Addresses.

The despatch from Lord Stanley, No. 83, dated 2d March 1842, has also engaged their attentive consideration.

For Lord Stanley's Despatch, 2 March 1842, No. 83, vide Papers ordered by the House of Commons to be printed, 13 Feb. 1843, No. 18, p. 3.

From our peculiar geographical position; from the relative and nearly balanced advantages possessed by the two rival communications with the Atlantic—the St. Lawrence and the Hudson Rivers; from the magnitude of the object and the various interests involved, your Committee have availed themselves of such statistical information as would enable them to comprehend the practical operation of the proposed duty.

First, with regard to the protection of the English grower:—

From the Statement in Appendix, No. 4, it appears that the cost of conveying a barrel of flour from the Welland Canal to any port in the United Kingdom, by way of the St. Lawrence, is 14*s.* 6*d.* It also appears that wheat must command from 4*s.* to 5*s.* currency, or 4*s.* 6*d.* sterling, per bushel, to remunerate the Canadian grower. (See Appendix, No. 6.)

After the completion of our communications, a reduction will be made in the transit of 2*s.* 6*d.* per barrel. Flour must still command, in Britain, 33*s.* sterling, per barrel, to ensure our growers a remunerating price, which will afford ample protection to the English grower, and as it is entirely the result of natural causes, it can only be effected by Imperial legislation.

As it respects the admission into Canada of American products from the Western States, it appears that the freight of a barrel of flour from Cleveland, Ohio, to Lake Ontario, is 1*s.* 6*d.*, which, added to the above, with the proposed duty, will sufficiently protect the home producer against all American competition from this quarter, through the channel of the St. Lawrence.

With regard to the carrying trade:—

All the grain grown in Canada will not supply the consumption of British North America, and, if it were all shipped to England, and the population of our commercial towns were supplied from the United States, the quantity of our own so exported would be very limited for many years to come.

By reference to Appendix, No. 5, it will be seen that the cost of transit on a barrel of flour to Liverpool, through the Erie Canal, is 3*s.* 1½*d.* less than by the way of the St. Lawrence; when this is added to the proposed duty, it will give 5*s.* 1½*d.* in favour of New York. By reference to the table of duties, it will be found that this difference only accrues when wheat averages between 61*s.* and 62*s.* per quarter. (See Appendix, No. 7.) And whenever prices in Britain exceed that average, the products of the Western States will be conveyed by the Erie Canal. After the enlargement of the Erie Canal shall have been completed, which is our most formidable rival, notwithstanding the reduction heretofore mentioned by the St. Lawrence, the cost of transportation through the two channels will be so nearly equal, that to the transit through the latter a decided encouragement should be given by the Home Government for at least a few years. If grain cannot be exported to England at a profit to our grower, unless flour reaches 33*s.* per barrel, and wheat from 60*s.* to 61*s.* per quarter, the transit of Western flour will be diverted through the Erie Canal, and it follows that unless prices in England steadily range from 55*s.* to 61*s.* per quarter, our growers cannot benefit by the home market, and our carrying trade will become so uncertain, that few, if any, will embark in it, and the vessels and craft now engaged must be continued at a hazard of employment.

By reference to the despatch, it will be seen that the loss of this trade has never been contemplated by the Home Government: its preservation and encouragement must, then, become a subject of both Imperial and Colonial legislation.

It is most desirable to place this branch of commerce on a certain and permanent footing, which, in the opinion of your Committee, can be effectually accomplished, as far as this Legislature is concerned, by allowing a drawback at Quebec or Montreal, whenever the price of flour exceeds 30*s.* sterling, per barrel, at the ports of Quebec and Montreal, which, by adding the price of transportation, will bring the average in Britain, at 77*s.* 11*d.* per quarter.* By this arrangement both the English and Canadian grower will be effectually protected, without hazard, loss or injury to any other interest.

With regard to the agricultural interest of Canada:—

One of the most striking advantages which this measure confers upon the Canadian grower is, that although he cannot, for reasons already assigned, successfully compete with the grower in England, still he will realize the full benefit of the home market, as well as that of British

British North America, from which he has hitherto, under the existing system, been too successfully excluded by his more fortunate rival—the American grower.

It appears from the Minutes of Evidence, as well as from the numerous Addresses of the Legislature to the Home Government, that the agricultural interest, as well as the trade of the country, is in a very depressed state.

The protection which will be afforded by the proposed duty will ensure to the Canadian grower a higher price for his products, and induce the investment of capital for agricultural purposes in this province in preference to the United States. It will transfer the duties on the articles when imported from the mother country to articles which compete with what he produces. It will also preserve our carrying trade, by securing the transportation through Canada when prices are high in England, when otherwise it would be directed through the Erie Canal. It will have a direct tendency to create an extensive home market, by the increasing employment in navigating our waters; and it will materially lessen the price of transportation, by diminishing the price of tolls and conveyance through our canals by the increased trade thus created.

The value and importance of the trade with the Western States:—

From the despatch alluded to, it is evident that the value of this trade, together with the advantages to Canada of every manufacturing process which it might undergo in the transit, has been under consideration.

The proposed duty of 3*s.* sterling, per Imperial quarter, on wheat, is equal to $4\frac{4}{10}$ d. per bushel of 60 lbs. The duty of 2*s.* per barrel on flour imposed by the British Possessions Act, is equal to $5\frac{1}{4}$ d. per bushel; this difference is insufficient to secure this advantage we now possess, but may be provided for in the scale of duties hereafter to be proposed. If the raw material, say wheat, shipped in Cleveland, is worth 3*s.* 9*d.* per bushel, or 18*s.* 9*d.* per barrel of flour, the remainder of the cost to the consumer in Britain is secured by this trade to British subjects, in the shape of duties, labour, milling, transit, shipping and profit.

If the colonies of the British Empire are maintained at a great expense for the sake of their trade, the securing and controlling that of the Western States, and making them in effect colonies for the like purposes, is an object of no ordinary moment, particularly when it can be obtained without expense or even negotiation. The removal of all existing duties between the ports of the mother country and Canada, so soon as sufficient revenue can be raised from duties on foreign articles, tolls on our canals, and other sources, will not only secure this trade, but supply the Great Western States with the manufactures of Great Britain, and by reducing the price of outward freight, it would enable us successfully to compete with any other channel of trade to Great Britain from the Continent of America.

To accomplish this great object, and to secure Her Majesty's subjects in Canada the full benefit of the declaration of the enlightened statesman who presides over the Councils of the United Kingdom, your Committee recommend the following Resolutions for the consideration of your Honourable House, with a view, if approved, to form an Address to Her Majesty theron:

Resolved,—That this House feels every confidence that the public declaration made by the enlightened Statesman who presides over the Councils of the mother country will be carried into effect, and that Canada will hereafter be treated as though she were an integral part of the empire.

Resolved,—That this desirable object can only be attained by removing all duties on the products of Canada, particularly all descriptions of grain and meal, when admitted into the ports of the mother country; and in strict conformity to that principle, the Legislative Assembly will take the earliest opportunity, so soon as the finances of the province for the support of the Government and its engagements for the security of the public debt will admit, to recommend the removal of all duties on the manufactures of the mother country when admitted into the ports of Canada from sea.

Resolved,—That they have every confidence that the revenue arising from foreign commerce and the tolls on our canals will enable the Provincial Government to make this reduction in a few years after our great leading communications to the ocean are opened.

Resolved,—That with a view of securing the transit of the Western States of America through those waters, it is indispensable to allow a drawback on all grain and flour shipped to Britain from the ports on the St. Lawrence whenever the price of flour exceeds 30*s.* sterling per barrel at the ports of Montreal and Quebec.

Resolved,—That an humble Address to Her Majesty be founded on the above Resolutions.

All which is respectfully submitted.

Minutes of Evidence.

Friday, 30 Septem er 1842.

The following Questions were submitted to several gentlemen engaged in the forwarding Trade, and their joint replies thereto are annexed :—

1. What is the present price of wheat on the shores of Lake Ontario and Lake Erie?
2. What is the expense of transportation of a bushel of wheat to Montreal?
3. What are the charges from thence to Britain including all charges?
4. Notwithstanding American grain has been admitted free from duty and exported as colonial, has the capital invested in milling and purchase of grain yielded a profit?
5. What should be the price of wheat on Lake Erie to remunerate the grower?
6. Do you think the statement of cost of transportation on a barrel of flour (Appendix Nos. 4 & 5) correct?
7. After the completion of the St. Lawrence Canal, what reduction will take place in freight?
8. At the present rate of duties on flour in Britain, what must be the average price of wheat to ensure the transit from the Western States through the St. Lawrence?
9. What is the price of a bushel of wheat from Cleveland to Liverpool, via New York?
10. Is there a sufficient quantity of bread stuffs grown in Canada to supply the consumption of British North America?

Answers to the preceding Questions.

1. The present price of wheat on the shores of Lake Erie, 2*s.* 9*d.*; Ontario, 3*s.* 1½*d.*; freight from Chicago, Michigan, to St. Catherine's, Welland Canal, 9*d.*; from Cleveland, Ohio, to St. Catherine's, Welland Canal, 6 cents, thence to Kingston, 2 cents.
2. Freight from Kingston to Montreal, 7½*d.* per bushel.
3. Freight from Montreal to England of a bushel of wheat, 2*s.* to cover all charges.
4. Milling and wheat speculations with very few exceptions within our knowledge, for the last 20 years, have been unprofitable.
5. The price of wheat on Lake Erie, to remunerate the grower, ought not to be less than 4*s.*
6. The statement of transport, as shown in Nos. 4 and 5, we consider correct.
7. The completion of the St. Lawrence Canal must reduce the rate of freight to Montreal 33⅓ per cent.
8. The averages in England must be 60*s.* per quarter, to ensure the trade by the St. Lawrence; when over that, the Americans can send their own wheat more advantageously to England, via New York.
9. The freight of a bushel of wheat from Cleveland to Liverpool, via New York, is 1*s.* 8*d.* per bushel.

The above statement is made to show that the present duty in Britain is not of serious consequence, as we cannot export wheat when the price in England is so low as to bring a duty on colonial.

Petition of the Right honourable the Earl of Mount Cashell, and others.

To the Honourable the Commons House of Assembly of Canada, in Provincial Parliament assembled.

We, the undersigned Members of the North American Committee of the Colonial Society, having recently addressed a memorial, of which the annexed is a copy, to the Right honourable Lord Stanley, Her Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for the Colonies, setting forth the importance of a free trade with Great Britain in the agricultural productions of British North America, and of a protection to those productions from the competition of foreigners in the colonial and home markets, humbly entreat the consideration of your Honourable House to the importance of such protection, so that objections may no longer be urged to the admission of those productions free from any duty, in the home market, and that there may be but one imperial interest between the British American provinces and the mother country.

The memorial hereto annexed contains the opinions of the petitioners on this very important subject; and in submitting it to the consideration of your Honourable House, the object of the undersigned is to pray for the adoption of such legislative measures in the Provincial Parliament as may be deemed best adapted to promote the most intimate union of interests between Great Britain and British North America, which the undersigned consider particularly deserving of attention at this time, when a very extensive emigration is taking place to Canada. It appears to the undersigned that the only certain means of enabling this large population to establish themselves in Canada, with advantage to themselves and the province, and of insuring a full stream of emigration to the colony hereafter, is to give every possible encouragement to the cultivation of the soil, by the measures recommended in the annexed memorial.

To the Right Honourable Lord Stanley, Principal Secretary of State for the Colonies.

My Lord,

The North American Committee of the Colonial Society considering the extensive emigration now proceeding from this kingdom, which has existed for many years past, and which may be expected still to increase in consequence of the superabundant population beyond the means of employment, and considering the infinite importance to the empire that this surplus of its population should be so directed as to increase its general wealth and prosperity, have ascertained the amount of emigration in the last two years, and the different countries to which it has proceeded, by referring to the Parliamentary Returns for the years 1840 and 1841, from which it appears that a very large proportion, amounting to 156,116 out of 209,335 persons, who emigrated in 1840 and 1841, proceeded to North America, of which 85,659 went to the United States, and 70,457 to the British provinces. The fact of the great number going to North America, amounting altogether to three-fourths of all those who emigrated, and that without public assistance, serves to show that North America is considered to offer greater advantages to British emigrants than any other part of the world, which may be ascribed to its vicinity, the cheap and easy communication with this country, its soil and climate, so well adapted to the health and enjoyment of the inhabitants of this kingdom, and the identity of its language. It appears, also, that the proportion of persons who proceed to the United States is much larger than of those who establish themselves in the British American provinces; and as this this proportion consists in great degree of the class of persons having capital, the Committee have been anxious to ascertain the causes which lead to a result so injurious to the best interests of the empire. There appears to be no reason for supposing that the Government, laws or manners of the United States offer any temptation to Britons; or that the climate or soil have any advantage over those of the British Provinces. They have taken every pains to ascertain whether any real causes exist in Her Majesty's North American Colonies to prevent the introduction and settlement therein of emigrants, particularly those having capital.

In pursuing this inquiry they find that great dissatisfaction has long existed in Canada on a subject which appears not to be correctly understood by the British public. In the Address to Her Majesty from the Legislative Assembly of Upper Canada, dated 4th January 1840, reasons are assigned for the depression of agriculture, which, if well founded, as we believe they are, deserve the most serious attention. It appears that not only the principle of protection extended to the growers in Great Britain is withheld from the agriculturists in Canada, but that whilst the market in Canada is open to the whole world, including the neighbouring States of America, for the importation of agricultural productions, free from any duty, the productions of Canada are subject to a heavy duty on importation into the United States and into the mother country, being the only markets upon which they can depend, as they are deprived of the advantage of the intercolonial markets, particularly that of the West Indies, which was formerly of great importance to Canada, by the alteration of the colonial duties of late years. The natural advantages of situation possessed by the United States, for supplying the British West Indies, were always greatly in favour of the United States, which, added to the alteration of duties, will destroy the trade of British North America with those Colonies.

In 1833, the Commons House of Assembly of Canada addressed the Home Government, praying for relief; and among other reasons assigned for the free admission of their products in the markets of Britain, were the great distance of the wheat-growing districts in Canada from the sea, and the high price of transportation, always affording a natural and certain protection to the British grower, which is fully borne out by the annexed statement marked (A.), showing the expense to the Canadian grower of the transportation of wheat to this country, to be 26*s.* 2*d.* currency, or 23*s.* 7*d.* sterling, per quarter. A further expense attends the transmission of wheat from the Western parts of the United States, and this natural protection the inhabitants of Canada are desirous of increasing, by imposing a duty on American grain and other produce, on their frontier, so as to protect their own home growth in their own as well as the British market. Strong expressions of this opinion have been made recently in Canada, for which reference may be made to the petition from the merchants of Montreal, and to that from a very large body of agriculturists in Western Canada, recently forwarded through the Canada Company; the sentiments contained in which have been brought under your Lordship's notice very recently; and similar addresses and representations have been repeatedly sent home of late years, all tending to show the importance attached by the inhabitants of Canada to an open trade with Great Britain, and to protection in their own market from the competition of the rest of the world, and of the United States in particular, who themselves protect their home growth by duties.

The Committee believe that the great objection entertained in this country to the admission of the agricultural productions of Canada into the home market free of duty, is the fear that it would not be limited to the articles grown in the colonies, but that the grain and other productions of the United States would be introduced through the colony, as if they were Canadian. To obviate this, and to protect their own agriculture, the colonists are willing to impose a sufficient duty on their frontier forthwith; but doubts have been expressed whether this trade would not be conducted by smuggling across the frontier, notwithstanding any regulation in the Canadian ports. The Committee have made inquiry into this question, and they believe that no such smuggling would take place, for the following reasons:—

First. The inhabitants of Canada, whose prosperity depends entirely on agriculture, are very anxious for a protection which a duty levied on their frontier would afford them; and they would unanimously support the execution of a law for that purpose.

Secondly. The growth of wheat in the United States, the chief article respecting the introduction of which through Canada any anxiety exists, is confined to that part of the country bordering on Canada to the west, where the boundary line between the two countries is formed by the lakes; and the produce must necessarily therefore be shipped, and landed on the Canadian ports or shores; if in the former, which are few in number, the duty would always be levied; and if attempted on the latter, which would be difficult, the expense of transportation, the landing in boats, and taking up the country, would be attended with such expense, as to render it worth while to the parties to pay the duty at the ports in preference.

Canada has now become an exporting country, and will be capable gradually of supplying Great Britain with any quantity of corn that may be required, if the British market is open to her productions.

The Committee are desirous of drawing your Lordship's attention to the importance of encouraging the importation of corn from a country which will assuredly receive payment for it in British manufactures, and to the great advantage to this country of such an exchange; particularly considering that the cultivators in Canada are persons settled there, who were unable to maintain themselves at home, but have now become growers of food enough for for their own support, and a surplus to exchange for the labour of their fellow-countrymen at home; and every part of this trade, from the cultivation of the farm to the navigation of the Atlantic with the produce home, directly supports the British manufacturer and mariner.

The Committee would, therefore, strongly recommend, that the agricultural productions of the North American Colonies should be admitted to the home market free of duty; that the colonists should be encouraged to impose such duties on foreign productions as they think desirable for the protection of their own growth, and the British agriculturists; and that the intercolonial duties should be so regulated as to give an advantage to the colonists in the intercolonial trade over the inhabitants of the United States and other foreigners. Canada and the British North American Colonies would then really become an integral part of the British Empire, and rise rapidly in wealth and importance, and the most beneficial effects be produced; perfect confidence would be reposed in the future prosperity, peace and welfare of those valuable colonies, and every British subject seeking a new settlement in North America would at once decide upon establishing himself in the British territories.

The present system of duties never gave satisfaction to Her Majesty's subjects, either in the colony or the mother country; their continuance must inevitably direct the attention and energies of the colonists to encourage manufactures for the purpose of creating a home market for the produce of their soil: this can only be effected by imposing increased duties on our manufactures, and must lead to the establishment of the same adverse interest which exists in the Eastern States of America.

If taxes were imposed by the colonists on foreign productions imported, particularly wheat and flour from the United States, for the purpose of raising revenue to defray the expenses of the local government; the taxation on manufactured or other articles imported from home might be reduced in a proportionate degree, and the coasting trade of Britain might be more easily extended to the utmost limits of Canada, without other restrictions than those which exist between London and Dublin, or Edinburgh.

Not only would the colonists receive their supplies of manufactured goods from the mother country, but the inhabitants of the Great Western Country of the United States would find it for their interest to obtain their supplies of goods by the Canadian frontier; and for all purposes of commerce, this country would derive the same advantages as if that Great Western land continued to be a colony of the empire.

Instead of the continued doubt and uncertainty which prevails in British North America, every inhabitant would be made to see and feel, from the increased value of his products and the diminished cost of the articles he consumes, as well as from the rapid extension of their internal trade, the full value of his connexion with the mother country, and a far more certain and permanent reliance might be placed on the connexion of those valuable colonies by such measures than by the expenditure of millions in the erection of fortifications and the maintenance of troops, as every man's hand and heart would be engaged in supporting the interests of the empire, and the colonists would set at defiance all the efforts of foreign opposition or ambition.

Your Memorialists, considering the whole subject of the greatest possible importance to the welfare of the empire, and entertaining the most sanguine expectation that the measures they have recommended would promote the mutual interests of the mother country and the North American Colonies, have transmitted a similar representation to the Legislature of Canada, urging them to adopt the measures herein recommended; and your Memorialists humbly pray that your Lordship will be pleased to take their opinions into consideration, hoping that you will think it right to recommend their adoption to the Cabinet so soon as in your Lordship's opinion a favourable opportunity arises for the purpose.

EXTRACT from a Return to an Address of the Legislative Assembly of the 22d September 1842.

EXTRACT from a DESPATCH from the Right Honourable C. P. Thomson, late Governor-General of Canada, to Lord John Russell, dated Government House, Montreal, 26th May 1840, in as far as the same relates to the transmission of an Address from the Legislature of the late Province of Upper Canada, praying for the introduction of Canadian Corn into Great Britain, free from duty, and to empower the Legislature of this Province to originate measures relating to the Colonial Trade generally.

"THE House of Assembly have transmitted another address, praying for the introduction of Canada corn into Great Britain, free of duty, and they further pray that the Local Legislature may be empowered hereafter to alter the trade regulations of the colony, in those cases in which they may be affected by the Imperial laws relating to colonial trade generally, subject however to the restriction that such laws shall not receive the assent of the Crown until they have been laid before both Houses of Parliament, and shall have been suffered to pass without address from either.

"Upon the first of these objects, it is needless for me to offer any remark. The question can only properly be considered with reference to the whole subject of the Corn Laws, and I certainly do not think that, looking to the average price of corn in ordinary years in Great Britain, the colonies have any right to complain of the footing on which they now stand.

"The second point is an extremely important one. I am undoubtedly of opinion that the regulation of the principles on which colonial trade is to be conducted ought to be reserved entirely to the Imperial Parliament. The power of regulating it is one of the principal advantages resulting from colonial possessions, and, if justly exercised, affords one of the main compensations for the expenditure which the mother country is compelled to incur for the defence and protection of the colony. But whilst I admit this, to its fullest extent, I have at the same time been obliged to observe the great inconvenience, and even loss, which results to the colony from the necessity which now exists for all changes in this respect originating in England. There are a vast number of small points seriously affecting the interests of colonial trade, and not at all disturbing the general principle or objects sought to be established by Imperial Legislation, in which a change is frequently found to be desirable. Great difficulty exists, in the first place, in explaining these points at home, and, next, in proving that they are of sufficient importance to demand legislation there; but even if this be done, I know myself, from experience in that department, too much difficulty and delay unavoidably arise in carrying such measures through Parliament. I am therefore very much disposed in favour of the middle course now suggested by the Assembly. If the Local Legislature be permitted to originate measures of this description, I entertain no doubt that they would be able to introduce many improvements very beneficial to the trade of the colony, and not at all injurious to Imperial interests. These, when sent home, could receive the assent of the Crown and Parliament, whilst, if they meddled improperly with matters affecting the general interests of trade, their work would be without effect, and be open to immediate rejection. If your Lordship shall concur in this view of the case, and shall be inclined to grant this extension of power to the colony, subject to the restriction I have stated, it would be better perhaps to pass an Act specially for the purpose than to incorporate it in the Union Bill."

EXTRACT from a DESPATCH from the Right honourable Lord John Russell, of the 1st July 1840 (No. 171), to the late Governor-General of Canada, in as far as the same relates to the transmission of an Address from the Legislature of the late Province of Upper Canada, praying for the introduction of Canadian Corn into Great Britain, free from Duty.

"WITH regard to the address on the subject of the introduction of Canada corn into Great Britain, and regarding the proposal to invest the Provincial Legislature with the power of regulating, under certain restrictions, the trade of the empire at large, so far as it affects Canada, I have, in obedience to Her Majesty's commands, communicated that address, with your remarks upon it, to the Lords of Committee of Privy Council for Trade, for their Lordships' consideration."

(No. 267.)

My Lord, Downing-street, 1 December 1840.

I ENCLOSE the copy of a letter which I have received in which a suggestion is offered with respect to the admission into this country, free of duty, of Canada wheat, flour, and other agricultural produce; and I request that you will give this subject your consideration.

My Lord, Downing-street, 3 March 1841.

ADVERTING to your Lordship's despatch, No. 115, of the 26th May 1840, in which was enclosed an Address to the Queen from the House of Assembly of Upper Canada, respecting the trade regulations of the province, and the repeal of the duties levied upon agricultural produce imported from Canada into the United Kingdom, to my answers thereto of the 1st July, No. 171, and to your Lordship's recent proposition for altering the clause of the Royal instructions, which prohibits the provincial legislature from legislating on subjects connected with the trade of the British empire, I have to inform your Lordship that the Lords of the Committee of Privy Council for Trade have considered the recommendations contained in your despatch, and the Address, and I shall communicate to your Lordship by the first opportunity the decision of Her Majesty's Government thereupon.

The President of the Board of Trade will bring before the House of Commons on Friday, the 12th instant, several propositions connected with this subject, and I regret that they are not sufficiently matured to enable me to transmit them to you by the present mail.

It will be the object of the Queen's Government to free the trade of Canada from restrictions which are unnecessary, and at the same time to do justice to the industry and manufactures of the United Kingdom. I have, &c.

No. 3.

Sir, Downing-street, 2 March 1843.

I HAVE received your despatch (No. 19) of the 27th January, enclosing a petition addressed to the Queen by the Board of Trade at Quebec, praying that the Royal Assent may be withheld from the Bill passed in the last session of the Legislature of Canada, by which a duty was imposed on the importation of foreign wheat into that province, until the Imperial Parliament shall have passed a law authorizing the free admission into the United Kingdom and the British Colonies of all grain and flour exported from Canada.

I have to acquaint you, in answer, that I have laid this petition before the Queen, and that Her Majesty was graciously pleased to signify Her readiness to take the prayer of it into Her consideration when the proper time shall arrive for deciding upon the provincial enactment.

I have, &c.

(No. 35.)

EXTRACT of a DESPATCH from the Right honourable Sir Charles Bagot, G.C.B., to Lord Stanley, dated Government House, Kingston, 24 February 1843.

I HAVE had the honour to receive your Lordship's despatch of the 1st instant, No. 320, desiring to be furnished with a report in explanation of the grounds upon which the Wheat Duty Bill was passed by the Canadian Houses of Assembly during the past season.

Your Lordship will have already received a despatch upon this subject, which I transmitted by the last mail, accompanying reports upon the other Bills of the same session.

To these I have now to add a copy of a Minute of my Council drawn up on this document.

The Minute of the Committee of Council will furnish your Lordship with the information required in the concluding paragraph of your despatch relative to the possible effect of the exemption contained in the second clause of the Bill in admitting frauds upon the revenue, and an abuse of the privilege which may be accorded in the United Kingdom to wheat which shall have paid the provincial duty.

EXTRACT of a REPORT of a Committee of the Executive Council, dated 23d February 1843, on the subject of the Bill passed last Session, for imposing a Duty upon American Wheat.

WITH respect to the inquiry contained in the last clause of his Lordship's despatch, regarding the exemption from duty of wheat and flour introduced by sea for the use of the fisheries, and the facility which such an exemption may give to the commission of frauds upon the revenue, which inquiry, the Committee observe, is not anticipated in your Excellency's despatch, the Committee beg respectfully to observe,

1st.—That Canada is very little concerned in the fisheries on the coast, as the fish taken there are exported directly to foreign countries; and the supplies are derived directly from England, in the shape of fishing-tackle, sails, rigging, and other like necessaries; and the provisions are imported, by sea, from the ports in the United States.

2dly.—That the British fisheries trading with foreign countries and having no protection, would be absolutely ruined by any financial measure which would increase their expenses, and thus place them at a disadvantage as compared with the foreign fisheries, particularly as the former do not enjoy the encouragement of bounty on the exportation of fish, afforded by the eastern colonies and by the Americans.

3dly.—That the exemption was introduced to favour a trade in which British shipping and British capitalists are interested; and that the only possible interest which the interior of Canada could have in the question would be in favour of a duty on foreign supply.

supply to the fisheries, and in forcing them thus to take the supplies from the provinces; but, for the reasons above stated, it is not desired to acquire such an advantage at the expense of the fisheries.

4thly.—That the exemption was introduced in accordance with the policy of all the Canada Trade Acts, which contain the same exemption in favour of the fisheries.

5thly.—That the geographical position of the fisheries is such as to prevent it from being the interest of persons disposed to defraud the revenue to import, by sea, wheat from a foreign country, and to send it illicitly into Canada, there to acquire the character of wheat or flour of Canadian growth, or of the same articles which had paid the duty.

6thly.—That wheat or flour introduced by sea for the use of fisheries not on the sea-coast, would not bear the expense of transportation to the interior for the purpose of avoiding the duty.

7thly.—As to the danger of wheat being introduced by sea at the fisheries on the coast, which may there be converted into flour, and thereby acquire the character of colonial produce or manufacture, the Committee would observe, that the country on the coast not being wheat growing, any importation or manufacture of wheat for exportation would immediately be observed by the officers of the Customs, and the traders in the article, on importing what evidently was not for the use of the fisheries, or on attempting to export it to England, would be liable to have the property seized, and would be subject to the pains and penalties of the British Trade Act, re-enacted by the Bill in question.

And, lastly, as the exemption was introduced into the Bill in favour of British interests, any act removing or lessening the duty on wheat and flour imported from Canada may contain any precautionary enactments regulating the details of importations for the use of the fisheries, which may be devised by the Commissioners of Customs, and which would effectually prevent the fraud of which his Lordship apprehends the probability.

Despatch from the Right hon. Sir Charles Bagot to Lord Stanley, 20 March 1843.

My Lord,

With reference to your Lordship's Despatch of the 2d March, No. 330, relative to the petition addressed to the Queen by the Board of Trade at Quebec upon the subject of the Wheat Duty Bill, passed by the Provincial Legislature in its last session, I deem it expedient, although I am confident that Her Majesty's Government will allow no unnecessary delay to occur in determining upon the course which they will adopt with regard to this measure, to transmit to your Lordship a copy of a communication from the same body, pointing out the importance of an early decision upon this matter with reference to the trade of the approaching season.

I have, &c.

(signed) Charles Bagot.

Enclosure in No. 5.

Office of the Council of the Quebec Board of Trade,
Quebec, March 4, 1843.

Sir,

I am requested by the Council of the Quebec Board of Trade respectfully to inquire if any information has yet been received regarding the fate of a Bill passed in the last session of our Provincial Legislature, imposing a duty of 3 s. per quarter on wheat imported into the British Possessions in North America from the United States, and which was reserved by his Excellency the Governor-general for Her Majesty's pleasure thereon. When the aforesaid Bill was passed by the Legislature, it seemed to be generally understood that it was the intention of the Imperial Government to permit the importation of wheat from Canada into Great Britain at merely a nominal duty; and as the season of business is now approaching, it is of great importance to the inhabitants of the province generally that they should receive authentic information on these questions with the least possible delay.

I have, &c.

2d Quarter.

The value of the Rouble has been assumed at 3*s.* 4*d.* according to the "commercial par" of exchange of this place, which, for the sake of facility of computation, is taken at 40 Polish Florins per £. sterling, of which 6⅔ are equal to a Rouble, in virtue of the Imperial Ukase.

The average current rate of exchange on England, however, has been 42 Florins per £. sterling in this quarter, making a difference of 5 per cent. in favour of England, which must be deducted from the quoted prices, should it be wished to know exactly the actual cost of the different articles during the period to which the Return refers.

The reports received from the different parts of the kingdom represent all the crops as very promising, except the Potatoes, which have suffered, it is feared, in consequence of the great drought which has prevailed in this quarter.

It is stated that there is no stock on hand; and the harvest is anxiously looked for, in the hopes of its reducing the exorbitant price of all kinds of agricultural produce.

The want of water in the Vistula has stopped nearly all intercourse (by water) between this city and Danzig.

Warsaw, 30 June 1842.

G. C. Du Plat,
Consul.

The above are the averages of all the weekly prices during the quarter.

3d Quarter.

The Imperial quarter equal to 2·27 Polish Korzec.

The hundred weight (British) equal to 125·33 lbs. Polish.

The reports from various parts of the kingdom give the following results of this year's harvest:—

Wheat: Excellent in quality, and in quantity equal to 1½ average crop.
All other Grains (except Barley) average crops, of excellent quality.
Barley: Little more than half a crop, but of excellent quality.
Potatoes: Scarcely half a crop.

Notwithstanding these generally favourable results, prices are still higher than in last quarter, as the farmers have not yet been able to thrash and bring the new grain to market.

Stock on hand:

It is stated that the stocks were never known to be so low in Poland, unless in years of actual scarcity, a circumstance fully accounted for by the fact that the harvest of the present year is the first good one that has occurred since 1835.

Freights:

Nominal, on account of the low state of the Vistula.

4th Quarter.

The Crops:—On account of the drought of last autumn, the winter corn has not come up so plentifully as it ought to have done; but the young crops are reported to be looking very healthy, and to promise a good harvest.

Stocks on hand:

Of Wheat, there will be a large surplus of last year's harvest for exportation, because comparatively very little of this corn is consumed in the country; but, owing to the number of previous bad years, there will not be much of the other grains for exportation.

Freights:

From here to Danzig or Elbing are quoted at from 7*s.* to 9*s.* 6*d.* per Imperial quarter; but this quotation is merely nominal, as the navigation of the Vistula has ceased on account of the river being subjected, at this advanced season, to drifting ice. Moreover, it is not usual to send grain (intended for exportation) to Danzig before the spring.

Warsaw, 31 December 1842.

G. C. Du Plat,
Consul.

1st Quarter.

Of 92,671 qrs. of Wheat shipped during March, 54,497 qrs. were for England. In January, 10,652 qrs. to England. Total, 65,149 qrs. to England during the quarter.

Stock on hand:
Wheat { Soft - 75,000 qrs.
Hard - 20,000 „

2d Quarter.

Exported during—
April: Wheat, 54,222 qrs. of which to England, 30,601 qrs.
May: Wheat, 34,707 qrs. of which to England, 23,370 qrs.
June: Wheat, 28,800 qrs. of which to England, 19,835 qrs.
Total exported, 117,729 qrs. of which to England, 73,806 qrs.

Stock on hand;
Wheat { Soft - 55,000 qrs.
Hard - 10,000 „

Odessa,
30 June 1842.

James Yeames,
Consul-general.

3d Quarter.

Exported during—
July: Wheat, 102,021 qrs. of which to England, 43,841 qrs.
August: Wheat, 37,407 qrs. of which to England, 8,521 qrs.
September: Wheat, 67,893 qrs. of which to England, 3,849 qrs.

The crops in the Polish provinces have been ascertained to be abundant, and of fine quality. On the nearer Steppes, they have failed from drought. In the vicinity of the Azoph, they are satisfactory. As supplies for Odessa must come from far, no large stocks are expected to accumulate.

Supposed Stocks in Town:
Wheat { Soft - 150,000 qrs.
Hard - 10,000 „

Freight:

To England, from 10 s. to 10 s. 9 d. per qr.

The charges, on loading Wheat, amount to about 2 s. 2 d. per qr.

4th Quarter.

The roads being still dry, much Wheat is arriving from the Polish provinces.
Exported during—
October: Wheat, 114,483 qrs. of which to England, 3,024 qrs.
November: Wheat, 63,037 qrs. of which to England, 4,932 qrs.
December: Wheat, 12,324 qrs. of which to England, 2,533 qrs.

Under the present circumstances of low prices, of extraordinary low freight, and a favourable exchange, a shipment of the best Wheat could now be made and delivered in England on the following terms:

	s.	d.
First cost - - -	22	6	pr qr.
Charges for loading	2	5	„
Freight - - - -	6	7	„
Insurance and factorage in England	4	-	„
Total - -	35	6	„

Although the Grain market is perfectly quiet, the prices quoted are very firm; and there is no doubt, if any demand for England should arise within the next five months, that prices would rise 5 s. or 6 s., as freights, in such case, will be higher by 4 s. to 5 s. per quarter.

No considerable supply of Wheat from the country can be expected before next June.

Stocks in Town:
Wheat { Soft - 120,000 qrs.
Hard - 10,000 „
Oats - - 5,000 „

Odessa,
31 December 1842.

James Yeames,
Consul-general

	13. 8.	£. sterl.							3d Quarter.
	s. d. s. d.	s. d.							The Danish Corn market, which was stationary at the close of the last quarter, has since given way, under the effects of the late harvest; the propitious result of which, in almost all countries, has caused so general a depression in the trade. Prices, however, are expected fully to maintain themselves during the coming winter; the harvest in this country, though well spoken of in point of quality, having proved deficient in quantity, with the exception of Barley, which has been both excellent and abundant. There is consequently but little for exportation, and freights are only nominal.

REMARKS.

1st Quarter.

Stocks on hand: Wheat, 100,000 qrs.; Rye, 15,000 qrs.; Barley and Oats, 22,000 qrs.
Exported during this quarter: to England, Wheat, 367 qrs.; other countries, 10,731 qrs.; total, 11,098 qrs.
Freights: unusually low, there being scarcely any demand for Corn; to London, 2*s.* 6*d.* to 3*s.* per qr.

The alteration in the British Corn Laws affords satisfaction to the grower, while the wealthy speculator does not anticipate the large profits he has of late years been accustomed to make. All parties, however, look for a more regular trade with Great Britain.

It is thought that the arrivals of Wheat, during summer, may reach 20,000 lasts.

2d Quarter.

Exported during this Quarter:
To Great Britain: Wheat, 112,510 qrs.; Rye, 725 qrs.; Barley, 1,113 qrs.
To Jersey, &c.: Wheat, 1,995 qrs.; Barley, 115 qrs.
To Holland: Wheat, 17,414 qrs.; Rye, 2,239 qrs.; Barley, 1,680 qrs.
To other countries: Wheat, 3,916 qrs.; Rye, 22,270 qrs.; Barley, 1,785 qrs.
Stocks on hand: Wheat, 110,000 qrs.; Rye, 12,000 qrs.; other sorts, 25,000 qrs.; total, 147,000 qrs.
Freights: to London, 3*s.*, 3*s.* 6*d.* to 4*s.* per qr., Wheat; to Liverpool, 3*s.*, 3*s.* 6*d.* to 3*s.* 9*d.* ditto; to Hull, 3*s.* to 3*s.* 9*d.* ditto; to Newcastle, 2*s.* 6*d.* to 3*s.* ditto.

The beginning of the season was very cold and dry, but latterly it has been more favourable. Wheat and Rye are reported to be very long in the stalk, but poor in the ear; and this also, for the most part, is the case with Rye. Oats and Barley maintain a better appearance.

From Poland the accounts vary in proportion to the extent of injury which the different districts have suffered from the hitherto unsettled state of the weather.

Danzig, 30 June 1842.

H. R. Plaw,
Consul.

3d Quarter.

Exported during this Quarter:
To Great Britain: Wheat, 236,019 qrs.; Rye, 2,268 qrs.; Barley, 2,750 qrs.; Oats, 220 qrs.
To Jersey, &c.: Wheat, 1,638 qrs.
To Holland; Wheat, 15,650 qrs.; Rye, 7,833 qrs.; Barley, 60 qrs.
To other countries: Wheat, 284 qrs.; Rye, 29,841 qrs.; Barley, 5,376 qrs.; Oats, 450 qrs.
Stocks on hand, 30th September: Wheat, 40,000 qrs.; Rye, 4,000 qrs.; other grain, 5,000 qrs.
Freights: to London, 3*s.* 3*d.* to 3*s.*

The harvest, in general, is reported to be abundant; although, in some instances, it may not yield equal to expectation.

Wheat, in quality, is dry and good, although dark-coloured, in consequence of the long continuance of hot weather.

Rye and Barley, full average crops, and of good quality.

Oats are less in supply.

The very rapid and unexpected fall in the British Corn market has occasioned much distress among speculators, and business is nearly at a stand.

During this season, also, the low state of the rivers has again very much impeded the inland navigation, and from 3,000 to 4,000 lasts of Wheat are still on their way from Poland. The scarcity of water has likewise kept back arrivals from the more immediate neighbourhood, and stopped the mills.

4th Quarter.

Shipments:
To Great Britain: Wheat, 4,985 qrs.; Barley, 50 qrs.
To Jersey and Guernsey: Wheat, 7,705 qrs.
To Holland: Wheat, 20,025 qrs.; Rye, 1,974 qrs; Barley, 2,530 qrs.
To other countries: Wheat, 2,415 qrs.; Rye, 20,830 qrs.; Barley, 1,218 qrs.; Oats, 396 qrs.
Stocks on hand, 31 December 1842: Wheat, 105,882 qrs.; Rye, 3,050 qrs.; Barley and Oats, 10,200 qrs.
Freights; none to London; 2*s.* 6*d.* per qr. for spring shipment to Liverpool.

The yield of the Corn has not turned out equal to the appearance in the straw; this particularly applies to Rye. On the whole, however, there is an average crop. In Poland the produce is good in quality and abundant in quantity, consequently ample supplies may be expected during next summer from that country, provided the inland navigation should not be impeded by low water, which has been the case this year, till lately.

Danzig, 31 December 1842.

H. R. Plaw,
Consul.

REMARKS.

1st Quarter.

During this quarter the trade has been completely stagnant, and confined to local purchases from the farmers.

Stocks on hand: Wheat, 21,000 qrs.; Rye, 4,725 qrs.; Barley, 6,800 qrs.; Oats, 5,250 qrs.

This market has to expect but small supplies from the interior and Poland during the coming season.

The farmers in this part of Prussia had very favourable weather last autumn for sowing their Wheat and Rye, and the fields show a strong and healthy young plant, which promises well, provided the season be propitious.

2d Quarter.

The trade in Corn, during this quarter, has been limited, yet prices have been maintained.

Stocks on hand, next to nothing.

The crops, on the whole, bear a luxuriant appearance.

Freights: From 3*s.* 3*d.* to 4*s.* per quarter, to the East Coast of England.

Konigsberg,
30 June 1842.

J. D. Brockmann,
V.-Consul.

3d Quarter.

Trade still continues dull, and the prices of Corn have experienced a considerable reduction.

The result of the harvest in this district and its vicinity may be stated to be as follows:—Wheat, a rich crop, housed in perfect dry and good condition, and of uncommon weight, being from 61 to 66 lbs. per bushel. The quality is good, but rather flinty from many parts of the country.—Barley, Rye and Oats are both full and fine crops.

It is stated, that those parties who had consigned their stocks to England have suffered heavy losses; and most of the profits that were made by Corn speculations during the last three years have lately been again reduced to nothing. Several houses have failed, and some others continue their business with both means and credit reduced.

Freights, to the Eastern Coast of Great Britain, from 3*s.* 6*d.* to 4*s.* per quarter for Wheat.

4th Quarter.

Stocks on hand at the close of the following Years:

	1842.	1841.	1840.	1839.	1838.	1837.	Total
	Qrs.	Qrs.	Qrs.	Qrs.	Qrs.	Qrs.

Oats	8,500	5,250	3,675	13,500	32,550		24,670
	43,100	37,775	24,670	153,500	134,400	275,100

Quantities exported during the year 1842:

Wheat	70,665 qrs.
Rye	104,085 „
Barley	23,835 „
Total	207,415 „

The supplies of new Grain received from the farmers since the harvest have not been large, in consequence of the unfavourable state of the weather, which has rendered most of the bye-roads impassable. There is, however, a very large crop secured in the country, and considerable supplies may be expected to reach this market as soon as the roads become better. The quality is not so very fine as was at first expected, yet the condition of every article is perfectly good, and of heavy weight.

Freights, from 4*s.* to 5*s.* per quarter to the East Coast of Great Britain

Konigsberg,
31 December 1842.

The new Corn Law, however, is considered, by all not at present interested in the Corn trade, as an improvement for steady business, and farmers have a fair allowance, if the prices laid down as the minimum are obtainable, say, 32*s.* per quarter.

In consequence of the unusual drought during the winter and the spring, the water in the inland streams has become so extremely low as to preclude the possibility of getting, this year, the usual supply (from Volhynia) of Corn. The supplies which come to market are barely sufficient for the consumption of the town itself, and the present prices are too high to admit of purchasing, on speculation, for exportation. Trade continues extremely dull, but great expectations are entertained of its revival, when the new scale of duties in England come into full operation. Memel, 30 June 1842. *W. J. The harvest of all descriptions of Corn is reported to be both abundant in quantity and of superior quality. REMARKS.

1st Quarter.

Contrary to general expectation, the Corn trade has been in a very depressed state during this quarter.

The exports have been very trifling, amounting to only 850 qrs. of Wheat to England.

The present state of the Corn trade is so different from what all past experience and all previous accounts had led our corn-merchants to expect, that it can only be accounted for on the supposition that the depressed state of the manufacturing interests in England has caused an actual diminution in the consumption of grain, and that all disposition to speculate in this article has been suspended. An improvement, however, is expected to take place when the new Corn Law comes into operation in England.

The present appearances of the growing crops are by no means favourable.

Stock on hand; Wheat, 8,000 qrs.; Rye, 1,500 qrs.; Barley, 3,000 qrs.

Freight, about 3*s.* 6*d.* per quarter, in full, for Wheat to the East Coast of England.

2d Quarter.

Exported to England during this quarter, Wheat, about 4,800 qrs.

The opinion expressed in last quarter's return respecting an improvement in the Corn trade has proved correct. There has been a lively demand for Wheat since the end of May, and although the trade is not at present very animated, yet it is healthy and firm.

The crops do not promise to be abundant, although Spring Corn looks better since the rain. Wheat is very thin on the ground, particularly on the best sorts.

Stock on hand: Wheat, 2,000 qrs.; Rye, 1,500 qrs.; Barley, 1,000 qrs.

Freight, the same as last quarter.

Lubeck,
30 June 1842.
G. L. Hodges,
Consul-general.

3d Quarter.

The Corn trade, on account of the low prices in England, and indeed in all foreign markets, is extremely dull.

The following quantities were exported to England during the quarter;—Wheat about 4,000 qrs.; Barley about 500 qrs.,

The above being nearly all that remained on hand of former crops, and no supplies of this year's crop having, as yet, arrived, the stock on hand is not worth mentioning.

The new Wheat, however, is stated to be of excellent quality, weighing about 62 lbs. the bushel.

Freights, about 3*s.* 6*d.* per quarter to the East Coast of England; and for other sorts of grain in proportion.

4th Quarter.

During the past quarter the Corn trade has continued invariably flat; indeed there is so little doing that prices may be considered as next to nominal.

There have been no exports of grain to Great Britain this quarter.

At present there are no stocks on hand. About this neighbourhood the crops have turned out deficient in quantity, though very good as to quality: prime new Wheat, weighing from 63 lbs. to 64 lbs. the bushel, and which now sells at 32*s.* per quarter.

Freights average about 4*s.* per quarter to the Eastern Coast of England for Wheat; and other grain in proportion.

Lubeck,
31 December 1842.
G. L. Hodges,
Consul-general.

Stock on hand: About 11,000 qrs. of Wheat. Freight: About 3*s.* to 4*s.* per qr. for Wheat to England, but no demand. Much business, however, has been carried on this quarter, in executing the contracts for Wheat that were made for the English market last October and November, to fulfil which no less than 110,000 qrs. of Wheat and 11,000 barrels of Flour have been exported hence (for the most part in British ships) for England. The rates of freight for the above averaged from 4*s.* 6*d.* to 5*s.* 6*d.* per qr.

Those in this part are considered to offer the prospect of a very fair produce. During this quarter about 75,000 qrs. of Wheat and 3,000 barrels of Flour have been shipped to England and Ireland, on board 67 British vessels.

During this quarter about 37,000 qrs. of Wheat have been shipped for England, in 30 British ships, at rates of freight varying from 3*s.* to 5*s.* per quarter. REMARKS.

1st Quarter.

Exported during the quarter, 3,096 qrs. of Wheat; of which, 1,187 qrs. were shipped for England.

There are considerable quantities of Wheat in the granaries, and the quality is generally very fine; but the drawback to the exportation of the article is the unclean state in which it is brought to market, large quantities of dust being mixed up with the Corn, owing to the ignorance of the people in regard to thrashing. Horses are generally employed to tread out the grain on the bare ground, and which is never sifted afterwards; hence it is impossible that the grain can be free from dust and stones.

Freight:
To England, 7*s.* to 9*s.* 6*d.* per quarter.

2d Quarter.

Exported during this quarter, 2,967 qrs. of Wheat; none of which was for the English market.

The Wheat harvest is close at hand, and promises to yield above an average crop. Much new land has been brought into cultivation for Corn. The other crops also have a promising appearance.

Salonica,
30 June 1842.

Charles Blunt,
Consul.

3d Quarter.

Exported this quarter, 2,680 qrs. of Wheat; the whole of which went to Gibraltar.

The harvest has not turned out so well as was anticipated, in consequence of the prevalence of wet weather of late, which has prevented the crops being housed in good condition.

Salonica,
30 September 1842.

Charles Blunt,
Consul.

R. ADAM CHRISTOPHER, Esq. IN THE CHAIR.

Samuel Potts, called in; and Examined.

Samuel Potts.

23 June 1843.

1. Chairman.] WHERE do you live?—At Doncaster, in the county of York.

2. Do not you reside at Hatfield?—No, I never have.

3. Mr. Dundas.] What are you in your way of business?—I am in no way of business, I do anything that my hand finds to do.

4. Chairman.] Are you acquainted with the parish of Epworth, in Lincolnshire?—No; I have been there lately, but I do not know anybody in it; I am quite a stranger to it; I was there once, when I was a child, with my father; I do not know one man in Epworth.

5. Have you never been there since?—No, not to my knowledge; I do not know whether I have been once or twice, but I was quite a child and went with my father; it was many years ago; I do not know Epworth, or any one in it.

6. Have you not been there within the course of the last few months?—Oh yes, I stated that.

7. Were you employed by any parties to obtain signatures to a petition praying for a repeal of the Corn Laws?—Yes.

8. You were employed to go to Epworth?—Yes, to the parish of Epworth.

9. Did you draw out the petition yourself, or was one given to you?—One was given to me, got up by an attorney.

10. Who gave it to you?—Mr. Hastie, grocer and tea-dealer, in Blackstergate, Doncaster.

11. Was any other party at Doncaster present when Mr. Hastie gave you that petition?—No, I think not, unless it was his own wife; but I am almost sure not.

12. Did Mr. Hastie give you any particular instructions with regard to that petition?—Yes, he did.

13. What instructions did he give you?—He gave me strict charge that I was not to put one petitioner more to the petition than was there legally; I was not to put one name down; that the cause was a good one, and I was not on any account to put a fictitious name, he would rather be satisfied with a few signatures to the petition than a many, because he admitted it was a good cause, and the cause of God.

14. Will

Samuel Potts.

23 June 1843.

14. Will you look at the petition, and state whether that is the petition Mr. Hastie gave you (the Petition being shown to the Witness)?—Yes.

15. Mr. Hardy.] Had it any names to it when he gave it you?—Oh no, not one name.

16. Chairman.] When you got that petition, what did you do?—I went to Epworth and its neighbourhood, to, I think all, with some very few exceptions, to get signatures.

17. You went to Epworth, and took that petition with you?—Yes; there was not a name to that petition while I got there.

18. It is necessary to caution you, that you may be answerable for what you have done in forging signatures to this petition.—I am fully aware of that.

19. You need not answer any question that criminates yourself.—I am ready to answer every question.

20. Mr. Dundas.] You will tell the whole truth, if you please?—I will do so.

21. Chairman.] Where did you go first to obtain these signatures?—To Epworth and the neighbourhood, in the fields, and all round it; I went to the highways and hedges, and applied to every one above 19 or 20, or 21 years of age, to sign this petition.

22. What do you mean by the neighbourhood; did you go to the adjoining parishes?—I went through, but not to call on any.

23. Did you go to the parish of Haxey?—No, I was never there at all.

24. Did you go the parish of Owston Ferry?—Would that be on that side of Epworth?

25. It is the adjoining parish to Epworth, about four or five miles from Epworth?—No, not to my knowledge. Is it on the right side or the left of Epworth?

26. It is to the north, on the banks of the river.—No.

27. Mr. Dundas.] How far round Epworth did you go?—I did not go far round Epworth; my principal motive in going round Epworth was to get into the fields. I had much difficulty in finding some at home, and I had an interest in going into the fields to find them.

28. Lord Worsley.] Epworth is a mile or a mile and a half long?—Yes, it is; I did not know Epworth; I had been there when I was quite a boy, and I did not remember it when I saw it again; I did not know a person in it.

29. Chairman.] How far from the town of Epworth did you go to obtain signatures; did you go four or five miles?—No, not so far.

30. Not in any direction?—No, not to my knowledge, only in the way I went to it.

31. Where did you lodge in Epworth?—I lodged at the first public-house in Epworth.

32. What was the name of the person who kept it?—I am not quite sure, but I think his name was Green.

33. Lord Worsley.] Do you mean the first as you came in from Doncaster?—Yes, I think it is the first, to the best of my recollection.

34. Mr. Dundas.] How long were you there altogether?—Two days.

35. Chairman.] How much did you receive for that work?—I received all I charged them.

36. What did you charge them?—I was to have 5 s. a day, and I agreed to go for 4 s.

37. Do you mean on that petition alone?—For this petition. Mr. Hastie referred to a person who had gone before, a respectable man in the town o Doncaster, he had given him 5 s. a day, and I said I would go for 4 s., that I would make a sacrifice of a shilling a day.

38. Who paid you your expenses?—Mr. Hastie.

39. Will you turn your eye to that petition, and read the first name?—Jonathan Sayles Burnyatt.

40. Mr. Dundas.] Can you write yourself?—Yes.

41. Chairman.] Did you see the person sign that name?—Unquestionably, I saw him write it, but I do not remember when it was wrote; I am sure the petition was never out of my hand; I canot pretend to say who was the person in fact, for I did not know him.

42. He wrote it actually on that bit of paper; he did not instruct you to write it?—No.

43. Mr. Dundas.] Did you see all the names upon the petition written?—Yes.

44. You say it was never out of your hands?—No; I thought there had been more names upon it than there are.

45. If you have been writing any of those names without authority you may hear of it again?—Oh, unquestionably, I did not do that; I had no interest.

46. If you have been writing any of those names, without authority to do so, you may hear of it again; you have stated that you are here to tell the truth, and if you choose to tell the whole truth you may?—The persons that signed this petition said, they would not just sign it if they were brought to exposure.

47. If you have without authority written the names of other persons you may hear of it again?—Of course, I should expect to, if I had done such a thing.

48. You have not done it?—No.

49. Chairman.] The first person is Jonathan Sayles Brunyatt; you saw him sign it then?—I do not know that it is the same person, for there was not a person I knew at all in the place.

50. Do you not remember, by chance, when you got the first signature to that petition; of course the first signature was one that would attract attention?—The first signature that was here was not put in the first; the first column the signatures were not put at first.

51. Mr. Dundas.] Do you know what was the first you got?—I forget his name, but he is a roper, and lives in the market-place; he has a front shop.

52. Mr. Darby.] Did you make any inquiries for any of the principal persons in Epworth to go to?—I do not know whether I asked whether there was anybody as they knew of Liberal principles, as we calls them, Yellows.

53. What inquiries did you make in order to prepare yourself?—I very likely might, but I do not recollect that I went to any one particularly.

54. You say you went into the hedges and by-ways for signatures; did you go into any house?—Oh yes.

55. Were the signatures procured principally in the houses you went to, or did you get them out of doors?—I got them very constantly out of doors.

56. Did you get many in houses?—No, I did not get many in houses.

57. You can remember what signatures you got in houses, perhaps?—I can point out a few; there was this roper in the corner shop, in the market-place.

58. Was there any house besides, not that of a tradesman, which you can recollect?—There was a watchmaker, I think, but I went to a grocer's shop; and I recollect this name here at the top of the column, Francis Morrish; he was a man I should think of about 40 years of age.

59. Do you remember applying to a person of the name of Maw there?—No.

60. Chairman.] Did you employ Morrish, or anybody else, to go round Epworth with you, and tell you where you could get signatures?—No, because if I had employed anybody, I should have had to pay them out of my own pocket.

61. Do you recollect what was the name of the first person who signed that petition?—That was the roper in the market-place; I do not remember his name, he has a shop nearly at the corner of the market-place; as you go in from Doncaster, I think it is right before you, with a sort of a bow window.

62. Mr. Hardy.] Can you tell where he signed?—It is somewhere at the top, but I am not sure; I cannot tell you.

63. Chairman.] Did you walk over from Doncaster?—Yes.

64. Lord Worsley.] Did you pass Crowle in your way?—No; I think Crowle is on the other side of Epworth.

65. Mr. Darby.] Do you recollect a person of the name of Aldham?—No; I do not remember that name at all.

66. Chairman.] Will you look at the fifth name in the second column, William Bolland?—I do not recollect that name, I am sure. (The Witness referred to it.)

67. Did you see that person sign that name?—I cannot say as to the person; I know that a person came out and wrote that name.

 68. You

Samuel Potts.

23 June 1843.

68. You saw a person write those words, "William Bolland"?—Yes.

69. Do you remember at all where you met that person?—No, I cannot say; I have not the slightest recollection of the man at all.

70. Is there a single name there that was written by yourself, by the direction of anybody; is there a name there in your own handwriting?—There is a name.

71. Mr. Hardy.] Have you written any name by any person's direction?—Yes; I wrote three names.

72. Chairman.] Will you mention what they are?—I cannot tell which they are.

73. You know your own handwriting?—I can tell the names, I think, when I look, which I wrote?

74. Mr. Darby.] Do you not know your own handwriting. State the names of the persons whose names you wrote by their desire?—The three names that I think I wrote.

75. Chairman.] Of course you know your own handwriting?—I can read more than one handwriting; the three names that I almost think I wrote.

76. Mr. Darby.] Do not you know your own handwriting when you look at it?—I can write more hands than one.

77. Sir George Strickland.] Did you write only three names in all these?—I recollect three names.

78. Mr. Dundas.] Did you sign them altogether?—No.

79. Chairman.] Do you know your own handwriting?—No; for I can write more handwritings than one.

80. Mr. Dundas.] Do not you know your own handwriting when you see it?—This man, I think, whose name I wrote for him, was a roper.

81. Could not the roper write his own name in his own shop?—No; I think I wrote it myself.

82. Mr. Darby.] Do you mean to state, that looking over a number of names, you have not the slightest knowledge of your own handwriting?—No; because I can write two or three hands.

83. Mr. Hardy.] Did you write those two or three names in different ways?—Yes, I do not doubt I did; I do not remember, but I know that one name I wrote was this, roper's.

84. Mr. Darby.] You say you can write three different sorts of hands?—Yes; I can write many sorts of hands.

85. Is one a large hand, and another a small hand you write?—No, they shall be all one size, very likely.

86. What shall be the particular difference?—There is a difference in every man's writing if he signs; there may be some that write very much alike, and I have no doubt there are on this petition.

87. You think there is generally a character in a person's handwriting by which it is known from the handwriting of another person, by those who have seen him write frequently?—I cannot identify my own handwriting to those three names.

88. How came you to write those in three different hands?—I do not know that they were in three different hands.

89. How came you to practice in three different hands?—From a child I could write; and I believe any man that can write, can write half a dozen hands.

90. Had you any particular object in doing it on this occasion?—No, not at all; and I do not know that I did so, but I have seen numbers of persons that write exactly the same as myself.

91. Will you find any name there that bears the character of your handwriting?—This Francis Morrish is as much like my writing as anybody's.

92. Mr. Dundas.] That was the name you got at the grocer's?—Yes, there were two I got at the grocer's.

93. Mr. Yorke.] You say that name so written, is as much like your writing as any other; is that your writing?—I can say that it is not my writing, it was wrote by the man himself in the shop there.

94. Mr. Darby.] The name which you say is most like your handwriting, is that which you say you did not write?—No; Francis Morrish wrote that himself.

95. Mr. Hardy.] Just write the name of Francis Morrish on that piece of paper?—I hardly can write. (The Witness wrote the name.)

96. If Francis Morrish is like your handwriting, you must be a pretty good penman; you have been in the habit of writing?—I have been in the habit of writing.

97. A good deal?—I cannot say a good deal; I have written.

98. If Francis Morrish is the name most like your handwriting of all the signatures to this petition, will you, in looking through these names, say which name, to the best of your belief, which any one can speak to, is your handwriting; the Committee do not require you to say positively that it is, but to the best of your belief?—(The Witness looked over the signatures.) No, there is not one that I can make out at all.

99. Mr. Dundas.] You are only asked as to your belief which is your handwriting?—I cannot say, indeed; I know there are three, but I cannot say who they are.

100. Mr. Hardy.] You are not asked which you wrote; but, from a general knowledge of your own handwriting, point out any name which to the best of your belief is your handwriting?—I cannot say, indeed.

101. Chairman.] You are to be understood that you admit you put three signatures to that petition, at the request of individuals asking you?—Yes.

102. You are also to be understood that, on looking to that paper, you cannot declare which were those three signatures?—No.

The Witness was directed to withdraw.

The Witness was again called in.

Witness.] May I be allowed to look at the petition again?

The petition was handed to the witness, and he looked over the signatures.

Witness.] There is one name here, the name of Thomas Coggon; I am not fully persuaded, but I am half persuaded I wrote that, though it does not exactly correspond with my handwriting. It seems to be wrote by a trembling hand; that does not exactly correspond with my handwriting, but I am partly persuaded, though not fully, that I wrote it.

103. Mr. Darby.] Do you see any other name besides that of Coggon, which corresponds more with your own handwriting?—No, I think to the best of my belief that may be one.

104. Mr. Dundas.] Are you sure you wrote only three names?—Not to my knowledge; I do not remember; I wrote some names; I might have wrote more than three; I cannot say.

105. Mr. Hardy.] Is George Fawcett your handwriting?—No. Would it be right I should be called on to answer to all these names on memory?

106. Mr. Darby.] You have been asked not to speak from memory to every one; but knowing your own handwriting, to say which is your handwriting and which is not?—I think Thomas Coggan was wrote by me.

107. James Reed?—I have no knowledge.

108. Do you not know who the churchwarden was?—No.

109. Here is the name of Lancelott Coggan; did you write that?—No.

110. Do you know where you got these two signatures, John Foster and W. Aldam; they appear to be the same handwriting?—They do not look like the same handwriting to me; but I do not see how I can be expected to answer for every one of these names; I ought to have a head 300 yards long.

111. You are not asked to have a head 300 yards long. You have found one name, Thomas Coggon, which you believe to be your handwriting?—Yes, though that does not exactly correspond with my handwriting.

112. Were the names you wrote all written in the same handwriting, or in different hands?—I cannot remember.

113. Can you, on looking carefully over the names one by one, see whether there is any other name which you believe to be also in your handwriting?—I cannot say.

114. Mr. Yorke.] Is it your impression that that is the only one you have written?—My impression is that I have wrote three more.

115. Mr. Hardy.] Where did you write them, out of doors or in the house?—I am not sure whether it was wrote in the house with a weaver or a shoemaker, but I think it was one of them; I think that the same man lives, instead of going up by the church on the right-hand side, on the left.

Samuel Potts.

23 June 1843.

116. Mr. Darby.] Did you know where the churchwarden lived?—No.

117. Which was the principal house you went to; the largest house?—There were one or two large houses I did not call at at all.

118. Which was the largest, the principal house you went to in the place?—There were one or two houses that I missed; one towards the top end that I passed.

119. Is there any house you particularly recollect going into besides; any of the lower order?—I have already referred to Francis Morrish and two others in that house, and another in a corner grocer's shop; I called twice, and there was a man signed the petition in the shop; the master was at breakfast, and I came round by the church. I called again, and asked him would he sign the petition, and he said no. I said he did not need to sign it, or something to that effect; and I said, "Is there any fear; durst you not sign it; is your interest at stake?" He said, "No, I am not that; but I shall not sign it." But I did go to the fields and get the signatures in this way.

120. The greatest portion, you say, you got out of doors?—Yes.

121. You cannot tell how many houses you left uncalled at?—I did not leave many.

122. But you say you got most of the signatures out of doors?—Yes, because they was not in their houses.

123. In what sort of places out of doors did you get the signatures?—In the fields.

124. There are some very good handswriting which were not very likely to be in the fields?—Is it not equally possible for a man to write his name in a field as in a house?

125. Chairman.] Did you carry a pen and ink about with you?—Yes, I did.

126. Mr. Darby.] Here is a very good handwriting.—I do not think that is very extraordinary.

127. Spencer, senior, and Spencer, junior, do you know them?—It is not likely that I can think of all those signatures; I had no idea I should have to think of half of them; I do not know that I should be able, face to face, to know above three. There was Morrish I should remember, and two others in that shop signed, and another in the grocer's shop; but the master was not there, he was at breakfast, and whether he has any knowledge of it I do not know. There was a saddler above this grocer's shop, going on the right hand, signed; I do not know his name. I am not quite sure whether there was not another saddler, on the left-hand side; and then a piece further on a man came out of a room just at the corner, but before I got to him there was a man working at a building signed, a bricklayer, he came out of the house and signed; and a man was coming out of a room, a kind of weaver, where there was a kind of loom where they work at sacking; I forget what his name was; he signed the petition. Then, when I got a little further, there was two men, turning again to my right towards the church, the one a man and another a youth about 19 years of age, and both signed the petition; one was washing a gig in the yard; it was a largish house. I do not know whether it was the master of the house or not, for I let any sign that was 18 or 20 years of age. There was people to whom I pledged my word that I would not bring them to exposure; there was a man who lived in Doncaster in particular was referred to.

128. Mr. Dundas.] Do you mean in Doncaster; do you mean to say that any person in Epworth would not sign on account of persons in Doncaster?—There were persons that signed this petition, that I pledged myself over and over again I would not bring them to exposure.

129. Mr. Hardy.] Can you tell the names of those persons?—I could tell them if I was there to point them out; I could not do it here.

130. If a person went there with you, you could find them?—These here people, the three that I have referred to, I could point out that I have spoken to.

131. Mr. Dundas.] Have you not spoken to more than three?—I have spoken to three in the grocer's shop, and the saddler, and the man cleaning the gig, and so on. There was another man that I am very sorry I have brought him to exposure, but I did it innocently; but it is known so that I cannot conceal it; but I named it in Doncaster, and I reported that I had named it. I found I had done wrong; at least I thought so.

132. Who was he?—I can tell you his trade; I cannot tell you his name.

He

He was a joiner, on the left-hand side. His house was in a corner, and there was wood before the door. His wife was in, and he signed the petition. I knew well that man would lose his bread by it, if it was known. The people were frightened to death, and they durst not sign; there was the Tory hand over them. There were some instances that they got the pen actually into their hand to sign, and then would not sign.

133. Chairman.] You appear to remember a great many minute cases?—That name is referred to; I should think a good end of a dozen may be found, and whom I pledge to find at the houses where they signed.

134. Mr. Darby.] Can you tell what class of persons those were that signed in the field; were they labourers, or did they appear to you to be farmers?—They appeared to me to be labourers; and little farmers have signed the petition, but I could not tell whether they were little or great farmers.

135. You could tell whether, from their occupation and appearance, they were principally labouring men or farmers?—I admit, to the best of my belief, they were both; though there is not always a great deal of difference between a labourer and a little farmer. Could I tell by the look of his clothes and his countenance whether he was a little farmer or a labourer?

136. Chairman.] You might know whether he was working in the fields?—Yes, and hundreds of times I have seen farmers working in the fields. I am firmly persuaded there were many that were little farmers; there were many that signed that was labourers.

137. Mr. Greene.] Whereabouts did you begin your signatures on the paper; in the first row, or the second row, or the third row, or whereabouts?—I think there would be those two columns; I tried to keep the front in reserve.

138. They would begin at the top line of some column?—Yes, I dare say they did.

139. Whether it was the third, or fourth, or fifth column, you cannot tell?—No.

140. You took this into Epworth?—Yes.

141. Which was the house you went to first?—The house I went into first? I went into the centre of the market-place first, that I might get a few respectable people, and then to begin and make them up after that; but I referred to the roper, being the person that signed first.

142. The roper's name must be in the upper part of some column?—It must be at the top.

143. You state that you wrote the roper's name?—To the best of my belief.

144. It is no great deal to look through the top of the columns; cannot you, from an inspection, discover which it was?—I believe it was Coggan; I believe I did write that.

145. Mr. Darby.] You said that Coggan was a shoemaker?—Yes, that was my first impression; but I cannot say whether it was right or not.

146. Mr. Greene.] There are but five names at the top of those five columns; which of them was the roper?—I cannot be quite certain whether the roper did sign first, or whether a hairdresser signed first; I cannot be particular to that; I cannot make my head an almanack. I am not quite sure whether there was a barber; a hairdresser, however, signed first; there were two in his shop that signed, and one that did not sign.

147. You say the roper desired you to put his name?—To the best of my belief he did.

148. Did the barber desire you to put his name?—No, the barber put his own name, and he wrote a name for a person that was in the house; there were two or three persons in the house with the barber; he wrote the name for another that was in the house with him, that gave him authority so to do.

149. Mr. Dundas.] Did you see and hear him?—Yes.

150. On which side of the street does the barber live?—He lives, as near as I remember, opposite the street, at the left hand, not going to the church.

151. Should you know him if you saw him again?—Well, I think I should.

152. Mr. Hardy.] How many names did he write?—The name of a person in his shop, working there.

153. Did the men write with your ink or their own?—I cannot tell, indeed.

154. Mr. Darby.] You found the people pretty ready to sign?—I have stated that I found objections.

 155. Generally

Samuel Potts.

23 June 1843.

155. Generally speaking, did you find the people in the field fully ready to sign?—Yes.

156. Can the labourers, generally speaking, there write well?—It does not appear that they can.

157. Did you find any that could not write at all?—I perhaps might.

158. You found some that could not write?—I did not say that.

159. Cannot you recollect whether men were not able to write their names: when you put the pen into their hands and told the men the petitions were sent for them to sign, cannot you tell whether there were not any who were not able to write their names?—I do not remember whether there was any particular; in fact the writing itself testifies that it was written by persons that could hardly write their own names.

160. Those persons being to be found among the labourers in the fields, did you find any persons that could not write at all?—I cannot say, indeed.

161. Cannot you say one way or another?—I am not obliged to speak undoubtedly, to tell a story, when I do not know.

162. Did you meet with any persons who wished to sign the petition, that could not write?—I cannot say; if there are some persons that wish to write but could not, the others might write for them.

163. Were they in the fields?—Yes, in fields, and in shops and all.

164. If that is the case, there must be a number of names written by the same persons for the parties who wished to sign?—I did not do it.

165. You state there were three names signed by you for persons, and there were other persons who could not sign; there must be several names, if that is the case, written by some persons for the parties who wished to attach their opinion to that petition?—I do not question that the men I wrote for could write their own names.

166. You say that in the shop and in the field there were persons who wrote names for other persons?—I think it is very likely that it was so, but I cannot say; you wish me to have the head of an almanack, though I was obliged to come. I never expected to recollect half these things; I shall give the best information I can.

167. The question is, whether you remember a particular name to have been written by one person for another; but you state that, both in the fields and in the houses, names were written by one party for another?—I said it was possible that it might be so; I did not admit that it was the fact.

168. Mr. Hardy.] Did one person write other persons' names?—The barber; I have answered that already; I do not think it is fair calling it over again. I think, I can say over again that the barber did sign for another.

169. Did any other person you can speak to, sign?—I cannot say.

170. Mr. Dundas.] Did any other persons besides the barber write the name of another person?—I do not remember any other but the barber.

171. Mr. Hardy.] Write the name of Morrish in the other two ways in which you say you can write.—(The Witness wrote the name in three different ways.)

172. Mr. Darby.] What was the day on which you went to Epworth?—I cannot tell the day but I can tell about; I should think it would be about the latter end of April or the beginning of May.

173. Did you see the heading of the petition written?—No; I went to fetch it.

174. Had you to wait for it till it was finished?—No; I went to the house for it, and it was ready for me.

175. You were two days at Epworth?—Yes.

176. Had you any system, or did you go to the houses first and the fields afterwards?—So far as I met them; I was watchful at night, particularly in catching them at night; they cautioned me to get all I could in the day-time in the fields.

177. Did you go to the fields in the day-time?—Yes.

178. And in the evenings you went to the houses?—Yes.

179. And you pursued that course on both days?—On the night of the second day I was on my way to Doncaster; I was not limited to time.

180. Mr. Greene.] Do you remember the two days of the week you were there?—No; I cannot recollect whether it was on a Wednesday.

181. Lord Worsley.] Was it on market-day?—No, I think not.

182. Mr. Darby.] Did you go the same day, or the next day when you got the the petition from Mr. Hastie?—When I got it from Mr. Hastie I went the same day that I got it.

183. It was only two days, including the day that you got the petition?—Yes.

184. Chairman.] Did you show and explain generally what the object of that petition was before any of the parties signed it; did you read it to them?—I did; if they wanted it read, I read it, and if they asked me what it was, I told them.

185. Mr. Dundas.] What did you tell them?—I told them it was for a total repeal of the Corn Laws, and taking all restrictions on food off entirely.

186. Chairman.] Were any people at your suggestion induced to sign that petition thinking it was for cheap tea and sugar?—No, I cannot say that I remember that.

187. Sir George Strickland.] Did you say from all food?—Yes, to the best of my recollection I did; I think I said all food.

188. Chairman.] Did you say anything about tea and sugar to those people?—I cannot say.

189. You may have done it?—If I did do it I should do it ignorantly, for I cannot say that I did.

190. You are not quite sure you did not?—No, I am not.

191. You might have said that?—It is possible.

192. When you were at Epworth, in the course of the day, you say you went to those houses principally at night?—Yes.

193. During the day did you amuse yourself in walking up and down the town at all?—I went, of course, up the town.

194. Did you happen to be copying any of the sign-boards over the shop-doors?—No.

195. You are quite sure of that?—Yes; I put down no names of any persons on the boards.

196. You say you went to the houses at night; did you not walk about by any chance, and copy for your amusement or otherwise, some of the signatures over the shop-doors?—No, I did not.

197. The question is not whether you put them into the petition, but whether you did not copy them?—No, I did not.

198. Mr. Dundas.] Either on a slate or with a pen?—No.

199. Chairman.] Have you since the time you were at Epworth, or at that time, for the purpose of getting up this petition, had any conversation with Mr. Hodgson, the vestry-clerk there; did he talk to you at all about what you had been doing?—Not to my knowledge.

200. Had you any conversation with him about it?—No, I am pretty sure I had not.

201. Did not you tell anybody that you had got a shilling a day for your work?—Oh no.

202. Are you quite sure of that?—I am quite clear about it.

203. Mr. Dundas.] Did you talk with any person about how much you got a day for your work?—No, I do not think I did.

204. Chairman.] Do you know Mr. Collinson, at Doncaster?—Yes.

205. Did he have any conversation with you about this petition?—No.

206. Mr. Collinson, the lawyer?—Yes; he never spoke to me about this petition in his life; I know him well.

207. Just have the goodness to look at the petition once more; after looking at that quite carefully, do you now declare that every one of those signatures, with the exception of those three you signed, and the one which was signed by the barber, were signed by individuals who came up professing their names to be the names signed to that petition?—Yes; I cannot say as to their names; I was not to go to the Church of England and prove their registers.

208. You believe that those signatures, with the exception of the three you have mentioned you signed for other parties, and that the barber signed for one party, were the bonâ fide signatures of the persons who came up and offered to sign that petition?—That which the barber signed was by his desire; the man told him to sign the petition.

209. You say you signed three?—To the best of my belief.

210. Will you now declare that, with the exception of those five signatures to which you have alluded, all the other signatures to the petition were attached

Samuel Potts.

by the persons whom they represented themselves to be?—I saw the people sign them; whether they were their names or not, if they put a fictitious name I cannot say; if the man's name is down, if another person has put down his name, I cannot speak to that.

211. With the exception of the four names you have mentioned, three by yourself and one by the barber, the remaining signatures to that petition were signed by individuals who met you in houses or the street?—Yes.

212. Sir George Strickland.] But the people did not say those were their own names, but they wrote the names?—Yes; I did not know whether that was their name or not.

213. Mr. Hardy.] Take your pen and write the name of "George Wells."—(The Witness wrote the same.)

214. Write "James Sampson."—Those are not the forgeries, I should expect. (The Witness wrote the same.)

215. "John Toft."—(The Witness wrote the same.)

216. "George Snowdon."—I do not know how to spell that—(The Witness wrote the same.)

217. "John Stokes."—(The Witness wrote the same.)

218. "Richard Selby."—Have not I written names enough?

219. Write that name.—(The Witness wrote the same.)

220. "George Hemisson."—(The Witness wrote the same.)

221. "Thomas Saxon."—(The Witness wrote the same.)

222. Mr. Yorke.] Have you been employed in getting up, or conducting any other petitions to Parliament?—Yes; for the League, do you mean?

223. Of any sort?—Is that a question that deserves an answer?

224. But you must answer it?—Yes, I have; I thought that this petition was what I was called on about.

225. In what direction have you been employed in getting up petitions?—I got up a petition for the parish of Wadworth.

226. Is that in the neighbourhood of Doncaster?—Yes.

227. Where else?—Bawtry.

228. Also in Yorkshire?—Yes.

229. Where else?—At Stanisforth and Bislake; they were both in one petition.

230. When were those; were they all this year?—Yes; they have been got up this year.

231. Since the 1st of January 1843?—Yes; the Bawtry petition, that must have been sent afterwards; I left it for signature, for further signature; I got 40.

232. By whom were you employed?—By Mr. Hastie, of Doncaster.

233. As in the present case?—Yes.

234. You say that you wrote the name of Thomas Coggon?—No, I did not say that.

235. You have an impression that you wrote it?—Yes.

236. On what ground have you that impression?—I do not know, but its being written with a faltering hand, imposes almost a doubt upon me; I fancy that I wrote it, but I cannot be sure.

237. You were understood to say that you doubted whether many of those for whom you had written, could write their own names?—Yes; I think they perhaps could write.

238. How do you explain the word "many" when you say you wrote only three?—I take three to be the plural number.

239. Chairman.] How have you been generally employed?—I told you I got my living in any way.

240. Do you mean in trade?—No; but I have been brought up by my father as a grocer and tea-dealer.

241. Have you lately received any parish relief?—Yes.

242. How long ago?—Not a long time since neither.

243. Are you receiving parish relief at present?—No; I was five weeks prevented working on the wet land, the fallows, the wet land, and was actually obliged; I am only a poor man, and I do anything I may be employed to do, and it is well known there were five or six weeks wet weather that no man could hoe or fallow, or do anything in the fields, and I feel poverty to be no crime.

244. It is not imputed to you; you are sometimes employed as an agricultural labourer?—Yes, and sometimes I go out with bills.

245. In short, you are ready to get any sort of job?—Yes, any sort of job for an honest living.

246. Lord Worsley.] Had you ever been employed before this year in getting signatures to petitions?—No, never before.

247. Mr. Dundas.] How old are you?—I think I am about 34.

248. Have you lived in Doncaster all that time?—All the time, all my life.

249. Have you been mostly an agricultural labourer, or have you been employed with your father?—I have been employed by my father as a grocer and tea-dealer, and kept cows.

250. Where does your father live?—He is dead; he lived near the Turf Tavern for many years.

251. Are you a married man?—Yes.

252. Are your wife and children in Doncaster?—Yes.

253. Where do they live?—Near the Turf Tavern.

254. Whose tenant are you?—The house belongs to one Mrs. Childers, a widow.

255. What do you pay for it?—I pay about 5*s.* 10*d.* a month.

256. How long have you held under Mrs. Childers?—I cannot tell; perhaps two years and a half.

257. Always living in the same house?—Yes.

258. Who has been employing you the last two years and a half?—That would be a very difficult question to answer; Mr. Wilton has employed me.

259. Who is Mr. Wilton?—He is well known in Doncaster.

260. Is he a farmer?—He has, perhaps, 150 acres of land; but he is a draper there; I believe he has retired from business.

261. Have you been employed on his land, or in his business?—On his land; I was employed for him last winter.

262. You state that Mr. Hastie gave you the petition?—Yes.

263. Did you leave Doncaster the same day he gave you the petition?—I almost think I did; but I had two petitions. I cannot say.

264. Had you any other petition from Mr. Hastie the day you got this?—I am not quite sure whether I had another petition or not.

265. What other was it?—I am not sure whether it was the Wadworth petition.

266. You are not certain that you went the same day you got the petition?—No; I can bring plenty of proof that I was there two days.

267. Then you went to Epworth?—Yes.

268. At what time of the day did you get to Epworth?—I cannot tell particularly the time; but let me get there what time I would, my harvest is at night-time mostly.

269. At what time did you get there?—Very likely at three o'clock; but I looked at no clock.

270. What time did it take you to go from Doncaster to Epworth?—It would take me nearly three hours.

271. It is not so long ago; cannot you tell at what time of the day you left Doncaster to go to Epworth?—I do not know; it might be some time in the forenoon; towards noon, perhaps.

272. Did you go straight to Epworth?—Yes.

273. Did you get any signatures to the petition before you got to Epworth?—Unless there were some few in the fields as I went in.

274. Did you get any signatures to the petition before you got to Epworth, aye or no?—I cannot say; I cannot remember.

275. If you were upon your oath would you swear you did?—No, I should not wish to take an oath at all.

276. Would you not, upon your oath, say what you have stated just now, everything you have stated to-day?—To the best of my belief, of course I should.

277. Did you get any signatures to the petition before you got to Epworth?—I cannot remember.

278. Did you go straight to the public-house before you got any signatures?—No, I called at three houses, and was to call again as I returned.

 279. Did

Samuel Potts.

23 June 1843.

279. Did you see any persons and get signatures before you went to the public-house?—No.

280. Did you leave the petition at any house and go away from the house; had you always the petition with you when the petition was signed?—I think, to the best of my belief, the petition was always in my possession, unless I was in bed, or gone to the yard, or anything of that kind.

281. Where did you sleep?—I have told you before, at the first house in Epworth.

282. You slept at Epworth?—Yes.

283. When did you leave Epworth to go back to Doncaster?—It might be sometime about noon; one o'clock, perhaps.

284. One o'clock the next day?—Yes.

285. Are you to be understood that you were at Epworth only one night?—Only one night.

286. You got there at three in the afternoon, you say; you found your harvest was at night, you say?—Yes.

287. Were the people out of Epworth when you got there, in the fields; was it after dinner time when you got there?—Yes, it was.

288. Did you get any signatures at all in Epworth till the people came back from the fields?—I should question whether I did; I cannot remember.

289. Did you see the barber the night you went to Epworth?—No, I think it was the next day.

290. Was it the next day?—I am almost sure it was the next morning.

291. Was he in his shop?—Yes.

292. How many persons were with the barber in the shop?—Two.

293. He signed for one of those?—Yes.

294. Did the other sign for himself?—No, he refused.

295. Had you signed the three signatures you signed for the other persons before that time?—I cannot tell that.

296. Did you sign those signatures, upon your solemn word, the night you got there?—No.

297. Were they all signed the next morning?—Yes, I should think they was.

298. Were they?—The three signatures?

299. You heard the question; answer it; you do not want time?—The three names I put down was in the morning; they were all the next morning.

300. The same morning you saw the barber?—Yes, I dare say they were.

301. Were they or not?—I cannot say particularly.

302. That is the only answer you will give?—Yes, I cannot say further; you do not want me to tell a story.

303. Look at that first signature; that you say was not the first put on the paper?—No.

304. How came you to remember that?—Because it was begun the other way.

305. Do you state, upon your solemn word, that that was not written by you?—No.

306. It was written by the man himself?—Yes.

307. Should you know him?—I should, I think.

308. Did he sign any other signature upon that page except this?—No.

309. Look at the second; was that name down first or second, do you remember when it was put down?—No, I do not recollect.

310. Was that put down by a man who put down no other signature but that?—The same man wrote no other but that.

311. If you were upon your oath, would you swear that was not written by you?—Yes; but I do not wish to take an oath, because I think it is unlawful to take an oath.

312. Other people think it is?—Yes, there is a difference of opinion. I believe in the New Testament.

313. Believing in the New Testament (I do not want to put you upon your oath), but tell us as clearly as you can, was that John Green written by you?—No.

314. You lodged at the house of John Green?—Yes.

315. He is a public-house keeper?—Yes; but he did not sign that; his name was Green; I cannot say whether his name was John.

316. Where

316. Where did this man sign?—He signed that as I came from Doncaster; I think, on going over it, it strikes me very forcibly it was at the end of Epworth.

317. Was that in going into Epworth, or as you were returning to Doncaster?—I think it was not at all as I was going in, but I have a faint recollection of a man of the name of John Green.

318. A faint recollection: it is but two months ago. You say that Green was your landlord; was this written in Green's house?—No.

319. Did you ask the landlord to sign?—Yes.

320. Did he sign?—No, not to my knowledge.

321. You say solemnly that "John Green" was not written by you?—It was not.

322. Look at that name, John Fox, was that written by you?—It was not.

323. You remember that?—Yes; I cannot remember who wrote it, but it was not by me.

324. Do you mean to state, as an honest man, that you cannot point out any one of the three signatures you wrote?—Not one.

325. Do you wish the Committee to believe you, as an honest man, that you cannot name any one of those three signatures?—Yes.

326. You say you have written three signatures?—Yes.

327. Do you mean to say, as an honest man, that you cannot tell any one of those three signatures?—No further than I am partly persuaded about Coggon.

328. Where was that written?—To the best of my belief, it was on the left hand going round.

329. How many people were in that place?—To the best of my belief, nobody but himself.

330. Just take Richard Coy; he is the fourth; will you state whether you did not write that, and mind what you are about?—No.

331. Did you or did you not?—I did not write that, to my knowledge, at all.

332. Did you or did you not?—No, I did not, as I know of; I do not remember that ever I wrote that.

333. Look at John Brown; now mind what you are about?—I cannot say that I did.

334. Did you or did you not write it?—I cannot be positive.

335. I ask you, as an honest man, did you not write that?—I almost think not.

336. Did you or did you not?—I cannot be sure.

337. You will not be sure whether you did or not?—I cannot say unless I am sure.

338. Look at the next name, Thomas Brown; did you or not write that?—No.

339. You did not write that?—I think I did not.

340. Will you stick to it that you did not?—I think I did not. I cannot go through the whole petition.

341. I do not ask you about any name now but Thomas Brown?—I cannot say decidedly.

342. Did you not write that?—I think not.

343. Might you have written it; you understand the meaning of the question?—I think not.

344. Did you?—I think not, but I cannot be sure.

345. You might have written it?—No, I think I have not written it.

346. Do you mean to say that is the only answer you can give?—It is.

347. It is the only answer you will give?—I cannot give any other without telling a story.

348. Did you write the name of Thomas Hill?—I think not.

349. If you were upon your oath no jury would be satisfied with that answer; you would be asked, upon your solemn oath, whether you did write it?—No.

350. You did not write it?—I think not.

351. Might you have written it?—It is very possible I might have written it; but I did not, I think.

352. You will swear you did not write it?—You will ask me the same as to every name down here.

 353. I will

Samuel Potts.

23 June 1843.

353. I will ask you as to every name?—Then I cannot answer.

354. What do you say to the name of Thomas Hill; did you or did you not write that; recollect where you are?—No, I think not.

355. I do not ask you what you think, but did you or did you not?—It is my firm opinion that I did not.

356. It is my firm opinion that I did not; but I can go further, and say I did not?—It is my firm opinion that I did not, and I am almost sure I did not.

357. You will not swear you did not?—I cannot go any further.

358. It is a plain question for any man to answer?—No, I think I did not.

359. Did you or not write these letters, "Thomas Hill"?—I did not.

360. Why did not you say that before?—Because you almost compel me to do it.

361. You are not compelled to say anything which is not the truth; now you say you did not do it?—No, I did not write that.

362. Will you swear you did not write the name above it, Abram Maw?—No.

363. Did you not write Thomas Brown?—No.

364. Why did you not say you had not before?—I think I did not write Thomas Brown; Abram Maw I am sure I did not.

365. You have said you did not write the name of Thomas Brown?—No, I think I did not write that.

366. The question is not whether you think this or the other, but whether you did write it or not?—You want to bind me to that I cannot speak to.

367. The question is one a plain man can answer; if you choose to say you will not answer it for fear of the consequences, you may?—I did not write that.

368. The next name; look at Robert Thompson?—No, I did not write that.

369. Was that written by the person named Robert Thompson, or the person who you understood at the time was Robert Thompson?—I did not know what his name was.

370. You understood that the man who put that name down was the man who represented himself to be Robert Thompson?—Yes.

371. Did you write Thomas Naylor?—No.

372. Did you write John Maw?—No.

373. Did you write George Kell?—No.

374. Did you write William Langton?—No.

375. Did you write William Kelsey?—No.

376. Answer like a true man, did you write Thomas Chantry?—No.

377. Why did you say you did not write that, when you could not tell whether you wrote John Green?—I have told you before that I did not write that.

378. You were asked whether it was your handwriting?—I said no.

379. Was that your writing, "John Brown"?—No.

380. You before said you thought it was not?—I say it is not.

381. John Fox?—No.

382. You say that was not written by you?—Yes.

383. Was that written by another man, and not by you?—Yes.

384. You did not hold the pen?—No.

385. Did the person come to you, or did you come to him?—I cannot say. There were some petitioners who could not write.

386. Except those persons whom you have spoken of, and the man the barber signed for, you signed for none?—I do not remember that I did.

387. Did you or not?—No, I think not.

388. Did you?—You want to bind me.

389. I want to bind you to the truth.—I cannot be compelled to tell a story.

390. Your business is not to tell a story, but the truth; I ask you with respect to John Fox?—That was not written by me.

391. J. Reed?—No.

392. That was not by you?—No.

393. Thomas Drury?—No.

394. Francis Ward?—No.

395. William Johnson?—No.

396. Hartly Robinson?—No.

397. Robert Layster?—No.

398. Joseph Thowla, was that written by you?—No.
399. That is not your "J"?—No.
400. You did not write it?—No.
401. Did you write that, Richard Chapman?—No.
402. Or Abram Harrison?—No.
403. Nor this at the bottom, Thomas Snow?—No.
404. William Snow, Goseh Chamberlin, Robert Chamberlin?—No.
405. James Johnson?—No.
406. George Johnson; do you mean to say you did not write those two names?—No.
407. Nor the name at the bottom?—No.
408. You have no doubt about those?—No.
409. Why have you no doubt about those at the top?—I tell you I have no doubt about that, but it is impossible to be so positive on the impulse of the moment; it is not likely that any man should be able to bind himself about these things.
410. I could bind myself about every one. You say you did not sign Francis Morrish?—I did not.
411. Will you say positively you did not sign that?—I say most solemnly I did not; if an oath was not unlawful I would swear it; I told you that Francis Morrish signed it himself.
412. Richard Maw, did you write that?—That is not mine.
413. Did you write the next one, Goodall?—No; this Goodall, I can tell you who he is if I can remember right; if I am not mistaken, he is a hairdresser in Epworth.
414. Was he the barber?—I think that is the man.
415. Do you know whether Thomas Smith is the name he signed for?—I cannot say; I am sure he signed his own name and another.
416. Did he sign them both together?—I have told you he signed his own name and another man's.
417. Did he sign both together, one after another?—I cannot say whether he wrote them following one another; it might be very likely he might put it in another place.
418. Did he sign them both at the same time?—Yes; he wrote his own name first, and then the other man's name.
419. You think Goodall was a barber?—Yes, I think so.
420. Did you sign William Bolland?—No.
421. Are you sure you did not sign that?—Yes.
422. Will you say you did not?—I will say so.
423. Have you no doubt of it?—I have none.
424. Did you sign R. Kelsey?—No.
425. Nor Young Taylor?—No.
426. Nor that word "John"?—No.
427. Nor the next name, William Atkinson?—No.
428. Nor William Shipley?—No.
429. You are sure you did not sign that?—Yes.
430. Samuel Clark?—No.
431. Nor George Hague?—No.
432. Nor John Kelsey; now mind about that?—No; it is impossible for me to think of every one of them.
433. You are asked to state whether you signed those names?—No.
434. Did you sign John Kirk?—No.
435. Or George Lendsley?—No, not that I can know.
436. Why have you any doubt about it?—Because I signed the roper's name, and am not sure which it is.
437. Cannot you tell your own handwriting?—I told you before, I think I may say I did not sign that.
438. George Kirk?—Yes; I did not write that.
439. James Reed?—No.
440. Nor Sissons?—No.
441. Or the next, George Bramwell?—No.
442. Or the next, George Bramwell, junior?—No.
443. Or Goseh Chamberlin, junior?—No.
444. Or John Cheesman?—No.

445. Or

445. Or Robert Johnson?—No.
446. William Barrow?—No.
447. Is not that your handwriting; look at it?—No.
448. Septimus Fox; you did not write that?—No.
449. Or John Chamberlin?—No.
450. Or Joseph Chamberlin?—No.
451. William Warrender; is that your handwriting, aye or no?—No.
452. William Spencer, senior?—No.
453. William Spencer, junior?—No.
454. Richard Atkin?—No.
455. Lancelott Coggan?—No.
456. Francis Coggan; is that your handwriting?—No, it is not.
457. William Dobson; is that your writing?—No.
458. William Dobson, junior?—No.
459. Matthew Ingham; is that your writing?—I cannot be quite sure.
460. What makes you have some doubt whether it is yours or not?—I have no particular reason, but I cannot say whether I did so or not.
461. Where was that signed?—I cannot remember.
462. Were the persons in the field, or in the house, or in the streets, for whom you did sign?—I cannot remember.
463. Were they signed in the streets or in the field?—I cannot tell you; is it likely one should remember?
464. It is perfectly likely; for if I had signed for three persons out of 219, I should have seen them at once?—I cannot tell you whether it was so.
465. Do you know whether that is your writing; Matthew Ingham?—I really do not know.
466. You do not say one way or another?—No; it is possible.
467. You rather think it is so?—It is possible; but I cannot be sure.
468. Chairman.] Do you know that person, Matthew Ingham?—No; I see there are three or four that I very likely might be able to make out, but I could not be sure. I recollect the saddler, the baker, the joiner; I think I know him in my eye well enough, but I cannot swear to him. If you could point me to his house I could tell you whether it was him; for his house goes up in this way, fronting with a timber place before it.
469. Mr. Dundas.] Whether you signed it or no, you do not know any person of the name of Matthew Ingham?—I do not think it is my writing.
470. Have you come to that?—Yes.
471. I thought you were the other way just now?—You never heard me admit it was my handwriting.
472. Whose is it?—I can only speak as a matter of opinion.
473. Did you see the person write those two words?—It strikes me, but I am not sure, that it was a young man in the grocer's shop that wrote that, along with Morrish. I cannot be sure whether it was him or not.
474. You now doubt whether you wrote it yourself?—I am persuaded I did not write it.
475. You have changed your mind; is that your opinion?—I must speak solemnly, that I am not sure. I am not going to be sure about it.
476. You think it was written by Matthew Ingham?—There were him and other young men in the shop. Morrish was a man about 40 years of age, and there were two others; and it strikes me it was one of those. If I am in error, I am in error.
477. That is your reason for changing your opinion?—It partly resembles my writing, but I think it is not.
478. Your judgment upon the whole is, that it is not yours?—Yes.
479. John Dilks; is that yours?—No.
480. Is Thomas Thorpe yours?—No.
481. Is Joseph Cheesman your writing?—No.
482. Is John Bramwell your writing?—No.

492. Is William Aldam yours?—No.

493. Is John Locke yours?—No.

494. Is Thomas Smith yours?—No.

495. Is George Pigott yours?—No.

496. Is Joshua Kelsey yours?—No.

497. Is William Chaffer yours?—No.

498. Is the next yours, Redfin?—No.

500. Those were written by those other persons at the time, and you understood they were writing their own names?—No, I could not tell whether they were their own names; I was a stranger to them, and they to me.

501. Is James Blackband yours?—Let me see, I almost think that is mine; but you want to persuade me; I am partly persuaded that is my writing.

501*. Have you as strong a persuasion about that being your writing, as you have in respect to Coggon's?—I admitted Coggon's before.

502. Is that your writing?—It is all true respecting Coggon's, but I am partly persuaded about Blackband's.

503. Were you desired by either or both of those persons to put down their names?—If I wrote them down I should be desired, or I should not have written them; if I wrote them, they gave me leave.

504. Do you remember whether either of them were in the fields or in the town?—No, but I fancy they were both in the house.

505. And on the same morning you saw the builder?—Yes.

506. The next, Levi Clark; is that yours?—No.

507. Benjamin Leggatt, is that?—No.

508. Francis Nicholson?—No.

510. Daniel Haweler; did you write that?—No.

511. Did you write the following name?—No.

512. Or Kent?—No.

513. Did you write George Reed?—(The Witness hesitated.)—No.

514. Why have you a doubt about that?—Because there is a man whose name I remember signing, but I do not know his name now; a shoemaker.

515. Do you not know your own handwriting enough to know whether you put that; whether he desired it or not?—No, I did not write that.

516. You have no doubt now?—No.

517. William Dobson; did you write that?—No.

518. Is Thomas Briggs yours?—No.

519. George Kent?—No.

520. Look at the next, George Follett; is that yours?—No.

521. Is William Kirk yours?—No.

522. Joseph Haweler; is that yours?—No.

523. Or John Blackband?—No.

524. Is the next yours; James Gravell?—No.

525. John Coggan?—No.

526. James Chamberlin?—No.

527. William Reed?—No.

528. Look over the rest of the names: John Foster, jun.; George Foster; John Brainell; George Brainell; Roger Hollgate; George Hemery; are none of those in your writing?—No.

529. Is James Gravell yours?—No.

530. William Gravell?—No.

531. John Foster?—No.

532. Nor James Gravell, jun.?—No.

533. George Clarke?—No.

534. Thomas Humphrey?—No.

535. George Lent or Thomas Cooke?—No.

536. You

Samuel Potts.

23 June 1843.

536. You are quite sure none of those are yours, except those two at the top; and you are partly persuaded with respect to those?—No.

537. What do you say about Thomas Richardson?—I do not recollect him.

538. It is not your handwriting?—No; I think not.

539. Cannot you tell us positively, whether it was your writing or not?—No.

540. Might it be yours?—Yes, very possibly it might be.

541. Have you any doubt about it?—I am not sure.

542. Is it like your writing?—Yes; partly so.

543. What makes you have a doubt about it?—Because I am partly persuaded it is so, though I cannot be sure.

544. Why cannot you be sure?—Because it is like it.

545. It is not so long ago but that you might remember it; it is not two months ago; you will not say that it is not yours?—No.

546. Joseph Davey; is that yours?—No.

547. Are you sure about that?—Yes.

548. Why did you not answer immediately?—I did immediately.

549. Is William Yates yours?—No.

550. Are you sure of it?—Yes.

551. Is that your handwriting?—No.

552. Thomas Pinchin?—No.

553. Is the next yours?—No.

554. Do you remember when the next two names were written?—Thomas Sayles and William Hill? No, I cannot say that I do.

555. You remember nothing about them, one way or another way, nor anything about them?—No.

556. Is William Hill a person you remember anything about?—No.

557. Or the next one, Ashmell?—No.

558. That is not your handwriting?—No.

559. Or the next, Richard Atkin?—No.

560. Or George Hemisson?—No.

561. Or Johnson?—No.

562. Or Lantern?—No.

563. Or Davy?—No.

564. Or Crockell?—No.

565. Harrah?—No.

566. George Harrah; is that yours?—No.

567. Is George Larnin yours?—No.

568. Or George Atkin?—No.

569. Are you quite sure of that?—Yes; if I had any doubt I would not hesitate to say so.

570. Thomas Glew?—No.

571. Is George Atkin yours?—No.

572. Is John Butler yours?—No.

573. Is Ward yours?—No.

574. Or Scawtvar?—No, I do not remember the name.

575. Did you write George Wilson?—No.

576. Is the next name, Brabinner, in your handwriting?—No.

577. George Daxon; did you write that?—No.

578. Or Thomas Greaves?—No.

579. Or George Reid?—No.

580. Or William Thompson?—No.

581. Abram Wilson?—No.

582. William Hesthorn?—No.

583. William Jones?—No.

584. William White?—No.

585. Thomas Dodsworth?—No.

586. W. Ramsay?—No.

587. There is no name here, with the exception of those as to which you have spoken, that you wrote?—I am not quite persuaded whether I did sign one other or not.

588. Did not you say it was Thomas Smith whose name the barber wrote?—No.

589. You are clear that is not your handwriting?—Yes.
590. Or Robert Gardham?—No.
591. Philip Duncan?—No.
592. William Cawthron; is that yours?—No.
593. George Wells?—No.
594. James Clarke?—No.
595. William Stoory?—No.
596. William Killam?—No.
597. Samuel Brookes?—No.
598. W. Lantern?—No.
599. Richard Selby?—No.
600. William Butterick?—No.
601. Thomas Hill?—No.
602. John Needham?—No.
603. William Crowder?—No.
604. None of those were written by you?—No, I think not.
605. What do you mean me to understand?—No.
606. William Axe?—No.
607. Thomas Saxon?—No.
608. John Bowers?—No.
609. Robert Tongue?—No.
610. James Sampson?—No.
611. Francis Ward?—No.
612. Charles Ward?—No.
613. Thomas Bromby?—No.
614. John Toft?—No.
615. Thomas Eselwood?—No.
616. Peter Frost?—No.
617. William Newell?—No.
618. Joseph Acroyd?—No.
619. Is either of the others in that column your handwriting: Lilleman, Jeffery, Godley, Forost, Mitchell, Pickering, Fox, Laycock?—No.
620. You say that none of those which are in this column were written by your pen?—No.
621. To return to the first column; what do you say to that first name?—I am sure somebody wrote it, but I cannot say who he was.
622. What do you say to Teanby?—Am I to go over all these again?
623. You did not answer clearly as to those before?—Some person wrote this.
624. John Green?—Yes, I saw him.
625. John Brown?—I do not remember that John Brown.
626. Do you think you wrote that name?—I think not.
627. Did you or not?—I cannot be positive, but it is my opinion that I did not.
628. Why do you think you did not?—I am partly persuaded that I did not; it is not exactly the appearance of my writing.
629. If you know the appearance of your writing, cannot you state what are the signatures which are yours?—I rather think I am firmly persuaded it is not mine.
630. You rather think you are firmly persuaded it is not yours?—You will compel me to say I do not know.
631. Mr. Villiers.] Who is John Brown?—I cannot say.
632. Mr. Dundas.] Are you clear in your mind now that you did not write that?—No, I believe I did not.
633. Did you or not?—No, I think not.
634. You have been stating positively as to other names that you did not; why will not you tell me whether or not you did write those three names eight or nine weeks ago?—If there is a doubt on my own mind whether I wrote them, I will not, of course, say that I am positive.
635. If you wrote the signatures, did you write all at one time, or at different times?—That it is impossible for me to remember; it is not likely.
636. You are in the habit, you say, of writing different hands?—I do not say that I am in the habit of doing it, but I can do it.
637. Did you on those occasions use one handwriting, or several?—I do not

Samuel Potts.

23 June 1843.

not know; I should think it was one; I cannot remember these things, or half; you have asked me now 300 questions.

638. If it is necessary, you will have to answer a great number more?—But you want to bind me to that I do not know; I can make nothing no more of it.

639. After you got the signatures, did you go straight to Doncaster with the petition; did this man Laycock sign last?—I cannot say.

640. Did you go directly back to Doncaster?—Yes.

641. Whom did you go to with the petition?—To Mr. Hastie.

642. What did you say to him?—He was not within when I brought it.

643. What did you do with it?—I left it at his shop, and went again and saw him.

644. Did you ever see the petition again when it was in Mr. Hastie's hands?—I really cannot say whether I did or not; I think not.

645. Can you state, by reference to the petition, whether it has upon it the same number, or about the same number of signatures as when you gave it over to Mr. Hastie?—I have no doubt they are all the same names that were to it when I gave it to Mr. Hastie; I do not believe there are any names added to it.

646. What account did you give to Mr. Hastie of your proceedings?—I do not know that I gave any account at all; I think I told him what signatures there were; I forget how many I reckoned there were.

647. What did you say to Mr. Hastie?—I do not know what I did say; he was not at home, and I came again; and he said, "Well, you have brought the petition home"; and I says, "Yes, the young man has put it so and so, under the desk." I do not think it was reached out; and I told him how many signatures there were.

648. What did he say to you, or you to him, when you spoke to him about the petition?—When he was in again he said, "You have brought the petition," and I says, "Yes, the young man has put it under the desk;" and I think it was not reached out.

649. You said something about the number?—I think I told him; I am almost sure I told him.

650. What did you tell him?—I cannot tell the number now.

651. Had you counted them up?—Yes, I dare say I had.

652. Had you counted them up at Epworth?—I might have counted them at Epworth, and Doncaster as well; I know I did at Doncaster.

653. Can you give the exact number, or something near it?—I cannot tell you, only I can say those are the names.

654. How came you to be able to say those are the names, if you did not count them?—I counted them; I thought there ought to have been one or two more.

655. Looking at the face of the petition, it had about as many names upon it as you saw at Epworth?—Yes.

656. There is not any name added to it?—No, not one, certainly; it is in just the state it was; there is not anything altered.

657. According to the best of your belief, it is exactly in the state in which you handed it to him?—Yes.

658. Mr. Darby.] And you took it away from Mr. Hastie without any signatures to it?—There was not one; and he gave me a strict charge not to put one name down, however few; that it was the cause of God, and not to fabricate one, not to put one down.

659. Mr. Villiers.] Who said that?—Mr. Hastie.

660. Is he the secretary to the Anti-Corn Law Association at Doncaster?—I cannot speak to that.

661. Is he a member of the Association?—I think so, or he would not have employed me.

662. Mr. Dundas.] Cannot you give the name of one single person, whom you saw at Epworth, who gave you any signature?—I have given two or three. Did not I state the name of Francis Morrish and two others in one shop?

663. Where were they?—In the grocer's shop; there were three in one shop; they were all in the grocer's shop while the master was at tea.

664. What is the name of the grocer?—I cannot tell his name, but I have given him the name of Morrish.

665. Your

665. Your impression is that Goodall is the barber?—I cannot say I am quite sure that it is.

666. Mr. Villiers.] Had you any friends or relations in Epworth?—No.

667. But you can name two or three persons to whom the Committee can refer as having signed the petition?—Yes.

668. Mr. Dundas.] You would know the barber again if you saw him?—I should not be sure, but I think I should; he is a youngish man, I should think about 30 years of age. There were two witnesses in this man's house; there was a man that signed it, and one that refused.

669. Can you state who was the first that signed?—Francis Morrish signed, I know.

670. Did any other person sign at the same time with Francis Morrish?—There was two more in that shop besides Morrish signed that petition.

671. Can you state what were their names?—No, I cannot.

672. Mr. Villiers.] Were you referred to any person at Epworth?—No, they never mentioned any person to my knowledge; I never knew one; I would have gone to the Liberal party first; it is a great matter to get two or three good names; I could get 50 names after that.

673. Mr. Hastie did not give you an introduction to any person at Epworth?—No. I should have got my money all the same if I had brought the petition back without signatures, for I was told not to get fictitious signatures.

674. Do you suppose you could have got your money without names to the petition?—I am sure I could.

675. Was it Mr. Hastie who told you not to get any signatures fictitiously, and that numbers did not signify?—Yes; that there was not to be one name added to it without the consent of the person.

676. Was Mr. Hastie the person who made the agreement with you?—Yes; and I could have brought back the petition without more names; or instead of two days, I might have made six days. I was paid at 4*s.* a day. I thought there might be more petitions to carry out, and I carried it in immediately.

677. Did any one tell you at Epworth not to bring that petition; that they would not sign it?—I cannot tell.

678. Had you any quarrel there?—There was a bricklayer who would not sign; that was all.

679. Did you quarrel with any because they would not sign?—No; I should be very foolish to go quarrelling with men who would not sign, when I had not a farthing of interest in it.

680. Did you find the generality of the people averse to sign; reluctant to sign?—They were not generally ready to sign.

681. Were the shopkeepers ready to sign?—There were some that were under a terror.

682. What do you mean by that?—They were most likely frightened by the landlords.

683. Why were they frightened by the landlords?—Because, if they signed this petition, the loaves and fishes would be at stake immediately that their names were put to the petition. They wanted me not to expose them.

684. Did any one put down their names to the petition, that told you they were afraid of their names being known?—I am sure there is no petition where there are not some who do not desire their names to be known.

685. Did any put down their names and desire them not to be known?—Yes.

686. Did several?—Yes.

687. Chairman.] Can you point out those?—No.

688. Mr. Darby.] Did you promise that you would not let their names be known?—Yes.

689. Then you must have remembered who they were when you had given that promise. Look, and state whether you can now state who the names were?—Which of the names I signed and wrote myself?

690. You say you made distinct promises to several persons that you would not disclose their names; you could not give that promise without bearing in mind what those names were?—Yes, it is possible.

691. If I promised William Shipley that I would not disclose his name, I must recollect that his name was the name I promised not to disclose. Do you look look at that petition, and see whether you can recollect what the names were? —Shall I be bound afterwards to acknowledge those names?

692. On looking into that petition, do you see any names which you promised not to disclose?—If I do that, am I still bound to disclose those names?

693. Chairman.] Do you see there any names that you promised not to disclose?—(The Witness went over the names.)—Yes, I can see some of them.

694. Mr. Darby.] Do you see any?—Yes

695. Do you see one, or more than one?—I cannot tie myself to any number.

696. Do you see one name, or more than one; and if more than one, how many?—(The Witness looked over the list.)—No, I think I remember one.

697. Do you or do you not see one?—Yes, there is one.

698. Can you speak distinctly to one?—Yes.

699. Can you speak to more than one?—No, I cannot speak to more than one.

700. Sir George Strickland.] Were you asked by more than one person not to disclose their names, though you cannot recollect now what were their names?—Yes.

701. Mr. Darby.] You stated that Mr. Hastie told you not to put any names except those that signed, or authorized you; fictious names, according to your word?—Yes.

702. Had you said anything to Mr. Hastie to make him think you might resort to such a practice?—Oh no.

703. That you well recollect?—When he gave me the petition, he gave me that charge.

704. Chairman.] Have you collected several petitions against the Corn Laws? —Yes.

705. Mr. Dundas.] When you went to a person and asked him to sign a petition against the Corn Laws, did you ask him his name before he signed?—Oh no; he would sign his name.

706. If he signed some name you were content?—Yes.

The Witness was directed to withdraw.

The Witness was again called in.

707. Mr. Dundas.] While you had the petition to get signatures, did you offer any man anything to put his name down?—No.

708. Did you ever promise any man anything?—No.

709. Was any money given you to do that?—No, I did not give a farthing, nor would not have done it.

710. Mr. Villiers.] Did you drink with any people in the course of the day, that signed?—No, I had no occasion.

711. Do you believe that if you were to go to Epworth you should know the persons who signed that petition?—I should know some of them; I can point out the houses of a dozen perhaps.

712. Did any man, when he signed his name, joke about it; did he put his name in jest, as if he did not care what he did?—No, I do not remember anything of that kind.

713. Were they chiefly working men that signed that petition?—There were many working men.

714. Was any man asked that could not write his name?—The barber's man; I do not know whether he might have written his name if he had been required.

715. Was any name written for any person because he said that he could not write it himself?—No; I referred to three that I believe I signed, but I think they could probably have done it themselves.

716. Did you refuse to take the name of any person without his signature? —No.

717. Should you have put a cross instead of the name of any person that could not write?—No.

718. You would not have expected that Mr. Hastie would have rejected the petition on that account?—No, for it is usual.

719. Did you ever get a petition signed for Mr. Hastie before?—Yes.

720. Did

720. Did he generally tell you to be particular about signatures?—Yes; he told me the first day that I went.

721. Mr. Hardy.] What did he tell you?—I have stated before that he gave me a charge not to put fictious names, or to have any bad signatures; that they were to be good, though they were ever so few; that he had rather it went to the House of Commons with a few names, than have any bad names; no person was to sign, unless they gave their consent, either by themselves or any other.

722. Mr. Darby.] Have you been employed several times to get petitions before?—I have admitted that.

723. Chairman.] You have stated that you were not generally acquainted with Epworth and its neighbourhood?—I have.

724. During the day and a half you were employed in getting up signatures to this petition, how far did you go out of the village of Epworth to obtain them; how many miles?—I did not go above a mile, or a mile and a half.

725. You suppose you did not go above two miles from the village to obtain these signatures?—No, not so far as that.

726. To the best of your recollection, all these signatures were obtained within two miles of the village of Epworth?—Yes.

727. To the best of your recollection?—Yes, to the best of my belief.

728. Mr. Villiers.] Have you heard whether any person in Epworth has stated that a very large proportion of these signatures are forgeries?—I have heard as much.

729. Did you hear that in Doncaster?—Yes.

730. What have you to say to that?—I say I deny it.

731. You do not believe those are forgeries?—No; there may be forgeries of persons who have signed.

732. You mean that persons may have deceived you, and given you wrong names?—Yes.

733. That you do not question?—No; I cannot say anything to that.

734. You have not wilfully signed any names of persons who did not give you permission to sign?—No.

735. Mr. Yorke.] And you assert that in all you did not sign more than three?—I think not more than three.

736. You were understood to say so positively?—I cannot say positively to three.

737. Mr. Villiers.] Has it ever happened to you before to have a petition questioned that you have had the getting up of?—I never was employed in getting up petitions till just now.

738. You have not heard of any dispute about any other petition?—No.

739. Mr. Hardy.] Have you given the names of all the places where you were well known in getting up petitions?—Yes, I think I have.

740. Mr. Villiers.] You did not question any of the men who signed, whether they belonged to the parish?—No; there are men I know that signed who were not parishioners.

741. Mr. Yorke.] You went round with those other petitions to which you have referred, and collected the signatures?—Yes.

742. Mr. Dundas.] As far as you know, no persons put down more names than their own except yourself and the barber?—Unless he was vested with authority; the barber was vested with authority.

743. Is that the only case which occurred?—I think I referred to another, but I am not quite sure.

744. Sir George Strickland.] Did Morrish sign for anybody else?—No; two persons in the shop signed for themselves.

745. Mr. Yorke.] If there had been any other case you think you should have recollected it, there being only two cases, the case of yourself, and the case of the barber?—Yes.

746. Your belief is that there was no third case?—Yes, it is.

Lunæ, 26° die Junii, 1843.

MEMBERS PRESENT.

Mr. Christopher.	Sir George Strickland.
Mr. Darby.	Mr. Villiers.
Mr. Dundas.	Lord Worsley.
Mr. Greene.	Mr. Redhead Yorke.
Mr. Hardy.

R. ADAM CHRISTOPHER, Esq. IN THE CHAIR.

Mr. Richard Dickenson, called in; and Examined.

Mr. R. Dickenson.
26 June 1843.

747. Chairman.] WILL you be so good as to look at that, and state whether that is a correct copy which was made in the Journal-office from the Epworth Petition?—(A copy of the Petition being shown to the Witness) Yes, it is.

[The Witness withdrew.

William Hudson, called in; and Examined.

William Hudson.

748. Chairman.] ARE you the vestry clerk of the parish of Epworth?—Yes.

749. Have you been resident in that parish all your life?—No.

750. How long have you resided there?—I have been in the country since 1811, but in the parish since 1814. I am a Yorkshireman; I came from the neighbourhood of Driffield.

751. Are you well acquainted with the parish of Epworth and its neighbourhood?—Yes.

752. Are you acquainted with the names of all the ratepayers in the parish of Epworth?—Yes.

753. Was your attention lately called to a petition which was presented to the House of Commons, professing to be a petition from the parish of Epworth and its neighbourhood, praying for a repeal of the Corn Laws?—I first saw it in a Doncaster paper, with another list of ten or a dozen more.

754. How long ago was that?—I am sure I cannot say; perhaps six or seven weeks.

755. Can you state whenabouts it was; was it in the month of May last?—I cannot say exactly; I did not think much about it just at the time; it would be some time in May.

756. What did you do in consequence of seeing that paragraph in the newspaper?—The paper was published on a Friday; on the Thursday following we had a vestry meeting to choose the collector of assessed taxes, and I mentioned this petition to the meeting, and I said I thought I should write to the Members, either one or both, about it; and the people in the vestry said that I had better write a letter then and there, and they would all sign it. That was on the Thursday night, and I wrote a letter and they did sign it; it was getting dark, and they turned out upon a tombstone to sign their names.

757. Whom did you write that letter to?—I agreed to write to you (the Chairman); and Mr. William Read, the chairman of Lord Worsley's election committees, would write to his Lordship; and I got your answer on the subject, and I went to Mr. Read to ask what his Lordship said upon the subject, and I found Mr. Read had not sent his letter.

758. In consequence of that vestry meeting, was that petition agreed to which is now put into your hand?—(The second Petition being shown to the Witness.) Yes; they would have a public meeting called by bell in the court-house.

759. That was the petition?—Yes, that is the petition; that is my writing. I am a land surveyor, and this is written by a young man whom I had assisting me.

760. Was

760. Was that meeting, which was called by the bell, numerously attended?—I beg leave to correct myself; it was not for the petition; it was for examining the names that the meeting was called.

761. Did you receive from me (the Chairman) a copy of the signatures to what was supposed to be the spurious petition?—Yes; but that was after this petition had come to London.

762. Did you wait upon the ratepayers in the parish with that petition?—My son and Mr. Gibson, a neighbouring farmer, took one part of the town; I could not exactly attend to it myself then.

763. Did you take that petition to any of the ratepayers yourself?—Yes.

764. Can you remember how many you took it to?—I know where I began; I began with Mr. Anderson.

765. How many signatures did you obtain?—I do not know; all down to the bottom from that place, and some in the other columns; but I know Mr. Anderson was the first man; it was about five o'clock in the morning when I met with him.

766. When you took that petition to any person to obtain signatures, did you read to them or explain the nature of it?—Yes.

767. Did they sign it willingly?—Yes; but it was well understood all the town over; they needed but little explanation; every body understood what we were about.

768. Did you sign the petition in any instances yourself, for persons who could not write their names, at their request?—Yes, in some cases, but I was very cautious about that. If the person could write, or any of his family, I wished them to do so, however badly they wrote.

769. How many people asked you to sign for them?—I do not know; here is Richard Kelsey is one that I signed for.

770. Mr. Darby.] Can Richard Kelsey write?—He was on horseback.

771. Mr. Yorke.] But he could write?—Yes. Hartly Robinson is another; he cannot write. Thomas Clough, senior, and Thomas Clough, junior, father and son; I met them going down in a waggon, both together.

772. And you signed for both?—Yes. George Emerson was signed by the man's wife; Thomas Marshall was signed by his wife.

773. Sir George Strickland.] Will you point out any that you signed yourself?—(The Witness pointed to the signature of Thomas Kelsey.) It is almost impossible to remember every particular name out of so many; I do not see any more.

774. Chairman.] Who were the other parties who took round that petition?—My son and Mr. Gibson, and my son and Mr. Sampson.

775. And after it was signed you sent the petition up to me?—Yes.

776. After that do you remember receiving from me another paper, a copy of the signatures to what is supposed to be the spurious petition?—Yes.

777. Is that the paper you received (the copy of the Petition previously delivered in, being shown to the Witness)?—Yes; I have made some remarks upon the side of it.

778. And those marks in red ink are in your handwriting?—Yes.

779. Mr. Darby.] Were those marks in red ink made in consequence of any communication with the different parties?—It was after I had seen them.

780. You have made some marks here in red ink in the margin: "Forged; ditto; ditto," and so on: did you write those words "Forged," and so on, in red ink, in consequence of your having spoken to those different parties?—Yes, certainly; I could not have written it before speaking to the parties.

781. Chairman.] Did you wait upon all the parishioners of Epworth whose names are in that paper?—Yes; I am not conscious of having omitted one; but there is some difficulty arising out of the matter: some men's names occur twice where we have but one of the men in the place or the neighbourhood; others occur but once where we have two or three of the name.

782. Mr. Darby.] Where the name occurs once, and where there are three persons of the same name, did you communicate with the three persons of that name, or with only one of them?—Yes; there is the name of "Samuel Clarke" occurs once, and there are three Samuel Clarkes.

783. Did you apply to those three parties?—Yes; and "William Clarke;" there

William Hudson.

26 June 1843.

there are two William Clarkes. "Richard Selby" occurs once, and there are three Richard Selbys.

784. Did you apply to three Richard Selbys?—Yes.

785. Did you apply to the two William Clarkes?—Yes.

786. Chairman.] Will you look at that paper, and state whether that is the declaration you made before Mr. Anderson, the magistrate?—Yes.

787. In that declaration you state, that after examination of the signatures attached to that petition, you discovered that 119 had been forged?—Yes; I summed them up to that, I believe.

788. You said that three persons in that parish had signed a petition for the repeal of the Corn Laws?—Yes.

789. Francis Moorish, Thomas Anderson Goodall, and Philip Duncan; those people admitted to you that they did sign it?—Yes.

790. You have said that ten persons signed the petition under the impression that the prayer was for cheap tea and sugar?—Yes.

791. Did those ten people say that they signed their own names?—No; some of them could not write: William Cawthorn, for instance, could not write; he is a bricklayer's clerk, as we call them.

792. Mr. Yorke.] Then William Cawthorn allowed another person to sign for him?—Yes; and I understood Matthew Ingham did the same; he cannot write.

793. Chairman.] Any others?—I cannot exactly call to mind the names. (The Witness produced another paper.)

794. What paper is that?—This is a paper that I drew up, and hung in the barber's-shop for people to examine; Richard Maw, jun., is one; he said that either he signed it or authorised it to be signed. He is a saddler, and can write.

795. Can you now state the names of all the genuine signatures?—Yes. Francis Moorish, a journeyman tallow-chandler with Mr. Reed; T. A. Goodall, he signed both the petitions; Thomas Smith, a shop-lad; he wished to have his name withdrawn; he did not understand the prayer of it.

796. But he signed the petition?—He put his name on. Philip Duncan, a rag-gatherer, he rents sometimes one little bit of a hut, and sometimes another; Richard Maw, he is a saddler; Matthew Ingham, a roper; Thomas Thorpe, a wheelwright; Thomas Coggan, a weaver; Levi Clark, I do not know what to describe him, he is a labourer, and he paints a little, and does anything of that sort; Benjamin Leggatt, a shoemaker; Thomas Richardson has been a wheelwright, but is now a pauper, receiving 5*s.* or 6*s.* a week; Robert Gardham is a shop-lad with Mr. William Reed; and William Cawthorn is a bricklayer's labourer. Those are all that did not deny their signatures; the rest, I believe, have denied.

797. Mr. Darby.] In the paper that you have produced there is "forged" written to a number of the names; was that written in red ink against the different names by you, in consequence of your communication with the parties?—Yes.

798. Are there any other names attached to that petition which are unknown to you to reside in the parish of Epworth, or the adjoining country round it?—Yes; here is George Kell, for instance; I know no such man as George Kell; but we have a man named George Gell, who cannot write. I asked him, and he said he had done no such thing; in fact I knew before that he would not; he is a farmer.

799. Is there any person of the name of J. Reed at Epworth?—No, unless it be mis-spelt; we have Thomas Read, and we have several Reads.

800. Chairman.] How many names are there attached to that petition, that are totally unknown to you in Epworth and its neighbourhood?—There are not 73; I thought there were more, but there are some duplicates. The petition did not go from the neighbourhood, or else there is George Hague. Now George Hague keeps a tom-and-jerry shop at a place called Tamtoft, which is out of the parish of Epworth, but he is still in the neighbourhood of Epworth. Mr. Marshall called upon him as we came; I did not see George Hague.

801. How far does that person live from the town of Epworth?—About four miles.

802. Is it between Doncaster and Epworth?—Yes. And here is George Lindsley; now the name of the publican opposite to Hague is George Ainslie.

803. Mr.

803. Mr. Darby.] Does Ainslie live in Epworth parish?—No; they are both in Belton parish.

804. Chairman.] But they are four miles from the town of Epworth?—Yes, about four miles; it is just the outside of the parish.

805. Mr. Yorke.] Is it rather more or rather less?—I should think about four miles.

806. Chairman.] From your knowledge of Epworth, with which you have been acquainted for 32 years, if there were persons living there of the 73 names to which you have alluded, would you have known them?—Yes; I know every man in the parish, unless he has come within a month or so.

807. Are you well acquainted with the parish of Haxey, the adjoining parish?—I have been in immediate contact with those who know it.

808. Had any persons possessing those names which are attached to this petition lived in the parish of Haxey, should you have been aware of it?—Yes.

809. Are there any persons to your knowledge, in the parish of Haxey, bearing some of the names that appear in that petition?—No; I do not know of any.

810. Belton is another parish adjoining the parish of Epworth?—Yes, about a mile and a half off.

811. With the exception of the two names to which you have alluded, are there any persons in the parish of Belton whose names appear as signatures to that petition?—No, there are not.

812. What other parishes are there adjoining Epworth?—Owston is another parish.

813. Are you acquainted with the parish of Owston?—Yes; but not so well as with the other two.

814. Should you have known if any persons in the parish of Owston had signed that petition?—Yes; there is a factory there, and there may be some factory men whose names I do not exactly know; but I do not know whether they be at work now.

815. But there may be some factory men that may have signed it without your knowledge?—It is quite possible; most of the names I never heard of in my life in any way.

816. How far is the nearest part of the parish of Owston from the parish of Epworth?—About three miles; it is three and a half from the market-place to the river Trent: Mr. Marshall's house is the nearest, that is not a quarter of a mile; Owston village comes close up to Epworth town-end.

817. How far is the nearest part of the village of Owston from the village of Epworth?—It is close to it; there is only one bit of a close between the street and Owston parish.

818. Is there any other parish adjoining Epworth, besides Haxey, Belton, and Owston?—No: there is the township of Butterwick.

819. Are you acquainted with the township of Butterwick?—I know most of the people.

820. Do you see any names belonging to Butterwick attached to that petition?—I do not know that I do.

821. The parish of Epworth is entirely an agricultural parish, is not it?—Yes.

822. Mr. Hardy.] You say that you signed your name for some other people; how many people did you sign for?—Indeed I do not know how many; there is one which I doubt about; I cannot recollect how "Richard Kelsey" was done.

823. Is that in your own handwriting?—It appears to be in my handwriting.

824. Sir George Strickland.] Are you sure that it is in your handwriting?—Yes.

825. You said before that you thought you signed it; now are you certain that you signed it?—It has the appearance of my handwriting, but I cannot call anything to mind about that signature.

826. The question is, whether you signed Richard Kelsey's signature, or whether you did not?—It appears like my handwriting, and that is all I can say about it; but how it has been done I do not know. I cannot recollect the circumstances of that; most of them I can.

827. But you signed it?—Yes, it is my handwriting.

828. Mr. Darby.] The question you are asked is this, without any reference to the circumstances: to the best of your belief, is that signature your handwriting?—

William Hudson.

26 June 1843.

writing?—I believe it to be my handwriting; I will acknowledge it at once to be my handwriting, let the consequences be what they may.

829. Sir George Strickland.] Have you different ways of writing?—Yes.

830. You do not always write in the same manner?—Nearly so; we write sometimes upon the hand, sometimes in one way and sometimes another; I signed as few as possible, and I ordered the others to sign as few as they possibly could; but some were threshing, and some doing one thing and some another.

831. Mr. Hardy.] Here is Joseph Chamberlain; is that his writing?—Yes.

832. Is there more than one Joseph Chamberlain?—There are two, but this is the ratepayer; there is Joseph Chamberlain, junior, and Joseph Chamberlain, senior.

833. Chairman.] How many ratepayers are there in the parish of Epworth?—About 330.

834. How many signed that petition?—There are some women that are occupiers and ratepayers, and there are others non-resident; there is Mr. Makin, of Thorne, and others that live a long way out, that I did not go to.

835. All the persons that you went to with that petition either signed it themselves, or authorized you to sign it for them, knowing the nature of its prayer?—Yes.

836. Mr. Darby.] You say that, besides your having signed it in four instances for somebody else, in some other cases some other persons signed also for them, by their authority?—There was sometimes a son, or a daughter, or a wife.

837. There is "unknown" written against John Chamberlin?—We have no John Chamberlin that I know of.

838. Is there no person of that name?—No; there were once two labourers of that name. One is a labourer at Ferry, and the other is in America.

839. Were the persons who you say are gone away the one named John and the other Joseph?—They were both John.

840. Then there is no Joseph Chamberlain at all?—Yes; there are two Josephs.

841. William Dobson, senior; do you know that name?—We have no such man; it must have been intended for William Dobb.

842. John Dilkes?—I never heard of that name.

843. Is there any person of the name of Kent?—No.

844. George Follett?—No.

845. George Daxon?—No. Daxon's name appears twice; but I never heard of that name before.

846. Thomas Humphrey?—No; there is no such name. There was once a Robert Humphrey, but not now.

847. George Lent?—No.

848. Nor any name like it?—No.

849. Thomas Cook?—No; there is William Cook lives at Ferry; but I do not know a Thomas Cook.

850. Thomas Pinchin?—No; I do not know any such name, nor anything like it.

851. Thomas Sayles; is there any name like that?—No; but there is a young man called John Sayles.

852. Is there an elder man of that name?—There is not an elder man; but he married a young woman in the town, and came to reside there.

853. What is his name?—John, I believe.

854. Mr. Yorke.] Does he reside there now?—Yes.

855. Mr. Darby.] George Hemison; is there any person of that name?—No, there is nothing like it.

856. Is there a person of the name of Emerson?—Yes, but not Hemison.

857. Robert Lantern?—No, but there is a Robert Langton; there is William Langton, the father of Robert, and Robert Langton the son, and William Langton the grandson.

858. Is it spelt Lantern?—No, Langton.

859. Can he write his name?—Yes; Robert is a very good scholar.

860. Is his name appended to that petition (the Petition of 15th June)?—I do not see it put; but it is here, no doubt.

861. Is there a person of the name of John Stokes?—No, there is no such name.

862. William Harrah?—I suppose that is a mistake; there is William Harrap, and George Harrap his brother.

863. Is there a William Harrap?—Yes, a farmer; but he cannot write his name.

864. Mr. Villiers.] Do you know such a person as James Harrap?—Yes, brother to William.

865. What is he?—He is partly a farmer and partly a labourer; and George is a labourer. George is twice in the petition, once with his brother James, and once with his brother William, if it be meant to be Harrap, but I put it down Harrah, as not knowing the name.

866. Mr. Darby.] You have written "forged" against Jonathan Sayles Brunyll; have you had any communication with Jonathan Sayles Brunyll since you received this document?—Yes.

867. Have you had any communication with W. W. Teanby?—Yes.

868. Have you had communication with John Green?—Yes.

869. Have you had communication with Richard Coy?—Yes.

870. With John Brown?—Yes.

871. With Thomas Brown?—Yes.

872. With Abram Maw?—Yes.

873. With Thomas Hill?—Yes; there are two Thomas Hills.

874. With Robert Thompson?—Yes.

875. With Thomas Naylor?—Yes.

876. With John Maw?—Yes.

877. Have you had communication with a person of the name of George Gell?—Yes.

878. Had you any communication with William Langton?—Yes.

879. With William Kelsey?—Yes.

880. With Thomas Chantry?—Yes.

881. With John Fox?—Yes.

882. With Thomas Drury?—Yes.

883. With Francis Ward?—Yes.

884. With William Johnson?—No, not with William Johnson; he is a poor fellow that is out of his mind; he is a very weak man; he goes begging about. There is another William Johnson, a druggist; but he is confined to his room, and has been for many months.

885. Had you any communication with him?—No.

886. Had you any communication with Hartley Robinson?—Yes.

887. With Robert Layster?—Yes.

888. With Joseph Thowla?—Yes.

889. With Richard Chapman?—Yes.

890. With Abram Harrison?—Yes.

891. With Thomas Snow?—Yes.

892. With William Snow?—Yes.

893. With Joseph Chamberlain?—Yes.

894. With Robert Chamberlain?—Yes.

895. With James Johnson?—Yes.

896. With George Johnson?—Yes.

897. With William Bolmfirth?—Yes.

898. Mr. Greene.] Do you know any person called Young Taylor?—Yes; he declares that he never saw the man nor the petition neither.

899. Mr. Yorke.] By "the man," you mean the man that went round getting signatures to the petition which is said to be false?—Yes.

900. Mr. Hardy.] Do you know his handwriting?—He cannot write at all, I believe.

901. Chairman.] Do you know a person of the name of George Kirk?—Yes; George Kirk is a grocer and draper.

902. Mr. Hardy.] Do you know his writing?—I cannot say that I could exactly swear to it; handwriting is rather a ticklish thing.

903. Mr. Villiers.] Have you asked George Kirk whether he ever signed the petition?—Yes, and he told me that he didn't; and besides that, he said he wouldn't cut his own throat; and he told him to get out, or words to that effect; and he was surprised when he saw his name.

 904. Will

William Hudson.

26 June 1843.

904. Will you state what passed between you and George Kirk?—I cannot state it verbatim; but he said that he asked him to sign it, and he said, "Do you think I am going to be such a fool as to cut my own throat? be off;" and he ordered him out of the shop.

905. Did you tell George Kirk what petition it was you were inquiring about?—Yes, but there was no necessity for that; everybody knew it in a small town like that. If George Kirk's name be compared with his name in the other petition, it will be seen whether they are like.

906. Chairman.] Is there more than one George Kirk in Epworth?—No.

907. Do you know a person called William Read?—We have three Reads: one a labourer, one a gentleman retired, and another William Read, a grocer and draper.

908. Are their names to both these petitions?—Their names are upon this. There is W. Reed in the other petition; I think there isn't Read upon it at all.

909. Sir George Strickland.] Did you ever see the labourer Read write his name?—Yes, I have seen his writing.

910. How did he spell his name?—Read; the whole family spell their names in that way.

911. Chairman.] Do you know a person named William Crowder?—Yes, a blacksmith.

912. Did he admit signing that petition for the repeal of the Corn Laws?—No; he denied ever seeing the man.

913. Did he sign the other petition?—Yes.

914. Is there more than one person of that name?—No.

915. Do you know a person of the name of James Sampson?—Yes, a butcher.

916. Is he represented as signing the petition for the repeal of the Corn Laws?—His name is put, but it is upon the other too; he never saw the man.

917. Do you know a person of the name of Robert Langton?—Yes, but it is written "Lantern."

918. You spoke about Young Taylor; there is no other person of that name in Epworth?—No.

919. And he did not sign the petition for a repeal of the Corn Laws?—No.

920. Mr. Villiers.] In this copy of the petition which was forwarded to you, did you write the word "forged" against these names, in consequence of inquiries that you made at Epworth of those persons, as to their having signed their names?—Yes.

921. And the result of the inquiries was that they had not signed their names, and that therefore their names were forged?—Yes; they neither signed them, nor authorized them to be signed.

922. Mr. Greene.] Did you yourself make those inquiries, or were they made by other parties?—I made them myself; I did not trust it to anybody.

923. Chairman.] There is a person of the name of William Crowder; is there more than one?—But one; a blacksmith.

924. Is his name supposed to be forged?—He says it is.

925. James Sampson?—Yes.

926. What is their station in life?—Crowder is a man who has property.

927. Is he a farmer?—No; he is a blacksmith, and part farming.

928. Mr. Hardy.] Do you know a person who is a carpenter at Epworth?—Yes; there is John Bowers and Robert Tong.

929. Is there one that has wood before his house?—John Bowers had wood before his house, and Thomas Thorpe had wood before his house; but that man says he authorized it to be signed to cheapen tea and sugar.

930. Mr. Greene.] As you enter Epworth from Doncaster is there a roper's shop in the market-place?—It is near the market-place.

931. What is the name?—Matthew Ingham; we have but one roper in the town.

932. Did he sign the petition for the repeal of the Corn Laws?—Yes; he allowed it to be done for the repeal of the Sugar Duties.

933. Mr. Yorke.] You have put "forged" against the name of William Johnson; you said that he was out of his mind?—Yes; I wanted to correct that. I was making the thing up in a very great hurry, and I might have made a little a little mistake upon that piece of paper; but I thought I should have to go through the whole of the names, and correct any little error.

934. There is another Johnson, who is an idiot?—Yes; he takes a board about, and begs about in general.

935. Had you any communication with him?—No.

936. How came you to put "forged" against his name?—I do not know; perhaps it is "ditto."

937. Mr. Villiers.] Have all the persons against whose names you have written "forged" been spoken to by you?—I do not know unless I was to look it over. I do not recollect missing any but William Johnson.

938. Mr. Villiers.] Do you know what the population of the parish is?—Somewhere between 1,800 and 2,000.

939. Are you pretty well acquainted with everybody residing there?—Yes.

940. Are there people not parishioners that reside there?—I do not know that there are. A man may come into the parish to work, from any other.

941. Are there any Irish that come in?—We have no Irish at this time of the year; we have in harvest.

942. Are you prepared to say that you know everybody residing in Epworth, whether parishioners or not?—All that occupy houses, or anything of that sort.

943. You know all the inhabitants of the place?—I know all that have lived there any time; I think all that have lived there within a month or two.

944. You know all the shopkeepers?—Yes; all the principal people that have lived there 12 months I know very well; but there may be some odd ones. I think there is a lass or two in the town that got married a week or ten days before I came, and I may not know their husbands.

945. Is there any hamlet adjoining the parish?—No hamlet in Epworth.

946. It stands by itself?—Yes. Haxey and Belton have hamlets to them, and so has Owston, but Epworth has none; there are houses in the fields.

947. Is there a coach-road through Epworth?—No.

948. Have you had any public meeting there?—We have had nothing but vestry meetings, and such as that, unless a person comes to lecture on scientific subjects.

949. Have you had any lectures on the Corn Laws?—No.

950. Mr. Hardy.] You were not aware, from your knowledge of Epworth, that any person was going about getting up petitions against the Corn Laws, till you saw it in the Doncaster newspaper?—I did not know that a petition had been got up, but I had heard of a man being about, and I said that it would be of no use, because it was impossible for him to get any signatures in the town; it was regarded as a sort of hoax.

951. Mr. Villiers.] Did any man ever go about with a petition in favour of the Corn Laws?—I do not know that anybody did; and for myself, this petition would not have been done but for the other. We do not trouble the House with petitions from our part of the country; we expect that you know better than we do what wants doing.

952. You never got up a petition for the Corn Laws?—We did this; but it was to contradict the other.

953. Sir George Strickland.] In any former year was there any petition?—I do not know whether there was not something of the kind some years back, but I had no connexion with it.

954. Mr. Yorke.] Do you know the exact distance of Epworth from Doncaster?—It is called 18 miles; you may save a mile or two by going through Mr. Childers's grounds, but you have to trespass.

955. You could not do it in less than 15 miles?—No.

956. What is the distance of Belton from Doncaster?—There cannot be much difference; Belton is a little nearer, if anything.

957. Belton is four miles distant from Epworth?—Part of it is.

958-9. Chairman.] How far is the church of Belton from the church of Epworth?—About a mile and a half.

[The Witness withdrew.

John Hudson.

26 June 1843.

John Hudson, called in; and Examined.

960. Chairman.] ARE you the son of the last witness?—Yes.

961. Do you remember taking a petition round the parish of Epworth a short time ago, for signatures?—Yes.

962. Will you look at it (the second Petition being shown to the Witness)?—That is it.

963. What was the reason that that petition was got up in Epworth?—It was got up as a counter petition to one that had been sent up which the inhabitants did not know anything about, which appeared in the newspapers, and I was appointed, being the son of the vestry clerk, to go round with another farmer; I did not go by myself.

964. Will you look at that petition and refer to the signatures that you saw attached to it?—I saw them all as far as here; Thomas Cookley, John Crackell, and William Shipley.

965. How many signatures did you obtain?—I did not count them; and then my father obtained the rest.

966. Did you see the parties sign, whose names are appended to that petition?—Yes.

967. Did you sign any for other people?—Yes; I signed some.

968. Which were they?—I cannot say.

969. Look at that petition, and see if you can say?—I signed John Crackell's.

970. Was it with his consent that you signed it?—Yes, I signed it with his consent; he could not write himself.

971. Was there anybody else?—John Jefferson.

972. Can he write?—No. And James Cawthorn.

973. Can he write?—No.

974. Any other?—James Standing.

975. Could he write?—He was ill in bed.

976. Were there any others?—Samuel Glew.

977. Can he write?—I did not sign for any that could write themselves. And John Girdham.

978. Can he write?—He can write; he is a very old man. And John Needham, and Benjamin Beckett. Those are all, except my own.

979. Mr. Villiers.] Those are persons whose names you signed for them?—Yes, by their authority.

980. Chairman.] And in their presence?—Yes.

981. Did you explain to them the nature of the petition?—Yes.

982. With reference to the other names you obtained, did the parties sign them themselves?—Yes.

983. The remaining signatures to the petition were obtained by your father?—Yes, from the place I stated.

984. Mr. Villiers.] When was this petition got up; how soon after you say you saw in the newspaper that a petition from Epworth had been presented against the Corn Laws?—It was in the paper the week before.

985. It was the week afterwards that this petition was got up?—A week or 10 days.

986. Had you seen a copy of that petition when this one was got up?—No; we did not see a copy of it till this was come.

987. Then it was merely seeing in the county paper that such a petition had been presented, that induced the parties to get up this petition, or to make any inquiry in the town as to who had signed the other petition?—It was done at a vestry meeting, at which I was not present; there was a vestry meeting at the time; it was not for the express purpose.

988. You are the son of the vestry-clerk, and you were the person deputed by the vestry-clerk to get up that petition?—I was appointed to go with it with another person, a respectable farmer.

989. Then it was after this had been seen in the Doncaster paper, and after the vestry meeting had been held?—Yes.

990. Did every person who signed it read the heading of it?—No, they knew the subject of it; I explained it to them.

991. What

John Hudson.

26 June 1843.

991. What did you tell them?—I read the heading to them, and said it was a petition; at first they were very indignant about it.

992. Upon what ground did you say that the petition was forged?—We said that this petition was got up in opposition to one that appeared in the Doncaster Gazette.

993. You told those parties, when you offered them this petition to sign, that the other one was forged?—They knew that the petition had been in Epworth, but we could not hear of anybody signing it, except three or four.

994. What were they indignant at?—At their names being attached.

995. How did they know that their names were attached?—They did not know; but they were very desirous to have this petition got up, and I was appointed to go with a respectable farmer to carry the petition round for signatures.

996. What were they indignant at?—At their feelings being misrepresented.

997. But they did not know that their names were signed?—No, but they judged so.

998. From what information did they judge so?—From the Doncaster Gazette.

999. Did the Doncaster Gazette say that the petition was forged?—No.

1000. Sir George Strickland.] You say that three or four people had signed the first petition?—Yes; and one of them signed this.

1001. Then if anybody has said that 13 signed it, would that be incorrect?—There were some that signed it under false pretences, I believe.

1002. If anybody has said that there were 13 genuine signatures, would that be a false statement?—I am not aware; I know nothing about the forged petition.

1003. You stated just now that there were only three or four signatures to it?—I did not make any inquiries about it myself; I know nothing as to that; I can only speak as to this petition.

1004. Mr. Villiers.] You know nothing of the original petition?—I know nothing of that one; I only know about this one.

[The Witness withdrew.

Mr. John Hatfield Marshall, called in; and Examined.

Mr. J. H. Marshall.

1005. Chairman.] ARE you a resident in the parish of Epworth?—I am not a resident; I am the owner of a farm in the parish.

1006. You reside in another parish?—I reside in the outskirts of another parish, near Epworth parish.

1007. Is it your own property that you farm?—Part of it my own.

1008. Was your attention called in the course of the last few months to a petition being presented from the parish of Epworth and the neighbourhood against the Corn Laws?—I saw it in one of the Doncaster papers, purporting to be presented by Sir George Strickland; purporting that the inhabitants of Epworth desired the repeal of the Corn Laws.

1009. Did you make an inquiry in consequence of that petition amongst the inhabitants of Epworth?—Immediately.

1010. What was the result of that inquiry?—All the people in the parish, the rate-payers, and labourers, and tradesmen were very desirous that there should be an inquiry into it.

1011. Was there a meeting called in consequence?—There was a meeting called after a copy of the forged names came down.

1012. Did you see that copy?—I did.

1013. Will you look at it?—(The same being shown to the Witness.) I believe this to be the same copy.

1014. Mr. Villiers.] Were those words "forged" written when you first saw it?—No, I believe not when I first saw it; but I will not speak decidedly upon that point.

1015. Chairman.] Had you any conversation with a person of the name of George Kirk upon the subject of that petition?—I have never seen him upon the subject.

1016. Are there any people that you have seen?—The first upon the list, Jonathan Sayles Brunyll.

Mr. J. H. Marshall.

26 June 1843.

1017. Had you any conversation with him upon the subject?—Many times.

1018. What is the second name upon that petition?—W. W. Teanby.

1019. Had you any conversation with him upon the subject?—I had on Thursday last, about an hour previously to my starting for here.

1020. In going over the petition, how many people informed you that they signed their names to it?—I never saw one of them that said he signed his name to the petition.

1021. Mr. Hardy.] Did you see a great many people upon the subject?—Many.

1022. Do you remember whom you saw?—I saw John Green, the third upon the list; I saw Richard Coy, the fourth upon the list.

1023. What did John Green say?—He said that he believed the same person stopped all night with him; he is a beer-shop keeper; but that he neither signed his name, nor did he give him leave to sign for him.

1024. Chairman.] What was the result of the whole of your inquiries there?—There was a general feeling throughout the parish that there should be an inquiry; we were unacquainted with the proper forms of the proceeding, but that they should have justice done to them.

1025. What do you mean by "having justice done to them"?—That this forged petition should be traced to the bottom.

1026. Sir George Strickland.] Do you say that many people said that they had not signed it?—I never saw one person that told me they had signed it.

1027. Mr. Hardy.] How many people do you think you have inquired of?—I cannot call to mind exactly the number; above a score; above 30; above 50. I ride through the parish twice a day, to a farm I have got.

1028. Sir George Strickland.] Then if anybody has said that 13 people have really signed it, do you believe that to be correct?—I should believe it not to be correct, from my inquiries.

1029. Mr. Villiers.] You said you inquired of a score or 30 people?—More.

1030. Did they say that their names were forged, or that they had not signed it?—They said that they did not sign it.

1031. Did they say afterwards, when a copy of the forged petition came, that their names were in the copy of that petition?—Yes; many people told me that their names were in the copy of the petition, and that they had not signed it.

1032. Chairman.] Did the result of your inquiries lead you to believe that there were a great many forgeries in the petition?—Decidedly.

1033. Is your name to it?—No.

1034. Do you see the names of any persons there whose handwriting you know?—I cannot recognise one in the forged petition.

1035. Are you acquainted with the handwriting of many persons in Epworth?—I am; I have done business with many of them.

1036. Do you see any names of those people with whom you have done business?—I have done business with Thomas Smith, the maltster; and with Matthew Ingham, the roper.

1037. Have you seen them write?—I have seen Thomas Smith write.

1038. Do you believe that signature to be his handwriting?—I could not swear to it; I believe it is not his handwriting.

1039. Sir George Strickland.] Then if anybody has said that it is his handwriting, they have stated what is false?—I could not say that.

[The Witness withdrew.

Samuel Potts, called in; and further Examined.

Samuel Potts.

1040. Mr. Yorke.] YOU said that you left Doncaster about noon to go to Epworth, and that you arrived there about three o'clock?—Yes, thereabouts.

1041. How far is Doncaster from Epworth?—There are various opinions. I asked several persons on the way, and by some I was told it was 16 miles; some said 17, and some said 18; but my opinion is that it was not more than 16.

1042. Did you walk that distance in three or four hours?—Yes; I durst warrant to walk at any time from Doncaster to Epworth in three hours, because I am used to walking; I am light, and I am very clever at walking. I had no stoppages

stoppages on the road. I never fear walking five miles an hour; I am light and young enough.

1043. Mr. Hardy.] What time in the year was it?—I think it would be the latter end of April or the beginning of May.

1044. You said that you left the next day, about noon?—Yes.

1045. Then you were at Epworth during the evening of the first day, and the morning of the second day?—Yes; I admitted that I slept in Epworth.

1046. How late did you get signatures?—I went about; I do not know. Perhaps I would get no signatures on the first evening, but that I was to call again; they wanted to see some of the principal men sign first. I cannot say whether there were any signatures to the petition on the first day or not.

1047. Mr. Yorke.] You said before that you got most of your signatures in the evening; that night was your harvest?—I said that I generally made it a rule in the evening to go amongst the labourers, to make it my harvest, because they were at home; but I do not know that it was the case there.

1048. Mr. Hardy.] Do you recollect whether you got any signatures on the first night?—I cannot say whether I did or not; if I did, they were not many.

1049. Mr. Yorke.] You are distinct in your recollection, that if you got any signatures on the evening of the day you arrived there, they were but very few?—They were but very few.

1050. And you left the next day at noon?—I think about noon; I contrived to be at Doncaster some time late at night. My object was to get signatures, and I did not go by the time of the day.

1051. Mr. Darby.] You were asked whether you lodged at the house of John Green? and you said, Yes. You were asked, "He is a public-house-keeper?" and you said, "Yes; but he did not sign that; his name was Green; I cannot say whether his name was John." You were asked, "Where did this man sign?" and you said, "He signed that as I came from Doncaster; I think, on going over it, it strikes me very forcibly it was at the end of Epworth." Does that relate to John Green the landlord?—Green the landlord was the person at whose house I slept; but the signature in the petition was not Green's that lived at the public-house, because he was not the person that signed it. I said to him, "Will you sign the petition?" and he said, "I must see how it works."

1052. Then the John Green whose name is in this petition is not the John Green who kept the public-house?—No; it is not the John Green that keeps the public-house.

1053. John Green did not sign at all?—No; John Green never did sign the petition to my knowledge at all; he refused to do so.

1053*. But there is the name John Green in the petition?—It is very possible for a person to sign another's name.

1054. Where did you meet with the John Green who signed the petition?—I cannot particularly say.

1055. Then you admit that John Green at the public-house did not sign the petition?—I do 1056. But who the John Green was that signed it you cannot say?—I am not able to say.

1057. You said that it struck you forcibly that it was at the end of Epworth that you met with him?—I thought it possibly might be, but I cannot speak to that.

1058. You say that this petition was signed in the fields, by some of the men at work?—Some of them were; I did not say they all were.

1059. You stated that you had nobody with you when you got those signatures?—No.

1060. You went entirely by yourself?—Yes, I can answer for that; there was no one with me.

1061. And therefore all the signatures were got by yourself when you had the petition?—Yes.

1062. Were Stainforth and Fishlake other places that you went to to get a petition signed?—Yes.

1063. Had you anybody to assist you in getting signatures to that petition?—No, not a person, to my knowledge.

1064. Were the signatures to that petition got in the fields?—All the petitions I had I got in a similar way.

 1065. It

Samuel Potts.

26 June 1843.

1065. It appears that some of those names to the petition which you got in Stainforth and in Fishlake were got in the fields?—Yes, and in the highways.

1066. Were they got from men working in the fields?—Yes.

1067. Did any men that were at work in the fields sign that petition?—I have not a doubt that some did sign it; I cannot remember; it is impossible without I see it again.

1068. You can remember whether you went into the fields to get signatures?—I have not a question that I got signatures by people working in the fields.

1069. Mr. Yorke.] Do you happen to recollect whether the weather was fine at the time that you were in the parish of Stainforth collecting signatures?—I do not, but I fancy it was favourable.

1070. Mr. Darby.] There is also a petition from Wadworth, and another from Bawtry?—Yes.

1071. It appears that a number of the names in the Wadworth petition are by persons who cannot write; you say that you had no person to assist you in getting names; who wrote the names of the number of people who could not write?—I dare say I wrote the principal of them; most likely all of them; I will not say that I did.

1072. Had you anybody to assist you in getting names there?—No. (The Witness looked at the Petition.) I see the petition is as I delivered it up; there is not any addition to it.

1073. Mr. Hardy.] There are 30 people who have signed with marks, and you wrote their names, did you?—Yes.

1074. Do you see any names with marks, whose names are not written by you; did you write John Swabey?—Yes.

1075. Did you write John France?—Yes.

1076. Did you write William Wright?—Yes.

1077. Mr. Darby.] Had you anybody to assist you in getting signatures to the Bawtry petition?—I said that after I had got a great many signatures, I left the petition in Bawtry.

1078. Who returned the Bawtry petition?—I left it entirely; I had nothing to do with it more.

1079. How long were you in Bawtry?—I do not know exactly how long I was; I might arrive at 11 o'clock, and it might be 12 before I began to get signatures; but I got the signatures in Bawtry in a very short time.

1080. You say you left it at Bawtry?—Yes; but I got the signatures first.

1081. Did you ever consider, while you promised that their names should not be made known, that it was a public petition, and that their names would be known directly the petition was put into any one's hands?—It is quite a new thing to me; I never was aware that there would be this to do, or else I would not have had anything to do with the petitions; I do not belong to any political party.

1082. If you had thought that any such thing as this would take place, you would have had nothing to say to the petition?—I would not have had anything to do with the petition if I had been aware that I was to be drawn into all this trouble by it. I was merely asked to do it, and as I wished to do anything for an honest living I would go out for them. I knew that I must do anything that was brought for me to do, or else I should feel condemned in my own conscience. The Bawtry petition I got a great number of signatures to it, and then I left it; it was never in my hands again, and it was forwarded no doubt to Mr. Hastie; and I do not know that I ever saw it after the day that I left it.

1083. Have you any objection to write upon a piece of paper, "Joseph Chamberlin"?—(The Witness wrote the name of "Joseph Chamberlin" upon a piece of paper.)

1084. Chairman.] You are acquainted with Mr. Milner in Doncaster?—I am; at least I am acquainted with him so far as this, that I have got to speak to him since these petitions have been out.

1085. Have you had conversation with him about the Epworth petitions?—No previous conversation, to my knowledge. I never saw him; I had no conversation with him about any petitions. Mr. Hastie was the man that employed me; I do not remember that I ever spoke to Mr. Milner about the petitions.

1086. Mr. Yorke.] In the petition to which your attention was called the other day, you said that you recollected to have signed for three persons?—Yes; but I do not admit distinctly to three.

1087. Will you explain how it is come to pass that your memory is so distinct as to having written for three, whilst you forget who the three were?—Because when I write for others I do not think it is policy to write in the same way; if you are asked to sign a petition for another, it is not customary always to write in the same way. People of all parties generally make a difference in their handwriting; that is the general rule that people make; if there was a petition all in one handwriting it would be rejected at once.

1088. You have had sufficient experience to enable you to know that it is not politic to sign different persons' names in the same handwriting?—That it is not policy.

1089. Chairman.] You mean that it is not policy to have petitions all in one handwriting?—Yes, that is the general rule that I follow; I never had anything to do with petitions before; what I did it for was to get bread for my family.

1090. But you have had some experience in petitions before?—Yes; I have signed petitions before; if I had had three or four to sign I should not have written the same handwriting.

1091. Mr. Yorke.] You have facility in writing different handwritings?—Yes.

1092. And in such vocations you practise that facility of writing different handwritings?—I do not know that I practise it, but I have the facility.

1093. Mr. Darby.] As you signed in different handwritings so differently that you do not know your handwriting again, and your memory seems to be very imperfect as to the number of persons that you signed for, may there not be a great many more of those signatures in your writing?—It is possible that there may be a few more; I cannot say that there are not a few more.

1094. Will you undertake to say how many there are not?—I have no doubt there are a few more in my writing.

1095. Not knowing your own handwriting again, and your memory being so imperfect upon it, may there not be 20 names that you have written?—No; I will not undertake to say any number.

1096. Then you will not undertake to say that there were not 30?—I will not undertake to say any number.

1097. Your memory being imperfect, and you not knowing your own handwriting, may there not have been 20 of those names in your own handwriting?—There might be, but I am very cautious.

1098. Will you undertake to say positively that there were not 20?—There might be a good end of 20.

1099. Will you undertake to say that there were not 30?—Thirty is a very great number; I would not undertake any number.

1100. Then you will not undertake to say that there were not any number in your handwriting?—I could not speak to it.

1101. Will you undertake to say that there are not 50?—I would not wish to specify any number.

1102. Mr. Yorke.] Then though you think 30 a very great number, you will not undertake to say that you did not sign 30, nor, though 50 is a still greater number, will you undertake to say that you did not sign 50?—No, I will not; I would not limit myself to any number, for this reason, I am very fearful of admitting to any signatures in the petition.

1103. Mr. Darby.] Will you undertake on your solemn word to say that you did not sign as many as 50 of those names?—I will not admit to any number.

1104. Mr. Hardy.] Nor a hundred?—No.

Veneris, 30° die Junii, 1843.

ADAM CHRISTOPHER, Esq. IN THE CHAIR.

George Kirk called in; and Examined.

George Kirk.

30 June 1843.

1105. Chairman.] IS your name George Kirk?—Yes.

1106. Is there any other George Kirk but you in Epworth?—No.

1107. Mr. Hardy.] Is there a John Kirk?—Yes, there is a John Kirk in the same business, a grocer and draper.

1108. Look at the signature to the petition. Is that your name?—Yes, it is my name, but not my writing.

1109. Did you ever see this petition before?—No, I never saw it, only folded up, as the gentleman had it under his arm.

1110. He did show it to you?—Yes, he did.

1111. Chairman.] Have you been long resident at Epworth?—I was bred and born there, and was brought up till I was 12 years of age; after that I left the town till I was 22, and have been at Epworth the last time about 21 years.

1112. Are you very well acquainted with the town and neighbourhood of Epworth?—Yes, perfectly so; I think I know almost all in the parish of Epworth.

1113. Are you generally acquainted with the inhabitant householders of Epworth?—Yes, the greater part of them; there may be some new comers that I do not exactly know.

1114. Is there any other person who bears your name in the town except yourself?—No.

1115. Is there any other person who bears your name resident within two miles of Epworth?—Yes, there is a George Kirk, a shoemaker, lives at Belton, about a mile and perhaps three quarters from Epworth: the parish church is about a mile, but he lives about a mile and three quarters from the parish church of Epworth.

1116. Had you any conversation with him on the subject of this petition?—No; I have not talked with him this twelvemonth.

1117. Can he write his name, do you know?—I really cannot answer that question.

1118. Do you remember some time ago a person coming into your shop with an Anti-corn Law petition?—Yes, I remember a person coming into my shop, and asking me to sign that petition.

1119. State what passed between you and him?—He came in, and says to me "good morning," "good morning to you, sir," in a complimentary way we said one to another, "a fine morning." Immediately after he says, "I have got a petition here, and I called upon you to see if you will sign this;" I says, "What is it about?" he says, "It is relative to the corn question;" "Indeed," I says. I then asked the gentleman, says I, "Is it one against the free trade?" he says, "It is in favour of a free trade;" I says, "Indeed." The next question I asked him, I said, "Have you got a companion or a colleague with you;" says I "it is customary with persons coming round with petitions not to come alone, but some one with them; or if they be strangers, they will get some one to go with with them that is known by some of the parishioners." He says, "No, I have no one but myself." I says, "Well, do you think now, in the present state of things, I should be so foolish as to sign that thing? I should consider it like taking a knife and cutting my own throat, under these circumstances." He says directly, "One, two, or three gentlemen in the market-place already have signed this petition." I says, "That is nothing to me; if they think proper to sign it, I shall not sign it." He never opened it. He then walked out of the shop. That is the conversation, as near as I can tell, that took place between him and me, and I have never seen him since till I found him at the door of this room.

1120. That is the same man?—Yes; but not in the same dress.

1121. How was he dressed on that occasion?—Much worse than he is now.

1122. Did you see anything of him again?—I did not; I neither see'd him since nor before till now.

1123. At what time of the day was it he called upon you?—It was some time in the forenoon between breakfast and dinner, but I cannot say the hour.

1124. Mr. Villiers.] Was anybody present?—No.

1125. Chairman.] Was it in the evening of the day or the morning?—In the morning.

1126. Was it before 12 o'clock in the day?—Yes.

1127. Mr. Yorke.] Do you know so much of his movements as to know whether it was on the first or the second day he was in Epworth?—I do not know.

1128. Chairman.] He did not show you the petition?—No, he never opened it; he kept it under his arm folded up the whole time; he never presented it.

1129. Did he appear to have a petition in his hand?—He had a large paper rolled up, that appeared to be in the form of a petition; when I made these remarks he did not offer it to me.

1130. Mr. Villiers.] Nor explain its contents?—I asked him, Is it for or against a free trade, and he said for.

1131. Then you made those observations?—Yes.

1132. Chairman.] Looking at that signature, "George Kirk," upon the petition, that is not your handwriting?—No; as a proof of that, I can show my handwriting; when I received the notice from the Chairman, a friend in London sent me a letter, and I put it down in a memorandum book.

1133. Mr. Yorke.] You are prepared to say that it is not your writing?—Yes.

1134. Mr. Villiers.] You never signed any petition at all?—No; not this petition. I signed one since against free trade.

1135. You never signed any petition against the Corn Laws in your life?—No.

1136. Chairman.] You say you are well acquainted with the inhabitants of the neighbourhood of Epworth?—Yes; I know the principal part of them.

1137. Do you think it possible, from your knowledge of Epworth and the locality, that any person, a stranger, arriving at Epworth on the evening of one day could obtain from the inhabitants of Epworth by the afternoon of the succeeding day as many as 213 signatures to a petition, praying for a repeal of the Corn Laws?—No; I consider it impossible for a stranger to do such a thing.

1138. From your knowledge of the town, you would have some difficulty in finding the people at home to get their signatures to any petition in that time?—Oh yes, to that amount.

1139. Mr. Villiers.] Are you giving your opinion generally as to what any one may do in collecting signatures to a petition, or from your knowledge of Epworth, that you believe that no person could get so many signatures in the time?—Yes; I believe no one not residing there could get so many signatures in such a time in the town.

1140. Do you think there is a physical impossibility in getting so many signatures in that time, that the place is so very wide and so large?—Yes; the place is very large, or long; it is between two and three miles in length; and another reason I assign for that is, that the principal part, or many of them, as far as I can learn, are persons out at work; there are many that there never were such individuals in the town.

1141. Suppose those persons were willing to sign the petition, do you mean to

George Kirk.

30 June 1843.

to say that it was physically impossible to collect 213 signatures in the place in two days?—Yes; I believe it was impossible for any man to find them as he ought to do.

1142. Mr. Greene.] Suppose he had gone round in the fields, could not he have done it?—No; the fields are so extensive he could not have met with them and got them.

1143. Mr. Yorke.] What is the population of Epworth?—It is somewhere about 2,000 I think; I cannot exactly say.

1144. Sir George Strickland.] You say it is impossible to get 220 signatures in your town to a petition in part of two days; if you had ever heard of 2,000 signatures being put to a petition in two days, should you believe it to be impossible?—It depends upon the number of the population it applies to, in a great measure; if the population is more thick, they come at them more easily.

1145. Mr. Yorke.] Do you think it impossible or improbable, that 219 signatures can be got in a population of 2,000 persons in 24 hours?—In our place, I do.

1146. On what account?—On account of the size of the place, and the number of people that are absent from home.

1147. Mr. Villiers.] Do you mean that if those persons had been willing to sign, they could not have signed in four and twenty hours?—I do not think if they had been willing to sign, they could have got such a number in that time.

1148. Mr. Yorke.] Did the man tell you that the paper he had under his arm was the petition itself?—I said, "Is it for or against the free trade?" I put no other question; when he said it was in favour of free trade, I told him my mind, and never asked him any more questions.

1149. Your impression is that the paper under his arm was the petition he wished you to sign?—He said so.

1150. Chairman.] You say there is another George Kirk, a shoemaker, residing at Belton?—Yes.

1151. Does he reside in a lone place, or in the village of Belton?—I cannot say; I was never at it.

1152. Mr. Villiers.] Do people from the neighbouring villages ever come in to Epworth?—There are a few come in on a market-day on business, but very few; it is a very poor market.

1153. If they did come in you would know it, would you?—Yes; I attend the market very regularly, and have done for 20 years.

1154. It is not market-day every day?—No; every Thursday.

1155. You know everybody who comes into Epworth?—No; I do not say that.

1156. If George Kirk had been there, you might not have known it?—It is possible that George Kirk, of Belton, might have been there and I might not have seen him.

1157. What is your business in life?—My business in life is a grocer and draper.

1158. Do you attend to your own shop?—Yes, I do nothing but attend to it.

1159. It is when you leave your shop that you know who comes into Epworth?—I attend the market; I take in a great deal of butter, and with that my business calls me to market to get the prices, and I leave the remainder of my family to conduct the business during my absence. The market commences about three o'clock and ends about five, the public market.

1160. Lord Worsley.] Doncaster is the market which the people of Epworth principally resort to, is it not?—Yes, we are guided by Doncaster market; it is nothing but a market for eggs and butter, and a little poultry.

1161. Mr. Villiers.] People might come into Epworth without your knowing it?—Yes, of course that is possible any day.

1162. If you were attending in your shop you might not see them?—No; if I am in my shop I do not see every one who comes into the town.

1163. Kirk the shoemaker may have some customers in Epworth?—It is possible he may.

1164. Do you know his handwriting?—No, I never saw it.

1165. Do you know him personally?—I have done ever since he was a little boy; he is younger than myself.

George Kirk.

30 June 1843.

1166. Mr. Yorke.] Did you assist in getting up the petition contrary to this?—No; when my friends called I signed it.

1167. Do you know the time it took to get the signatures to that petition?—No I do not.

1168. Sir George Strickland.] You did not bring the other George Kirk with you?—No; he is living in another parish.

1169. Chairman.] Do you know Mr. Milner of Doncaster?—No.

1170. You have had no conversation with him?—No.

1171. He was not pointed out to you?—No, he was not.

1172. You say you know the parish of Epworth very well; there is a person of the name of Young Taylor there, do you know him?—Yes; I know him very well.

1173. Do you know more than one person of that name?—Yes, I know his father the same, he lives 10 miles off, at Eastoft.

[The Witness withdrew.

Young Taylor, called in; and Examined.

Young Taylor.

1174. Chairman.] YOUR name is Young Taylor?—Yes.

1175. Have you been a resident in the parish of Epworth long?—I have been rather better than six months in Epworth.

1176. Do you know the neighbourhood of it?—Yes, I have travelled it many years.

1177. Where did you live before you came there?—I lived at Crowle, about six miles off; I lived there two years.

1178. What has been your business?—I am a traveller with watches and silver goods, with a horse and cart; but now I keep a public-house, and travel at times.

1179. You are a licensed hawker?—Yes.

1180. Are you well acquainted with the inhabitants of Epworth?—Yes; I was bred and born at Eastoft, within nine miles.

1181. Do you know any person in that neighbourhood bearing your name?—There is my father who lives at Eastoft.

1182. How far is that from Epworth?—It is nine miles from Epworth.

1183. Look at the signature to that petition, and state whether that is your handwriting?—That is not mine. Mr. Gibson, of Epworth, set mine to the list on the other petition. I never saw the man.

1184. Are you able to write?—I am a very poor writer.

1185. Have the goodness to write your name?—(The Witness wrote his name.)

1186. Mr. Villiers.] Did you ever sign a petition in your life?—No, never.

1187. Not of any sort whatever?—No.

1188. Did you ever direct any person whatever to sign your name to any petition?—No, only Charles Gibson.

1189. Had you directed him to sign your name to the petition?—Well, Mr. Hudson and he came round and said, "Would I sign that petition;" I said, "Well, I am a bad writer, I will thank you, Mr. Gibson, to sign my name." Mr. Gibson, the farmer.

1190. Then you directed some person to sign your name for you?—Yes.

1191. Mr. Greene.] Who was with Charles Gibson at the time?—John Hudson.

1192. Chairman.] Look at that petition, and state whether that is the petition you authorised him to sign (the Counter-petition being shown to the Witness); you say you authorised Gibson to sign the petition for you?—I authorised Mr. Gibson to sign the petition; they came to my house, and said this man had been round getting signatures.

1193. Mr. Villiers.] Getting signatures for what?—For the repeal of the Corn Laws. I said "I had never seen the man; I had never seen any man, and was never aware of such a thing." Mr. Gibson said, "Then you are not against signing this?" And I said, "No, Sir." He said, "Then I will thank you to put your name down." I said "I am a bad writer; I will thank you to put it down for me."

1194. Chairman.] Was Mr. Hudson with him?—Yes.

1195. He was present with Mr. Gibson when you gave him that authority?—Yes.

1196. Mr. Villiers.] What did Mr. Gibson say about the petition?—He said,

Young Taylor.

30 June 1843.

"You have no objection to sign this, if you did not sign the other?" He ax'd me if I would sign that; would I sign that of his.

1197. What did he tell you about his petition?—He tell'd me that he had been getting a petition signed for the free trade.

1198. The other man had?—Of course; and I ordered my name to be put down against the free trade.

1199. Gibson told you this was a petition against free trade?—Yes.

1200. Chairman.] On that did you agree to let him sign it for you?—Yes.

1201. Mr. Villiers.] Did he sign it in your presence?—Yes, in my presence; I see'd him writing, but I am a bad reader of writing.

1202. Do you know this again?—No; I did not take particular notice.

1203. You did not take particular notice what paper he put your name down to?—No.

1204. He did not read out the heading of it?—No.

1205. He only asked you whether you would sign it?—He asked me whether I would sign it against the free trade.

1206. What is Mr. Gibson in Epworth?—He is a farmer.

1207. A gentleman of some consequence in Epworth?—No; he is a gentleman farmer.

1208. He lives near Epworth?—He lives in Epworth.

1209. Has he got a good house there?—I do not know.

1210. Do you ever deal with him?—No; not any farther than some years back I may have sold him half-a-dozen knives and forks, the same as to others.

1211. Do you deal with the inhabitants of Epworth?—Yes.

1212. Have you several customers there?—Yes; I have travelled in 16 or 17 towns, and have sold part of the things there.

1213. Do you know when Mr. Gibson began to get signatures to this petition?—I do not know.

1214. Has your father the same name as yourself?—Yes.

1215. Do you know your father's handwriting?—I do not think he can write; I never saw him write; he works for a gentleman at Eastoft, of the name of Mr. Merler.

1216. Chairman.] Are you acquainted with Mr. Milner, of Doncaster?—No, not particularly; he came to our house some time back.

1217. Did he lodge at your house?—He stopped some time at my place.

1218. Had you any conversation about this petition?—Yes; we had a little conversation about it.

The Witness was directed to withdraw.

The Witness was again called in.

1219. Mr. Yorke.] Were you ever asked to sign the petition that was taken round the town of Epworth for free trade, against the Corn Laws?—No.

1220. Did you ever see the person who brought it?—No; nor he did not know me. I never see'd the man in my life before this day, and he did not know me, nor what they called me.

1221. Mr. Darby.] Have you seen, since you came here, the person who has been pointed out as the person; a man of the name of Potts?—The man was pointed out; he was talking to some friends who came with me from Epworth; I never see'd that man at Epworth, nor he me.

1222. Did you authorise anybody else to put your name down to the petition for free trade?—No.

1223. Mr. Yorke.] You say that you never saw Potts at Epworth, and that he never saw you; how do you know that he never saw you?—If I had seen him I should have known him again; but I did not see him going round, and therefore he could not see me.

1224. Mr. Villiers.] You have only signed one petition this year, and that was Mr. Gibson's petition?—I never gave any one else orders.

1225. Mr. Yorke.] And that was signed by him with your authority?—Yes, it was.

1226. You say you never signed any other petition, or allowed any one else to sign any petition for you?—No.

1227. You never signed by your own hand, or by giving your consent, any other petition on this subject but that petition?—No.

1228. Chairman.]

Young Taylor.

30 June 1843.

1228. Chairman.] Are you well acquainted with Epworth and its neighbourhood?—Yes.

1229. Do you know a person of the name of William Crowder?—I do.

1230. Do you know of any more than one?—Not in that neighbourhood; there is one somewhere in Lincolnshire, but it is a long way from him.

1231. How far?—I cannot speak to the distance.

1232. More than eight or ten miles?—I cannot say how far it is.

1233. Where did you see any other William Crowder?—I have heard Mr. Crowder and different persons speak about this when that petition was signed, that there was not another William Crowder in the neighbourhood.

1234. You say you know Epworth and its neighbourhood, and you know one person of the name of William Crowder, do you know any other except one that you can refer to?—No, not on this side the Trent, the other side; I never go across Butterwich Mill or Burton-upon-Stather.

1235. How far is Burton-upon-Stather from that?—I cannot tell you exactly.

1236. About how near do you suppose it is; is it more than 10 miles?—Yes, it is nearer 15; it is 14 or 15 miles from Epworth.

[The Witness withdrew.

William Crowder, called in; and Examined.

William Crowder.

1237. Chairman.] IS your name William Crowder?—Yes.

1238. Are you an inhabitant of Epworth?—Yes.

1239. Did you ever sign a petition for the repeal of the Corn Laws?—No.

1240. Look at that petition; is that your handwriting (it being shown to the Witness)?—No.

1241. You are sure of that?—I am quite positive.

1242. Is there any person of your name in Epworth or its neighbourhood?—No, there is not one within 14 or 15 miles at the least.

1243. Who is the other William Crowder?—He is a relation of mine; he lives at Hibaldstow, near Brigg.

1244. Are you well acquainted with Epworth and its neighbourhood?—Yes.

1245. And the adjoining parishes?—Pretty well; I know a good many inhabitants of the neighbouring parishes.

1246. You do not know any other William Crowder in that neighbourhood?—No, except that William Crowder, who is a relation of mine; he is older than me.

1247. Did you ever authorise any person to sign a petition for you for the repeal of the Corn Laws?—No, never; I always write that myself.

1248. Mr. Villiers.] You sign every petition you sign yourself?—Yes.

1249. Mr. Yorke.] Have you signed many petitions?—Not very many; I signed one praying for the keeping of the Corn Laws; that was after that petition had been made a noise about.

1250. Mr. Villiers.] You never sign a petition without knowing what you sign?—No, nor never did in my life.

1251. Chairman.] Will you look at that petition; (the Counter-petition) is your name to that (the Witness looked at the signature)?—That is my handwriting; (pointing it out) I could swear to that anywhere in the world.

1252. What is your business?—I am a blacksmith.

1253. Have you any sign over your door?—No.

1254. Is there any book called the Yorkshire Directory?—Yes; I have a copy of it myself.

1255. Have you it with you?—No, I have not.

1256. Have you seen your name written down in any directory?—It is in print, both in the one published in 1826, and the one that was published last year.

1257. Do you know a person of the name of William Axe, a blacksmith at Epworth?—Yes.

1258. Does he reside near you or at some distance?—Perhaps a quarter of a mile.

1259. Do you know a person called Thomas Jackson, a blacksmith?—Yes.

1260. How far does he live from you?—Not much more than 100 yards.

1261. Do

William Crowder.

30 June 1843.

1261. Do you know a man of the name of Potts, who lives at Doncaster?—No.

1262. Mr. Villiers.] You never saw him?—I suppose he is the man who got up that petition, I never saw him till a quarter of an hour or half an hour ago, when he was pointed out to me, and then I spoke to him personally.

1263. Chairman.] Are you to be understood that no person has asked you to sign a petition in favour of a repeal of the Corn Laws?—Never; I never was asked such a question in my life.

1264. Mr. Villiers.] The petition you have signed you believed was for a continuance of the Corn Laws?—Yes; it was after the noise made about the other, and some of the principal farmers came round about the matter, and I signed it in my own handwriting; I never signed any other.

1265. You were asked whether you were for the Corn Laws?—For the Corn Laws remaining as they are? Yes, I was, and I said I was.

1266. Mr. Yorke.] Did you assist in getting signatures to this petition which you have yourself signed?—No; I never took any active part in it beyond signing it.

1267. Mr. Villiers.] You are a blacksmith?—Yes.

1268. The farmers are your customers?—Some of them; those are not that came with that petition to me, they were not my customers.

1269. Mr. Darby.] Is the Crowder, your relation, 15 miles off, well known to you?—Yes.

1270. His name is William, the same as yours?—Yes.

1271. Do you know his handwriting?—No; I have not seen his handwriting for many years.

1272. Have you communication with him often?—No, I have not seen him nearly three years.

1273. Mr. Yorke.] It is possible he might be in Epworth or its neighbourhood?—No; he has never been near Epworth for three years now this summer.

1274. How do you know that?—He never would come into Epworth without giving me a call; his wife came over to our place last week; she had not been for 12 or 14 years since; we are not in the habit of visiting much.

1275. Chairman.] Do you know a person of the name of James Sampson in Epworth?—Yes.

1276. Did you ever see any other James Sampson there?—No.

1277. Or in the neighbourhood?—No, not to my knowledge.

[The Witness withdrew.

James Sampson, called in; and Examined.

James Sampson.

1278. Chairman.] YOUR name is James Sampson?—Yes.

1279. Have you ever been resident in Epworth?—Yes.

1280. How long?—About 37 years.

1281. You are well acquainted with the town and neighbourhood?—Yes.

1282. Did you ever sign any petition for a repeal of the Corn and Provision Laws?—No.

1283. Did you ever sign one in the course of your life to that effect?—No.

1284. Will you look at that petition, and state whether that signature is your handwriting (the Witness looked at the signature)?—No.

1285. You are sure of that?—Yes.

1286. Mr. Yorke.] Will you be good enough to sign your name as you generally sign it?—I mostly sign it "Jas.," but I can still sign it "James," at length, as this is.

1287. Sign it as you usually do?—I will sign it as I do my name in full.

1288. Is that the way you generally sign your name?—Yes, unless I write "Jas."

1289. Chairman.] Are you acquainted with any other person of your name in Epworth?—No; there is not a man of that name any where near it within some miles.

1290. Mr. Villiers.] You know every man within so many miles of Epworth?—I know every man in the town, I think.

1291. And some miles round it?—Yes; not many miles round it; but I do not know any other man of that name.

1292. You know every man in Epworth?—I think I do.

James Sampson.

30 June 1843.

293. Do you know every man in the neighbourhood?—No; I cannot say that.

1294. Chairman.] Do you know every person within two miles of Epworth?—I know the people in Belton and those places, but there is not a man of that name in those places to my knowledge.

1295. Did you sign another petition?—I did; I have signed a petition.

1296. Mr. Villiers.] What was that petition for?—That was against any repeal of them.

1297. You are in favour of the Corn Laws?—In favour of the Corn Laws standing as they now do, or something of that kind.

1298. When did you sign that?—I cannot tell to a week or two.

1299. Chairman.] Look at that petition, and point out your signature? (The Counter-petition being shown to the Witness.)—That is my signature (pointing it out.)

1300. Did you sign that petition, knowing what it was about?—Yes.

1301. Mr. Villiers.] Who brought you that petition to sign?—Charles Gibson, and I think William Hudson.

1302. What did Charles Gibson ask you to do?—To sign that petition.

1303. What did he tell you it was?—That it was in favour of the Corn Laws as they were now standing; or at least against a repeal of them.

1304. What is your business?—A butcher and farmer.

1305. A butcher and farmer in Epworth?—Yes; my farm is in the parish of Epworth.

1306. What is Mr. Gibson?—He is a farmer and a draper.

1307. Do you attend the vestry meetings?—Not often.

1308. Mr. Darby.] Have you any board over your shop?—No.

1309. Mr. Yorke.] Is your name anywhere written, or printed, or painted?—Not over my house.

1310. Mr. Villiers.] Have you any man in your shop?—No.

1311. Do not you employ any person in your business?—When I have been out I have been forced to employ a man while I am away.

1312. He is not of the same name as yourself?—No.

1313. Is he an inhabitant of Epworth?—No.

1314. Do you generally employ the same man when you are absent?—Yes.

1315. Did you see Potts going round the town with this petition?—No.

1316 Was it the first time you heard of this petition when Gibson came round about it?—Yes; within a day or two I had heard talk of it.

1317. Have you heard there was a noise about it?—I had heard there was something got up that was wrong, but I did not then know my name was put there.

1318. Who told you your name was put there?—I do not know who was the first.

1319. Does the man you employ when you are absent ever make out your accounts?—No.

1320. Chairman.] Do you know a person of the name of Potts in Doncaster?—No.

[The Witness withdrew.

John Green, called in; and Examined.

John Green.

1321. Chairman.] IS your name John Green?—Yes.

1322. You keep a beerhouse in Epworth?—Yes.

1323. Have you ever signed any petition for a repeal of the Corn Laws?—No.

1324. Did any person ever ask you to sign one?—No.

1325. Do you know any other person of the name of John Green residing in Epworth or its neighbourhood?—No; there is not one within 20 miles of the spot.

1326. Mr. Villiers.] You mean that you do not know any one?—I have travelled a good deal as a pig-jobber, and do not know one.

1327. Chairman.] You do a good deal about the country?—Yes; I have been at nearly every house; I have been in the pig-jobbing system for 28 years, dealing in swine.

1328. Mr. Villiers.] Do you mean that you have been in every house within

John Green.

30 June 1843.

within 20 miles of Epworth?—No; but I have been to every town, and a good many houses.

1329. Chairman.] Do you remember a person of the name of Samuel Potts of Doncaster lodging at your house some time ago?—Yes, if that is his name, but I never knew him by that name; I never see'd him before he came to my house.

1330. Mr. Darby.] Look at that petition there, is the name of John Green to it; is that your handwriting?—Oh no, that is not my writing, and it never was.

1331. Mr. Yorke.] Do you know your own handwriting?—Yes, well; but I cannot write as well as I did.

1332. Chairman.] Do you recollect a person from Doncaster coming to lodge at your house some time ago?—Yes.

1333. Should you know him if you saw him again?—Yes.

1334. Did you see him in the passage?—Yes, and he came and shak'd hands with me; I knew him as soon as I see'd him.

1335. Mr. Villiers.] Do you say you had not signed any petition at all this year?—No; I never was ax'd.

1336. Did you know anything of this man before he came to your house?—No.

1337. Did he bring a letter from anybody to you?—No.

Samuel Potts was called in.

1338. Chairman.] Is that the person that came to lodge at your house?—Yes.

1339. At what time of the day did he arrive?—About half-past five o'clock at night; it was in the evening.

1340. Did he stay in your house all the evening?—He did, barring going out again between six and seven, to a neighbour of mine, a widow woman.

1341. Did he tell you where he was going?—Yes, and he ax'd me where she lived.

1342. Where did he say he was going?—To one Nanny Crosier's, a widow woman.

1343. How long was it before he came back again?—Not above 10 minutes the first time.

1344. Did he go out again?—Yes.

1345. How long after that did he go out again?—He went a trifle after seven.

1346. Did he tell you where he was going to then?—Yes.

1347. Where did he say he was going?—To Nanny Crosier's.

1348. How long was it before he came back?—About an hour and a half, I think.

1349. Can you remember the day of the month?—No, I cannot.

1350. Do you remember the month?—Yes, it was in April.

1351. Was it the beginning or the end of April?—I cannot tell.

1352. Mr. Villiers.] Was it about Easter time?—I cannot say; he got his tea at Nanny Crosier's the second time.

1353. Chairman.] Did he come with anybody else?—No, by himself.

1354. How long did he stay out after that time?—Till about half-past eight; my wife and I thought he had been out about an hour and a half.

1355. Did he go out again after that?—No, he never went out again.

1356. Did he go to bed?—Yes; he got another glass of ale.

1357. At what time did he go to bed?—About half-past nine.

1358. Are you sure he did not go out again?—Yes; I was at home all the time.

1359. What was he doing before he went to bed?—He was doing nothing, but still he talked very little to me; we had very little discourse.

1360. At what time did he get up in the morning of the following day?—About seven o'clock.

1361. Did he remain at your house or go out immediately?—He stopped there a part of the time, and I believe he went out about eight o'clock.

1362. How

John Green.

30 June 1843.

1362. How long did he remain out?—I never see'd any more of him that day.

1363. Did he pay his shot and go away?—Yes; he got only three gills of ale.

1364. During the time that he was in your house, did he have any conversation with you on any particular subject?—He had no concern with me in discourse at all, further than he said that he was come from Doncaster to get people to sign for a free trade, and he said that if he did not get his business done at Epworth that day he would come down to my house and sleep there again, but he never came again.

1365. Mr. Villiers.] He did not ask you to sign this petition for free trade?—No; nor I never signed it.

1366. Chairman.] Did you see him write anything?—No; he never wrote a bit in my place; he had two or three papers with him, but I never saw him write anything.

1367. Did any other person write in the house while he was there?—No.

1368. Was it a paper like this he had (the Petition)?—Yes; rolled up.

1369. Did you see whether it was full of names when he had it in your house?—No.

1370. You never asked him to show it to you?—No.

1371. Mr. Villiers.] You never saw him after eight o'clock in the morning?—No; not till I saw him here.

1372. Mr. Yorke.] How long has Nanny Crosier been a widow?—Seven or eight years.

1373. What aged woman is she?—She may be, perhaps, 50 years old.

1374. A person of very good character?—Yes; her father lives next door neighbour to this man at Doncaster, and he had a message to leave with her, as he told us.

1375. Is she an Epworth woman, or where did she come from?—She was bred and born at Epworth.

1376. Were you out yourself that day at Epworth?—No; I was at home all the time.

1377. The day he went out at eight o'clock in the morning?—No; I was not. I was in the field, about, part of the day, but I was not down town that day at all that I can recollect, but I never see'd him any more.

1378. Mr. Villiers.] Did you hear any talk about this in the village afterwards?—No.

1379. Did you hear the people say that a man had been round asking for signatures?—No; I did not hear any more.

1380. Does Mrs. Crosier keep a beer-house?—No, she is a labouring woman, with seven or eight children; her husband was a Milner, a codging Milner.

1381. Chairman.] Are you quite sure that there is no person of your name about Epworth?—There is not one that I really have been acquainted with near.

1382. Is there any one that you may not be acquainted with?—No, there is no one near where I live; that I am quite sure of.

[The Witness withdrew.

William Hudson, called in; and further Examined.

William Hudson.

1383. Mr. Yorke.] YOU got up the petition against that petition which you assert is forged for the most part?—Yes.

1384. What period of time did it take you to get up that petition and get the signatures to it?—My son and Mr. Gibson went round one day, and my son and another person another, and I took and finished it off the third day.

1385. About what time in each day did you take?—I got out early in the morning; I cannot exactly say what time they took, but they did take a deal of time in getting it up.

1386. About how many hours in each day do you suppose they occupied?—I am sure I cannot say; it was done at morning, noon, and night; some of the people were at home, some were not at home, and we must call again; it is a straggling sort of business in all times.

1387. Did they employ their time principally in getting up this petition during those three days?—I started before four o'clock in the morning; I set off

William Hudson.

30 June 1843.

off thinking to catch some of them; Joseph Anderson was the first; I met with some who were not up at that time, then I got them as I came back.

1388. At what time in the day did you finish when you began at four o'clock?—Indeed I cannot say; there were some few they had passed, which I got.

1389. Were you the entire of the day?—I know I was a long while without my dinner; it was late in the afternoon.

1390. You were engaged a considerable portion of the day?—Yes; I started between four and five, I think very soon after four in the morning.

1391. Chairman.] Using your utmost diligence, in conjunction with your son and Mr. Gibson, in getting up that other petition, for two or three days, with your knowledge of the town of Epworth and its neighbourhood?—Yes; and always will do that.

1392. How many signatures were there to your petition?—I think 312.

1393. Lord Worsley.] It soon became known in the town that yourself and these other persons were taking round a petition in favour of the Corn Laws?—Yes, it would be soon known in a town like that; it would run like wildfire, as we say.

1394. Do you know whether a person would find occasionally half a dozen together, so that there would not be much time lost in seeking them?—They are not sure to meet half a dozen together, because they get their breakfast and are off to their work; there are no labourers of any consequence upon that petition; it is confined to rate-payers and owners of property; the labourers are left out of that petition, or the names might have been much more extended.

1395. Persons did not congregate together to discuss the question?—The thing was pretty well understood in a neighbourhood like ours; they talk of anything which occurs; it had been some time bruiting about.

1396. It was not known in Epworth until after Potts had gone that the other petition had been in the course of signature?—The truth is, that the man that had been round with it, it was expected he would get no names. I offered to bet 20 l. to 2 d. that he would get no names; and when the statement was in the Doncaster Gazette of his getting 214 names, we knew that it must be a forgery.

[The Witness withdrew.

William Read, called in; and Examined.

William Read.

1397. Chairman.] HAVE you been long resident in Epworth?—I was born in Epworth. I was away two or three years. I have been about 34 in the place.

1398. You have been acquainted with the place 34 years?—Yes, I have been there that time.

1399. What are you?—A grocer, a seed-merchant and a liquor-merchant.

1400. Do you know a person of the name of Samuel Potts, in Doncaster?—I never knew him till I saw him in Epworth a short time ago.

1401. Did he call at your house to ask you to sign a petition?—Yes, he did.

1402. At what time was it?—I should think about four or five o'clock; I did not take notice of it; I thought nothing about it.

1403. What conversation had you with him?—He asked me to sign a petition for the repeal of the Corn Laws. I said, "No; you have got a very bad coat, rather worse than mine; and I think if there is a repeal of the Corn Laws, you will have a worse;" that was nearly all that passed between him and me.

1404. Look at that petition and state whether that signature, "William Reed," is your handwriting?—No.

1405. Do you spell your name in that way?—No; I spell my name Read.

1406. Do you know any other person of that name in Epworth?—There is not one William Reed that spells his name that way.

1407. Is there a William Read that spells his name in any other way?—Yes, there are two that spell their names Read.

1408. Are they relations of yours?—No; not one of them.

1409. Mr. Dundas.] Is it the writing of any one of them?—I think it is not of any one of them; there is one, a labourer, writes a very poor hand; he never did it, certainly.

William Read.

30 June 1843.

1410. Is it the handwriting of either of them, for anything you know to the contrary?—I think it is not, but I cannot swear that it is not.

1411. Chairman.] Are you acquainted with any person of the name of Reed who spells his name Reed?—Only Thomas Reed, who lives just opposite to me; there is not another in the neighbourhood that I know of.

1412. Is there any William Reed in that neighbourhood who spells his name in that way?—No.

1413. Here is a signature to the counter petition, William J. Read, who is he?—I think he is a son of John Read.

1414. Is that signature, William Read, yours (pointing out the signature in the counter-petition)?—No; there is another William Read, what we call Gentleman Read; he spells his name as I spell mine; this is my signature (pointing it out); and there is another name signed by me, Thomas Emerson, he was in my shop at the time and desired I would sign it for him; that is in the same ink as my own signature, being written at the same time.

1415. Can Emerson write?—I think not. When the man came to me, I told him I did not think he could get half a dozen signatures.

1416. Mr. Yorke.] There is a name in the first petition which may be considered to signify Emerson?—That is Thomas Hemisson; we have no person of that name, or anything like it.

1417. Not in the parish of Epworth, or the neighbourhood?—No.

1418. Are you perfectly sure there is not one?—I am pretty sure there is not.

[The Witness withdrew.

Samuel Potts, called in; and further Examined.

Samuel Potts.

1419. Mr. Yorke.] YOU told the Committee you had assisted in getting up petitions in Wadworth, in Bawtry, in Stainforth, and Fishlake?—Yes.

1420. Will you refresh your memory, and state whether you did not also assist in getting up a petition in Hatfield?—There was a petition; there was two names together, Hatfield and Hatfield Woodhouse.

1421. Did you also assist in getting up a petition at Barnby-on-Don?—Yes, I did.

1422. Did you also assist in getting up a petition at Finingley?—Let me look at the heading of it. I think there is another name to it. (The Witness looked at it.) Yes, I did.

1423. Did you also assist in getting up a petition at Armsthorpe?—Yes; Armsthorpe and Cautley; I recollected these after I went out of the room the former day.

1424. But you forgot them during the period of your examination?—Yes; as soon as I got home I recollected that there were more than I had named.

1425. By whom were you assisted in getting those petitions?—There was nobody assisted me in none of them.

1426. You did them yourself?—Mr. Hastie gave me the petitions, but nobody assisted me.

1427. Thorne?—No.

1428. Tickhill?—No, I was not at Tickhill.

1429. Barnborough?—No, I was not there.

1430. Mr. Hardy.] Do you know the person who was at those places?—No; I heard tell of a person being at Crowle when I was at Epworth, but I never heard who it was.

1431. The places you gave before were Wadworth, Stainforth, Fishlake, and Bawtry?—Yes.

1432. Campsall?—No; I did not give that name.

1433. You now say you were at Hatfield, Barnby-on-Don, Finingley, Armsthorpe, and Cautley?—Yes.

1434. Mr. Yorke.] You stated the other day that you got up petitions at Wadworth, at Bawtry, at Stainforth, and at Fishlake?—Yes.

1435. You state now that you forgot to state the other day, but that you now recollect you also got up petitions at Hatfield, at Barnby-on-Don, at Finingley, and at Armsthorpe?—Yes.

1436. Are you positively certain you did not assist in getting up petitions at any other places?—I do not remember any others.

Samuel Potts.

30 June 1843.

1437. Mr. Hardy.] Did you assist in the Doncaster petitions?—No; the people went in shoals to sign them; they were willing to sign them.

1438. You are certain you did not assist?—No; they were volunteers at Doncaster to sign.

1439. Chairman.] Did you not go to Thorne?—No; to the best of my belief and recollection I did not go to any other place; if there is another it is utterly unknown to me.

1440. What period of time were you occupied in those places?—I do not know, I am sure.

1441. The question refers to those as to which you recollect yourself to-day; how long were you at Hatfield?—There is Hatfield and Hatfield Woodhouse; I was there two days.

1442. How long were you at Barnby-on-Don?—Those two petitions I was three days on. I think I mean Stainforth and Fishlake; Barnby-on-Don was a petition to itself, and Stainforth and Fishlake; I forget whether I was more than three days.

1443. Mr. Hardy.] How long were you at Finingley?—I was not there any length of time.

1444. Mr. Yorke.] How long at Armsthorpe?—I have been twice with that petition there; I went on a Saturday night with the petition, and I think it was one day in the middle of the week when I went again.

1445. You went on two different occasions to Armsthorpe?—Yes, to Armsthorpe and Cautley.

1446. Mr. Hardy.] This is the petition from Finingley (it being shown to the Witness)?—It is also from Austerfield, it says, in the county of Nottingham, but I do not know whether they are in one county or not.

1447. Did anybody assist you in getting the signatures to this petition?—No, to none of the petitions.

1448. Are those where you have written the crosses in this petition, written by you?—Yes.

1449. Chairman.] You say you went from Doncaster to Epworth in about three hours; is that correct?—Yes.

1450. You are understood to say you did not get any signatures in the way to Epworth, but went to Epworth as fast as you could?—Yes.

1451. Did you get any signatures at any of the townships in your return?—No, not on that petition.

1452. You are understood to say, you did not go more than two miles from Epworth in obtaining the signatures?—There or thereabouts.

1453. Mr. Darby.] You got to Green's at about half-past five?—Yes, but then I had been in the town before I went to Green's; I did not go there as soon as I got into Epworth.

1454. You said you knew nobody in Epworth?—No, I knew nobody in Epworth.

1455. You did not call upon anybody, then, in Epworth?—No.

1456. Mr. Dundas.] Did not you tell me that you could not remember whether you got any signatures to the petition before you got to Epworth: mind what you are about?—I know what I am about: I said before, I did not know whether I got any signatures before I got to Epworth. I do not say now that I did; I do not remember that I did.

1457. Mr. Darby.] Do you know a person of the name of Nanny Crosier?—Yes.

1458. Did you see her at Epworth?—Yes; I forget whether I had a letter for her or not.

1459. Sir George Strickland.] Did you know her before you went there?—I had seen her, but I did not know her again.

1460. Mr. Hardy.] Did you ask Green for his signature at the public-house?—Yes.

1461. At what time did you get up in the morning?—I think soon after six; between six and seven certainly, but I should think very soon after six.

1462. You got to Green's at half-past five?—Very likely I might.

1463. That is the question; was it about that time?—I do not question that it might be about that time.

1464. After you went there you went to the Crosiers?—Yes, I went to deliver a message there.

1465. Did

1465. Did you come back very soon from Crosier's to Green's?—I was not long on that business.

1466. Did you go out a second time after you came back from Crosier's; did you go twice to Crosier's that evening?—No, I think not; if I did it is more than I know of.

1467. Sir George Strickland.] You went out from Green's more than once that evening?—I dare say I might.

1468. Mr. Darby.] At what time did you go to bed?—I do not know, indeed; perhaps 10 o'clock; I cannot tell I am sure.

1469. Were you in at Green's from the time you returned the second time?—Yes, I think very likely I might.

1470. You were about half an hour out from the time you went to Green's at half-past five that evening?—I think I should be more than that out, but I do not remember. I remember being once or twice in and out, but I do not question that I was in the house by nine o'clock, and might have been in sooner; that is better known to him than to me, but I know I was not late in bed; I did not engage in drinking.

1471. How many signatures did you get that night?—Very few; I meant to be up in the morning and working.

1472. Are you sure you got any signatures that night?—I cannot say; not many I am sure.

1473. If you got any, you say it was very few?—Yes; for I was to call on a good many again.

1474. You went out about six?—Yes, I went out about six.

1475. And you left Epworth about noon that day?—Very likely I might; I cannot say.

1476. The signatures you got to the petition were between the morning and the time when you left the town?—Yes.

1477. Mr. Yorke.] When I put before you the petition from Finingley, you desired to look at the heading of it, and observed that there should be another place attached to that petition; and there was?—Yes; I was aware of that.

1478. How do you explain that you remembered so minutely such a circumstance, whilst you forgot on your former examination to tell that you had been at Hatfield, or Barnby, or Finingley, or Armsthorpe?—If you had named the names of those petitions, I should have thought of them; but you did not name those petitions, though you did the others; if the whole of the number had been named, I should have thought of them.

1479. You were asked whether you had been engaged in getting up any others except those to which you spoke?—Yes; if they had been named it would have called it to my memory at once, but I did not think of them till after I left.

1480. Mr. Dundas.] That is the petition you got signed at Ebsworth; upon your solemn word, how many of those are in your handwriting?—It is impossible for me to tell. I cannot tell how many there is; besides I do not think it would be policy in me to admit.

1481. You are here not on policy, but to tell the truth without reasoning it. How many names are in your handwriting?—I cannot tell.

1482. Are all in your handwriting?—No.

1483. Are all but 20 in your handwriting?—I cannot tell.

1484. Is that the only answer you give?—Yes.

1485. Is this row (the first column) your handwriting?—Some of it.

1486. How much?—I cannot tell.

1487. You must tell the truth; you will get into trouble if you do not answer directly?—I got into trouble one day by saying "No, no."

1488. May there be a hundred in your handwriting in that petition?—It is possible there may be the good end of that; persons who gave me authority.

1489. You stated, on a former occasion, that three gave you authority, and confined it to that?—You said to one and another, "Did those give you authority?" and I was obliged to say "Yes."

1490. Now, having considered it, how many signatures of that are in your writing?—I do not know.

1491. Are there 150?—No.

1492. You say there may be the good end of 100?—Yes; there may be.

1493. How

Samuel Potts.

30 June 1843.

1493. How many do you stand to to-day; you stood to four before?—I cannot stand to no number.

1494. You might have written a hundred?—It is possible I might have written a hundred.

1495. Is that your answer; do not let us have any mistake?—Yes, very near a hundred, as far as I know; some that could not write, and some that would not write, but consented to my writing for them.

1496. You will not undertake to say beyond that, that there might be the good end of a hundred of those signatures which you signed?—No, nor I cannot tell the Wadworth petition. I signed nearly all that; and I think there is a name in that which I have not signed, and I do not know that there is any difference in that from the other. There is one person I met near Loversal Church that signed the petition; I mean that road between Loversall Church and Wadworth. I do not see any difference between his handwriting and mine.

1497. Mr. Dundas.] You say you might have written the good end of a hundred?—Yes, by consent and authority.

1498. As an honest man, point out those signatures to the Committee?—I cannot.

1499. Point out 50 of them?—I cannot.

1500. Point out half a dozen?—There may be a difficulty to find them out; by one name I may commit myself.

1501. You will not point out any?—No; I do not wish to do that.

1502. You are here to tell the whole truth?—I am here for that purpose.

1503. Tell me any one that you recognise as your handwriting?—I would not particularly recognise any one. I may get into a scrape by doing so.

1504. Did you tell Mr. Hastie, when you got into Doncaster, that you had written the far end of 100 yourself?—No; he told me if any person gave their consent I should sign it. The Wadworth was the first petition I went out with, and I made the people put a cross; when I returned with a number of crosses to him, he says, "This has detained you; it is not necessary you should have these marks if you got the consent of the parties."

1505. Will you tell the Committee, upon this piece of paper, which are the parties' names you wrote, having, as you say, their consent to write them?—I cannot tell anything of that sort; there are people who write as well as I do.

1506. Sir George Strickland.] You say you are afraid of telling, for fear of getting people into trouble about this?—Yes; I may answer to one person to whom I have pledged myself; I may commit myself.

1507. Mr. Dundas.] Do you know the names of the persons to whom you have pledged yourself?—I know some of them.

1508. Mr. Greene.] How many?—I told you before I thought six or seven.

1509. Mr. Yorke.] Cannot you name those six or seven?—Yes; I dare say I can, but I do not think it would be policy.

1510. The question here is not a question of policy but a question of truth?—I had rather not.

1511. Mr. Darby.] Here is one you cannot commit yourself with; is William Reed your handwriting?—How cannot I commit myself?

1512. Look at it. Is William Reed in your handwriting?—I do not think it is.

1513. Is William Crowder in your handwriting?—No; I think not.

1514. Is John Green in your handwriting?—No; it is not.

1515. Chairman.] Do you remember whether John Green signed the petition?—John Green, the publican, never signed at all.

1516. The other John Green?—I believe that was in the street.

1517. Is that George Kirk in your handwriting?—I cannot say that it is.

1518. Can you say that it is not?—No, I cannot say either way; I do not think that it is,

1519. Is that James Sampson your handwriting?—I cannot say whether it is or not.

1520. You are not sure?—No, I am not.

1521. Is there any one that you are sure of?—Yes.

1522. Show me the one you are sure of?—I do not think it will be good policy.

1523. If you are sure of one, the Committee ought to know it?—That is one there (John Laycock).

1524. That is your handwriting?—Yes.

1525. Do you know who that was?—No; I do not remember.

1526. Look at the name of John Kelsey; is that in your handwriting?—I cannot say that it is.

1527. Can you say that it is not?—No, I cannot say that it is not.

1528. You would just as soon say that it is, as that it is not?—Yes.

1529. Mr. Greene.] What induced you to go to Crosier's house when you came to Epworth?—Because I had a message from Doncaster.

1530. Who gave you the message?—Her daughter and her father.

1531. Had you known that daughter and father any time before?—I was like to know them, because they live against me.

1532. Did you take a message or a letter?—I think it was a message.

1533. Did you make any inquiries of her as to the persons living in Epworth?—I do not know that I did.

1534. Do you know whether you did or did not?—No, I do not know that I did.

1535. Do you know that you did not?—I do not know that I did not.

1536. Mr. Yorke.] Are you perfectly certain you did not ask her for information touching persons who were living at Epworth?—I am not quite sure; I do not remember that I did.

1537. Mr. Greene.] Whom did you see in her house?—There was nobody in her house but herself.

1538. Did she go round with you anywhere?—No.

1539. Did she point out any of the houses to you?—No; I did call again next morning, but she had gone to work.

1540. When was it you told her father and sister you were going to Epworth?—It might be, perhaps, an hour before I went, or half an hour, or 20 minutes. I expected I was to have had a letter from them, but I had a message.

1541. What made you suppose there would be a letter?—Because I was told so.

1542. By whom were you told so?—Her relations; her father and her daughter; they told me they would send a letter by me, but it came off with a message; they did not write a letter.

The Witness was directed to withdraw.

The Witness was again called in.

1543. Mr. Darby.] You stated just now that there were seven names which you could point out as persons to whom you had made a promise that you would not disclose their having signed that petition?—Yes; I have no doubt that it is so.

1544. Sir George Strickland.] About seven, or exactly seven?—About seven.

1545. Point out which those seven are?—You wish me to point out those names which I pledged myself that I would not point out.

1546. The names have been made public; do you object to point those names out?—Yes.

1547. The Committee have the power, if those names are stated here, of directing that they shall not be made public, but merely be left in blank?—It appears, then, that I am bound to admit those seven people; those six or seven people.

1548. You have said you think there are six or seven?—Yes; I say so still.

1549. Mr. Darby.] Will you give one of those names?—I may as well tell you the whole, if I violate my word; for my word's sake, I refuse; on account of my word.

1550. Are you aware that every one of those names signed to that petition has been sent down to Epworth; every name in this petition has been sent down to Epworth, or the parish of Epworth?—I know that.

1551. To know whether every one signed?—Yes; I have no doubt there are persons who would as soon eat hay with the horses as say they had signed it.

1552. Are

Samuel Potts.

30 June 1843.

1552. Are you aware that every name attached to that petition has been sent down to Epworth?—Oh, yes; I am fully aware of that.

1553. And that every person who signed that petition is fully known in Epworth to have signed it?—Yes.

1554. It is no longer a secret that they have signed it?—No; but there is something besides that; persons were there when it got to Epworth, who did not dare acknowledge it; their heart trembled; they durst not say they had signed it.

1555. Mr. Greene.] Are the Committee to understand that you refuse?—Yes; I cannot intentionally say one thing out of the house, and another in it. I think I should be a base fellow to do such a thing, and I must refuse.

1556. Mr. Yorke.] Did you sign for Francis Morrish?—No; he signed it for himself.

1557. "Richard Maw"; did you sign that?—No; I think not.

1558. "T. A. Goodall"?—No; I remember the man signing that; I believe Goodall is the barber.

1559. Did you sign "Matthew Ingham"?—I do not know; I think I did.

1560. With his authority?—Yes.

1561. Did you sign "Thomas Thorpe"?—No; I think not.

1562. Lord Worsley.] Have you any objection to give the names, with the understanding that the Committee will not repeat the names of those persons, and that the names you mention shall not appear in the printed Report, but be left in blank. With that assurance from the Committee, have you any objection to mention the names?—Yes, I have a strong objection; for there is a body of men whom I have promised; and I am equally bound as if it went through the press.

[The Witness was directed to withdraw.

Samuel Potts, called in; and further Examined.

Samuel Potts.

3 July 1843.

1563. Mr. Yorke.] DID you sign for Thomas Coggon?—No, I think not.

1564. Did you sign Benjamin Leggatt?—No, I think not.

1565. Did you sign Levi Clark?—No, it is not in my writing; it is his own writing, I warrant.

1566. Did you sign William Reed?—No, I do not remember that I did.

1567. Mr. Dundas.] Do you say yes or no?—No.

1568. Mr. Yorke.] Did you sign Thomas Richardson?—I am not sure; I do not doubt but that I did; it has the appearance of my writing.

1569. Did you sign Robert Gardham?—No, I think not.

1570. Did you sign William Cawthron?—(The Witness hesitated.)—No, I think not; I cannot remember; there might be some that I did; I cannot remember them all; many people write like me.

1571. Did you sign for Philip Duncan?—No, I think not.

1572. Mr.

Samuel Potts.

3 July 1843.

1572. Mr. Villiers.] Do you know any of the persons who directed you to sign their names?—Do I know any? No, I cannot say I do, but it is the only petition where I do not know; in all the other petitions I know; in all the other parishes, Wadworth and Bawtry, I could stand to the names.

1573. They all gave you their authority to sign their names, whose names you did sign?—Yes, the names I did sign, or else I should not have done so.

1574. Should you know them again by sight if you saw them?—Very few. I have seen some on evidence that I did not know; I could tell only one or two that I could make out.

1575. You were a perfect stranger to Epworth?—I had never been there in my life before; but the other petitions I can tell more about, because I know them; I have been through the villages. I can stand to all the names in the Wadworth petition, except about two, and am able to prove them all; and the Bawtry the same. I think at Bawtry I got upwards of 40 signatures under 40 minutes, in the dinner hour.

1576. Mr. Yorke.] Had you forgotten when you were first examined, that nearly 100 people had told you to sign their names for them?—Nearly 100 people had told me to sign their names; I had not forgotten that.

1577. But you did not state that at first?—But I did the other day.

1578. You did not at first, did you?—No; I do not remember that I did.

1579. You remember being asked, do not you?—I dare say I was asked; but I do not remember exactly whether I was or not.

1580. Mr. Greene.] Are you quite sure the name Thomas Coggon is not in your handwriting?—I have not a doubt it is not my handwriting.

1581. What makes you think it is not your handwriting?—I am sensible almost that it is not mine; I have found many people in the petitions that wrote exactly as I did; I remember one or two at Hatfield that signed as I did.

1582. Mr. Yorke.] On your first examination you told me you had got up petitions in such and such places?—Yes.

1583. And only in such and such places?—That was to my belief; there was more found out afterwards, which I acknowledged to.

1584. It is in evidence, from yourself, that after you left the room on the first occasion, you recollected you had got up other petitions?—Yes.

1585. But on your second examination you did not allude to those; how do you explain that?—Because I was not asked the question. I thought it would be quite soon enough to give an answer when a further question was put to me. There is also another thing, an error. On the last occasion you asked me about the Bentley petition; you asked me if I had been to Bentley with a petition, and this petition I admitted before was for Moss and Fenwick. I said I had been to Moss and Fenwick, and that country, where there was a scattered people; it was something like Sikehouse, where there is a scattered people over five, or six, or eight miles, and that was the Bentley petition. I thought when you asked me as to the Bentley petition, you meant, was this petition solely for Bentley? but Bentley is included in the petition, I admitted on the day or two previous. If you look at that petition, you will find that there is Bentley, and Harxy, and Moss, and I do not question whether there is not Fenwick.

[The Witness withdrew.

Mr. William Bolland, called in; and Examined.

Mr. W. Bolland.

1620. Chairman.] YOU are an inhabitant of Epworth?—Yes.

1621. You are by trade a tailor, are not you?—A tailor and draper.

1622. Will you look at that petition (handing the Petition for the Repeal of the Corn Laws to the Witness); look at the prayer of it, and the signature, "William Bolland." (The Witness inspected the Petition.)

1623. Mr. Yorke.] Is that your writing?—No.

1624. Chairman.] Did you ever sign a petition in favour of the repeal of the Corn Laws?—No.

1625. Mr. Darby.] Did you authorise any person to sign it for you?—No.

William Axe.

10 July 1843.

1639. Mr. Darby.] Have you heard since of this petition being about Epworth?—Since when?

1640. At any time, have you heard that there was such a petition?—No, I do not know that I have.

1641. Did you authorise anybody to put your handwriting there?—Nobody but Mr. Hudson.

1642. You did not authorise Mr. Potts?—No; I can write my own hand; I never saw the man, and know no more about him than a child.

1643. Will you sign your name in your ordinary manner?—(The Witness did so.)

1644. Chairman.] Which is the signature in that petition next to yours?—Crowder's.

1645. How far does Crowder live from you?—Seven or eight hundred yards, I should think, or more than that.

1646. How far does Saxon live from you?—Further still, nearer the market-place; a good bit; as far again from me.

1647. Mr. Henley.] Is that name, "William Axe," your son's handwriting upon the petition?—My son never seed him.

1648. Chairman.] Is that your son's handwriting?—No; he declared he never seed the man.

1649. Mr. Darby.] Do you know your son's writing?—Yes; that is not my son's writing.

[The Witness withdrew.

Thomas Saxton, called in; and Examined.

Thomas Saxton.

1653. Chairman.] YOUR name is Thomas Saxon?—Yes.

1654. You are a blacksmith at Epworth?—Yes.

1655. How far do you reside from William Axe?—Very near half a mile.

1656. Will you look at the signature "Thomas Saxon" to that petition (showing the Petition for the Repeal of the Corn Laws to the Witness), and say whether or not that is your handwriting?—(The Witness looked at the Petition.) No, that is not mine.

1657. Look at the petition, the prayer of it, and read it; look at it carefully.—I am not a good reader myself; I cannot read it very well.

1658. Mr. Darby.] Is that your handwriting (pointing out the name of Thomas Saxon on the Petition)?—No, it is not mine.

1659. Chairman.] Did you authorise anybody to sign a petition for the repeal of the Corn Laws?—No, I did not. I never see any one with a petition of that sort for a repeal of the Corn Laws; no one.

1660. Mr. Villiers.] Have you signed a petition this year about the Corn Laws?—Yes.

1661. Who did you sign it for?—A man of the name of Charles Gibson.

1662. You signed it for him, did you?—He brought the petition about, he and a young man called John Hudson.

1663. And they requested you to sign what they brought about?—They brought a paper, and they wanted my hand to the paper. I says, "Is it for free trade?" and Gibson says, "Will you sign for free trade?" and I said, "No, I will not;" and he said, "No, it is not; it is for the Corn Laws to continue as they are—no repeal;" and I signed it.

1664. That is the only petition you have signed this year?—Yes; that is the only one I have signed this year, excepting one for the Factory Education Bill; I signed one of them, and that and this is all that I did sign.

1665. Mr. Yorke.] Will you write your name as you usually do?—(The Witness wrote his name.)

Thomas Saxton.
10 July 1843.

1666. Do you spell your name with a t?—Yes; Saxton.

1667. Mr. Villiers.] Is there anybody else of your name in Epworth?—No, not one.

1674. Was he buried at Epworth?—Yes; buried in Epworth churchyard.

1675. Is there a tomb-stone to him?—Yes, there is.

1676. And the name upon it?—Yes, it is.

1677. Do you recollect how the name is spelt on that tomb-stone?—Not particularly; but I believe it is spelt the same way as mine, Saxton; I believe there is a t in it. I have not seen any of our family spell it in any other way.

Mr. William Harrap, called in; and Examined.

Mr. W. Harrap.

1678. Chairman.] YOUR name is William Harrap?—Yes.

1681. Did you ever sign a petition for the repeal of the Corn Laws?—No, never.

1682. Will you look at the signature "William Harrap" (showing the Petition for the Repeal of the Corn Laws to the Witness) there, and inform the Committee whether or not it is yours?—I cannot write, nor I cannot read.

1683. Mr. Yorke.] Consequently that is not your signature?—No.

1684. Chairman.] Did you authorise anybody to put your signature to a petition for the repeal of the Corn Laws?—No one.

1685. Mr. Villiers.] Did you authorise Mr. Gibson to put your name to his petition; either Charles Gibson or Mr. Hudson?—Albion Reed I did; they call him Albion Reed, but his name is William.

1686. What did you say to him?—He was in the parish clerk's house, and he was signing his own name, and signed mine at the same time.

1687. Did he do so without asking you?—No.

1688. What did you tell him to do?—To sign my name against the Corn Laws being taken off.

1689. Chairman.] Against repealing them?—Yes.

1690. Mr. Yorke.] You mean that your principles were for keeping them as they are?—Just as they are at present.

1691. Mr. Villiers.] Where were you when you said that?—In the parish clerk's house, Mr. Hudson's.

1692. Did you go there for the purpose of signing the petition?—I was coming past and I seed Mr. Hudson and Mr. Albion Reed at the door, and they said would I sign this here.

1693. Did they call you in?—No; they said would I sign it; and I went in and Mr. Reed signed it for me, as I tell you.

1694. Chairman.] Is there any other person of the name of William Harrap in Epworth besides yourself, or about Epworth?—No, not within a many miles.

1695. Not of the name of William?—I should fancy not as far as Sheffield, which I should think is six-and-thirty miles.

1696. Mr. Villiers.] How do you know that?—There is no name of that sort which I am acquainted with for many miles round.

Mr. W. Harrap.

10 July 1843.

1697. Do you know every person within 36 miles of Epworth?—No; but many.

1698. Are you quite sure none of your kinsmen would sign a petition for the repeal of the Corn Laws?—Not one belonging to me.

1699. What is your business?—A farmer.

1700. Are you a tenant?—A tenant.

1701. A tenant at will?—I do not know what you mean.

1702. Are you a yearly tenant?—Yes.

1703. Mr. Estcourt.] How do they pronounce your name, anybody speaking to you; what do they say?—William Harrap.

1704. Do they say "Harrap," or "Harrah"?—"Hannap." I am called many different names.

1705. Do you know a person living at Epworth of the name of Harrah?—No.

1706. Is there any George Harrah?—No, there is not; there is George Harrap and there is James Harrap.

1707. Mr. Yorke.] You say you cannot read or write?—No.

1708. Can you spell?—I can spell my own name, because I have got to know it.

1709. Will you tell me how you spell it?—H-a-r-r-a-p.

[The Witness withdrew.

James Harrap, called in; and Examined.

James Harrap.

1710. Chairman.] YOUR name is James Harrap?—Yes.

1711. You are a brother of William Harrap, are not you?—Yes.

1712. Did you ever sign a petition for the repeal of the Corn Laws?—No.

1713. Will you look at the signature, "James Harrap," to that petition (the Petition for the Repeal of the Corn Laws being shown to the Witness), and say whether that is your signature?—Yes; that is mine.

1714. That is your name, but did you write it?—Yes.

1715. Mr. Darby.] Do you write yourself?—Yes, but I am only a bad writer; I cannot read writing further than my own name; I cannot read writing of anybody else's.

1716. Mr. Yorke.] Will you sign your name?—(The Witness signed his name.)

1717. Can you read?—I cannot read writing.

1718. Can you read printing?—Yes; a little.

1719. Mr. Villiers.] You can read your own name, cannot you?—If it is in print I can.

1720. And when you have written it you can read it?—Yes.

1721. Chairman.] Look carefully at the petition, and say whether you signed it?—I did sign Mr. Hudson's against the petition.

The Witness was directed to withdraw.

The Witness was again called in.

1722. Chairman.] Do you remember a man called Potts coming to Epworth, and asking you to sign a petition?—I never seed the man.

1723. Can you recollect what petitions you signed within the last two or three months; have you signed any petitions within the last two or three months?—I do not know that I have; but Mr. Charles Gibson's I signed too, and Mr. Hudson's son.

1724. You signed a petition brought to you by Mr. Charles Gibson and Mr. Hudson's son?—Yes.

1725. Did they tell you what the nature of that petition was?—Yes.

1726. What did they say?—That it was against this here man coming to get the names against the free trade; I did not understand the concern; I did not know anything about the man coming, but they asked me to sign against it.

1727. Did you write your name yourself, or authorise any person to sign it for you?—I wrote it myself, as well as I could; but I am not a writer. (Showing it to the Witness.) I wrote it in Mr. Crowder's, the blacksmith's shop, upon the steady.

1728. Mr. Villiers.] Do you know how many petitions you have signed this year?—No; I cannot recollect that.

1729. Mr. Yorke.] Have you signed a good number?—No, not particular.

1730. Mr. Villiers.] Do you think you have signed three petitions this year?—I am sure I cannot say.

1731. Mr. Darby.] Did Mr. Hudson sign the name for you, or did you sign it yourself?—I wrote it myself.

1732. Chairman.] Do you know any other James Harrap about Epworth except yourself?—No, there is not one; there is but us three brothers of that name; there is but that family.

Samuel Potts was called in.

1733. Chairman.] (To James Harrap.) Did you ever see that man before (pointing to Samuel Potts)?—Not to my knowledge.

1734. Did he bring you any petition to sign?—No; he never came to my house that I heard talk of.

1735. Did he meet you in the street or the fields or anywhere with a petition?—No.

1736. Mr. Yorke.] (To Samuel Potts.) Did you ever see that gentleman (pointing to James Harrap)?—I cannot say whether I have or not; I cannot speak to it; it is very likely I might.

1737. Did you ever call at his house?—I do not know his name, therefore I cannot tell; I called at most of the houses in Epworth, but I cannot speak to that.

Samuel Potts was directed to withdraw.

1738. Mr. Darby.] (To James Harrap.) Where is your name, which you say you wrote yourself (showing the Witness the Petition prepared by Mr. Hudson); is that it (pointing to the same)?—The Witness looked at the Petition.

1739. Mr. Villiers.] Is that name your handwriting?—No, I could not write so well as that.

1740. Do you know whose handwriting that is?—No; I am no scholar, no further than I can just read my own name; I can just read clear plain print.

1741. It was in a blacksmith's shop you signed this petition, you say?—It was in Mr. Crowder's, the blacksmith's shop.

1742. Mr. Yorke.] Do you think it possible you could see your own name, without knowing whether it was written by yourself or another person?—I think I could.

1743. By "think you could," do you mean you could not be deceived?—I do not say I could not be deceived, because I am no writer.

1744. Mr. Villiers.] That is the name you say was yours (showing the Witness his name in the Petition for the Repeal of the Corn Laws)?—It is very much like my writing.

1745. Chairman.] Did you write it?—I believe I did, but I cannot say positively.

1746. Mr. Darby.] You saw that man Potts who was in the room just now?—I saw him when he was in here.

1747. Take care that you speak the truth?—I do not intend to speak anything else.

1748. Will you undertake to say that you did not sign the petition that that man brought?—Oh yes, that I will; I can take an oath upon that; I never seed the man, nor he never was at my house.

1749. Take care what you say; this is the very petition which that man had at Epworth, that your name is to; will you undertake to say you did not sign it?—It is a very easy matter to confound me; I could not swear to my writing, because I am such a mucky hand; that is my name.

The Witness was directed to withdraw.

The Witness was again called in.

1750. Mr. Darby.] You are to tell the truth, and say whether you saw Potts at Epworth, and whether you signed the petition which he had; if you did, you are to say so?—I never did; I never seed the man.

1751. You are bound to tell the Committee you did see him if you did?—I never seed the man in my life before to my knowledge.

1752. Mr. Villiers.] You do not remember seeing that man before whom you saw just now?—No.

James Harrap.

10 July 1843.

1753. Mr. Hardy.] Are you a tenant, or do you rent your own land?—I am a tenant, and have some of my own; I have some under the lord of the manor.

1754. Mr. Henley.] Is there anybody else of your name in the place?—No, there is not.

1755. You are understood to say that you signed the petition Mr. Hudson brought to you?—Mr. Gibson and Mr. Hudson's son.

1756. Did you sign it yourself, or did you authorise any one to do it for you?—I signed it myself; I never told any one else.

1757. Mr. Darby.] Will you find out your name in Mr. Hudson's petition (handing the same to the Witness)?—(The Witness looked over the signatures to the Petition.) I cannot find it.

1758. That is the only place your name is in (showing the name "James Harrop" to the Witness), and that you say is not your handwriting?—I cannot swear to my writing; I will swear that I signed the petition; but I should not like to take an oath that that is mine.

[The Witness withdrew.

George Harrap, called in; and Examined.

George Harrap.

1759. Chairman.] IS your name George Harrap?—Yes.

1760. Are you a resident at Epworth?—Yes.

1761. What is your business?—A horse-breaker; I take horses to fairs, and such like.

1762. Do you remember a man coming to Epworth with a petition for the repeal of the Corn Laws?—No.

1763. Look at the signature "George Harrap" to that petition (showing the Petition for the Repeal of the Corn Laws to the Witness); is that your handwriting?—I am not a writer; I cannot write.

1764. Mr. Yorke.] Can you read?—No.

1765. Chairman.] Did you authorise anybody to sign a petition for the repeal of the Corn Laws?—No; nor never had the question put to me for anything of the sort.

1766. Are you well acquainted with Epworth and its neighbourhood?—Yes.

1767. And with the Isle of Axholme generally?—Yes; and Axey and Crowle, and all round.

1768. Do you know any other person of the name of George Harrap about there?—No, there is not; I have a cousin lives at a place called Balby, a mile from Doncaster.

1769. How far is that from Epworth?—About 18 miles.

1770. Is his name George?—Yes, they call him George; we are cousins.

1771. Mr. Villiers.] Did you authorise any person to sign a petition for you of any kind whatever?—I authorised Mr. Hudson to sign one.

1772. What was that about?—Not for that same one that this was; not for a free trade.

1773. Did Mr. Hudson tell you what he asked you to sign?—Yes.

1774. What did he tell you?—He told me would I sign his petition against this man that had been about.

1775. And you told him to write it for you?—Yes; I was no scholar; I could not write.

1776. What is Mr. Hudson in Epworth?—I do not know what he is particularly; I think he is parish clerk.

1777. Did you ever break horses for him?—No, he has no horses to break.

1778. Mr. Yorke.] You say you cannot write?—No.

1779. Can you spell your name?—No.

1780. If I were to say your name were composed of these letters, should you say I was right or wrong, Flapu, is that it?—I know what does spell it, but I cannot read it.

1781. Will you be good enough to say what spells it?—H-a-r-r-a-p; but I cannot read it.

1782. Mr. Villiers.] This man coming into Epworth with this petition about the Corn Laws made some talk, did not it?—I never heard anything about it. I should think for a month after that man had been I never knew such a thing.

1783. And

George Harrap.
10 July 1843.

1783. And then there was a piece of work in Epworth about it, was not there? —Yes.
1784. And the parish clerk then asked you to sign something against it?—Yes.
1785. And you said you would sign what the parish clerk asked you to sign? —I told him to sign it for me, for I could not sign it.
1786. Chairman.] You could not sign it because you could not write?—Yes; because I could not write.
1787. Mr. Yorke.] Have you signed any other petitions, or given authority for having your name signed to any other petitions this year?—No.
1788. Mr. Villiers.] Do you reside in Epworth yourself?—Yes.
1789. Do you break horses for the farmers about there?—Yes.

[The Witness withdrew.

Mr. William Langton, called in; and Examined.

Mr. W. Langton.

1790. Chairman.] YOUR name is William Langton?—Yes.
1791. You are a grocer in Epworth?—Yes.
1792. Do you remember any person coming to you in April last and asking you to sign a petition to repeal the Corn Laws?—He never did.
1793. Nobody did?—Nobody did.
1794. Can you write your name?—Yes.
1795. Will you look at the signatures to that petition (the Petition for the Repeal of the Corn Laws being shown to the Witness), and tell the Committee whether that is your handwriting or not?—No; it is not my handwriting.
1796. Mr. Yorke.] Will you sign your name?—(The Witness signed his name.)
1797. How many years have you resided in Epworth?—I was born in Epworth, and I am 76 years of age the 30th of last April.
1798. Then in fact you have lived in Epworth for 76 years?—No; I have been out of Epworth; when I was young I was a joiner, and I tramped; but I have resided in Epworth now about 34 or 35 years.
1799. Did you ever see a man with a petition in Epworth?—I never see the man till I seed him come into this room to-day.
1800. Do you happen to know if he called at your house?—I am at home always, and he never called at my house.
1801. You are positively certain he never called at your house?—He never called at my house at all, and I never seed him.
1802. Mr. Villiers.] Did you ever hear of his being in the town when he was there?—No, not for nearly a fortnight after.
1803. What did you hear about him when you did hear anything?—We had a vestry meeting for the parish business, and Mr. Hudson was going then to write a letter to Mr. Christopher; he seed it in the Doncaster paper, and he was going to write a letter to Mr. Christopher; and as soon as he read the petition over in the vestry, I said we ought all of us to sign it, and the whole vestry said they would: it grew so dark in the vestry we could not see what we did, and we went out on the grave-stones to sign it, and then Mr. Hudson went round and got the petition signed.
1804. Chairman.] You have been a long time acquainted with Epworth and its neighbourhood?—Yes.
1805. Do you know any other person there bearing exactly the same name as you do; is there any other William Langton about there?—I have a grandson.
1806. Mr. Yorke.] Of what age?—Seventeen, the 17th of last October.
1807. Chairman.] Does he reside with you in Epworth?—With his father.
1808. His father is your son?—Yes.
1809. He is here, is he not?—He is. He is Robert Langton, and my grandson is William Langton.
1810. Mr. Villiers.] Does your grandson know your handwriting?—I think my grandson does not; I think my son does; my grandson may, but I cannot swear to it.
1811. I presume, as a shopkeeper, you are in the habit of writing your own accounts?—I have not much accounts to write, only from week to week; they are generally poor people, and pay ready money.
1812. Chairman.] Did you authorise any person to sign a petition for the repeal of the Corn Laws?—I never did.

Mr. W. Langton.

10 July 1843.

1813. Mr. Villiers.] What is your grandson; what does he do?—He is a joiner by trade; I was brought up a joiner myself; my son and grandson are both joiners.

1814. Can your grandson write?—Yes; they are both decent good scholars.

1815. Is there any school at Epworth?—Yes, two very good ones; there are several schools for children, and such like as that; charity schools.

1816. Mr. Darby.] How do you spell your name?—L-a-n-g-t-o-n.

1817. Is there a William Laughton?—Not here; there are two Laughtons in the town.

1818. Chairman.] Did you sign the petition that Mr. Hudson brought to you?—Yes.

1819. Mr. Yorke.] What was the nature of that petition?—It was against the Anti-corn Law. (The Petition prepared by Mr. Hudson was shown to the Witness.) That is my handwriting, "senior;" having a grandson, and not knowing whether he would sign or not, I put "senior."

1820. Were you aware of the nature of the petition at the time you signed it?—I think I was.

1821. You are not certain?—Yes, I think I am certain.

1822. Should you have been likely to sign a petition without knowing what the nature of it was?—I should not.

1823. Mr. Villiers.] Mr. Hudson fully explained to you what he asked you to sign?—Yes; I said, "Do you think I would sign a petition to cut my own throat?"

1824. Do you mean that it would offend the farmers in the neighbourhood?—It would offend me too; I have some land of my own.

1825. Mr. Estcourt.] What do they call you in the neighbourhood, Lanton or Langton?—I tell you our name.

1826. What do your friends call you?—They call me Lanton.

1827. Do the people you employ, talking to you in a common way, say, "Well, William Langton?"—They call me "William Langton" constantly: they call me by my own name.

1828. They call you in such a way that the name sounds Langton?—Langton is my name, and they sound it so, only some people cannot.

[The Witness withdrew.

Robert Langton, called in; and Examined.

Robert Langton.

1829. Mr. Darby.] WHAT is your name?—Robert Langton.

1830. Chairman.] You are a carpenter in Epworth, are you not?—Yes, I am a joiner at least.

1831. You are the son of the last witness?—Yes.

1832. You have a son, have you not, of the name of William?—Yes.

1833. Do you know his handwriting?—Oh yes.

1834. Mr. Yorke.] Do you believe that to be your son's handwriting (pointing out the name "W. Lantern" in the Petition for the Repeal of the Corn Laws to the Witness)?—I am sure it is not, for my son is a very good writer, and can write better than any name on that list; swearing is going a long way, but I am sure he never wrote that.

1835. Mr. Villiers.] That is not your family name, is it?—No, the name is spelt wrong.

Samuel Potts was called in.

1836. Chairman.] (To Robert Langton.) Did that man (pointing to Samuel Potts) come to you at Epworth with a petition?—He did not come to me, but I went into a tailor's shop where the man was.

1837. You remember seeing him?—Oh yes, perfectly well.

1838. Had you any conversation with him; did he show you a petition?—Yes, he had a petition in his hand. (Samuel Potts was directed to withdraw.) He said, "Will you sign this petition?" and I said, "What is it?". He says, "It is for the repeal of the Corn Laws;" and I says, "No, you will never get that signed here; but just give me leave to read it over." The petition was thrown open on the tailors' working board. I read it over. I says, "You will never get a name to this petition in an agricultural district." "Oh yes," he says, "I shall." I says, "Well, I am not in the habit of betting wagers, but I will bet you a sovereign you cannot get one name in the town, if you will give me one road to creep out at;" and he says, "What is that?" "Why," I says, "if you get a name, there shall be another petition next day, contrary to it, and the person will sign that." I said, "I am aware there are a few individuals in the town that would sign anything, and never care anything about the purport; but if you let another petition go contrary to it, you will not get a name in the whole town but will sign that other petition." He could not get one signature in the town to his petition, only a person that would sign anything; if one went contrary, he would sign it too.

1839. Mr. Villiers.] There are persons that would sign either way, or both ways?—I could not say positively there are.

1840. But that is what you meant?—There are some men who, if you said, "Will you sign this petition?" would say, "I care nothing about it." It is my opinion he might get a few signatures upon those grounds, but a conscientious thinking man would not sign it.

1841. Chairman.] At what time in the morning was it you had this conversation with Potts?—Between eight and half-past. I am positive to that, because I breakfast at eight o'clock, me and my men too; my men have half an hour, and of course I take the same liberty for breakfast; and it was between going in to breakfast and going to work again. Potts says, "Well, I have no time to argue the question with you." And upon these grounds no more was said, and away he went; he wanted the tailor on the board to sign it, and he objected, a man of the name of Newbitt.

1842. Mr. Yorke.] Do you remember the day of the week on which this conversation took place?—I can tell, I think, the day; I will not swear to it, but I think it was Easter Tuesday. I went into Newbitt's house to ask him if he and his wife were going to Gainsborough mart; that is on Easter Tuesday.

1843. Chairman.] Did Potts show you the petition?—I read it.

1844. At that hour, eight o'clock in the morning, were any signatures attached to it?—Not one; there was not a name to it; if there had been a name to it, I should never have bet the man a sovereign he could not get any.

1845. Will you look at that petition and read it; is that the petition Potts showed you (the Petition for the Repeal of the Corn Laws being shown to the Witness)?—I really cannot say to that; I read it, but it did not strike me forcibly at the time. I never signed a petition without reading it beforehand.

1846. At the time he showed it to you at eight o'clock in the morning, is it to be understood from you there were no signatures attached to it?—Not one; that I would swear in any court of justice.

1847. Mr. Villiers.] There was writing?—Yes.

1848. Did you read what was written?—Yes.

1849. The general purport of it was in favour of the repeal of the Corn Laws?—Yes, to be sure it was.

1850. That was what made you say he could not get a name?—Yes; because I know there is not a man who would conscientiously sign one.

1851. Chairman.] There is a name in that petition written "Robert Lantern;" is that your handwriting?—Oh no; I do not spell my name like that at all.

1852. Mr. Villiers.] That is not your name, is it?—No, it is not my name.

1853. Mr. Yorke.] Will you be good enough to write your name as you usually do?—(The Witness did so.)

1854. Mr. Darby.] Your name is Robert?—Yes.

1855. What is your son's name?—William.

1856. And your father's name is also William?—Yes.

1857. Chairman.] Have you known Epworth some time?—I was born in it, and have been in it all my time.

1858. Do you know in the neighbourhood of Epworth any person of the name of Robert Lantern, whose name appears to that petition?—No; I do not know a person anywhere of that name. I never saw the name in my life; but we are called by some of the inhabitants of Epworth, the lower order of people, Lantons. They do not get Langton, which is our real name, but many say "William Lanton," "Robert Lanton."

1859. Mr. Hardy.] They do not sound the g?—No; but our name is Langton.

1860. Mr. Villiers.] That is spelt in the petition as it is pronounced, is it?—Not as all pronounce it; they are not very good talkers, and many say "Lanton." Of course those that talk properly say "Langton."

 1861. Chairman.]

Robert Langton.

10 July 1843.

1861. Chairman.] Had you no other conversation with Potts about this petition, except what you have stated?—I am not much of a politician, but I had a little bit about it. I said "It would not do at all for this neighbourhood; in fact it would be a ruinous thing altogether." I said, "You should have gone into a manufacturing district;" and he says, "Well, I have not time to argue the question," and the thing ceased.

1862. Mr. Villiers.] Did you see anything more of Potts while he was in Epworth?—I never saw him but that time.

1863. Did you happen to see where he went to after he left you?—No; he came out at the same time as I, and I went to my work, and I never saw him any more till I saw him here.

1864. Chairman.] At eight o'clock no signatures were attached to the petition?—Between eight and half past; about a quarter past.

1865. Mr. Villiers.] Did you hear anybody speak of him afterwards?—No, not for some time; very few in the town knew there had been such a man in it.

1866. Did you happen then, or some few days afterwards, to hear it said that that man had been asking you?—No; till a stir was made about it. Mr. Hudson and me are neighbours, and he came down to my house and says, "I need not ask you if you signed this Anti-Corn Law petition, because your name is spelt wrong; but I suppose you did not?" I said, "No; if I had signed it I think I should have spelt my name right."

1867. Did you mention to anybody after the conversation with Potts, that you had had such a conversation?—Yes; I talked it over several days.

1868. The very day after?—I cannot say to that.

1869. Do you recollect anybody to whom you mentioned it after you had seen Potts, and had this conversation with him?—Newbitt, the tailor, who was in the shop. Newbitt says, "That I recollect;" and his apprentices were there and heard the conversation. I have spoken of it several times.

1870. It was known pretty generally in Epworth that Potts was there, was it not?—Of course some individuals knew it; but not the bulk of the inhabitants.

1871. Mr. Yorke.] Did not he call upon the bulk of the inhabitants?—I cannot say anything to that; but by general opinion he did not call upon a third.

1872. Chairman.] From your knowledge of Epworth, do you think it possible that you, knowing the town, could obtain 213 signatures to any petition in the course of four or five hours?—It is not likely, because if it were day-time, one-half of the people are out at work, or more than one-half.

1873. Do you think it would be possible, between the hours of eight o'clock in the morning and two in the afternoon, to get that number of signatures?—Do you mean if the petition was according to their views?

1874. Any petition?—If it was a received petition, say the same petition as Mr. Hudson has had signed, it would not be possible to get so many names to it in that time.

1875. Mr. Villiers.] Not if they were all together?—Of course if they had been all together it would, but you cannot in the day-time get so many names in that time.

1876. Do you know how long Mr. Hudson took in getting his petition signed?—No, I do not. I saw Mr. Hudson two or three different times with the petition in his hand; young John and Mr. Gibson I saw once or twice, and young John by himself.

[The Witness withdrew.

Thomas Thorpe, called in; and Examined.

Thomas Thorpe.

1877. Chairman.] YOUR name is Thomas Thorpe, is it not?—Yes.

1878. You reside in Epworth?—Yes.

1879. What is your business?—Wheelwright and carpenter.

1880. Do you remember a man of the name of Potts coming, and asking you to sign a petition for the repeal of the Corn Laws?—Oh yes.

1881. Should you know the man again?—Yes.

1882. Mr. Yorke.] Is this your handwriting (the name "Thomas Thorpe" in the Petition for the Repeal of the Corn Laws being shown to the Witness)?—No, I did not write that; I was three yards off him all the time. I was working at my bench, and he was in the yard, and never came into the shop.

Samuel Potts was called in.

Thomas Thorpe.

10 July 1843.

1883. Chairman.] (To Thomas Thorpe.) Is that the man that came into your shop (pointing to Samuel Potts)?—Yes; he came into the yard.

Samuel Potts was directed to withdraw.

1884. Speak distinctly, and state what conversation you had with that man, and what took place?—I will, word for word. He came to me and says, "I have come with a petition to sign for free trade; will you sign it?" I said, "What sort of a free trade do you mean?" He said, "For taking the corn duty off." I said, "Who sent you with that petition?" He said, "A Doncaster gentleman." I said, "It is curious to send you to this country among the farmers." He said, "Will you sign it?" and I said "No, I will not." He pulls out a paper. I am sure he was as far as that gentleman is (three or four yards). I had a trestle, and he laid his paper upon it and began: "Now then," he says, "will you give me leave to sign your name?" and he looked up at the board and said, "Is Thomas Thorpe your name?" I said "It is." I could not see what he was writing, because I cannot see even close, but I believe he wrote my name. I saw the pen going. There was a house betwixt the street and my yard; he said, "Who lives at that house?" I said, "Two families." He said, "What do you call them?" I said, "William Foster is the first, and Richard Milson is the second." He takes them down and writes them. When he had written Foster, he said, "Did you say Milson was the second?" I said, "Yes," and he wrote again; he then nips up the paper and out of the yard, and never went into that house. I can take an oath of it. I then went to Mrs. Foster, and said, "Has a man been here to take down your husband's name?" She said she had never seen a man, nor Foster was not at home. Then I says to Mrs. Milson, "Has a man been here to take your husband's name down?" She said, "My husband went into the fields at six o'clock in the morning, and he has never been at home since." The man went away, and I never seed him any more.

1885. Mr. Yorke.] How does Mrs. Milson spell her name; do you know?—M-i-l-s-o-n; I think.

1886. Mr. Villiers.] Did you ask Potts what he was doing when you thought he was writing your name down?—No, I did not; I did not say anything to him.

1887. Mr. Henley.] Did you give Potts leave to sign your name?—He says, "Will you sign?" and I says, "No." He says, "Will you give me leave?" and I said, "You may do as you think proper." Those were the words. I never left the bench, and never went near him.

1888. Mr. Darby.] You said he might do as he thought proper?—Yes.

1889. Was not that giving leave?—It was not saying "You may set it down," but he might do it if he thought proper.

1890. Chairman.] But you would not give him leave?—No.

1891. Mr. Yorke.] What else passed?—Not another word between us; he took the paper as soon as he wrote the name, and was off as quick as lightning.

1892. Chairman.] Were you understood to say that you saw him write down any other names?—No other but those two and mine; he wrote my name first, and then William Foster and Richard Milson.

1893. Mr. Villiers.] You said you saw him writing those names down?—Yes, I did.

1894. Was he close to you when he was writing them?—No, three yards off; I could see his pen go when I was by the bench-side; he says, after he wrote William Foster, "Did you say Richard Milson?" I said, "Yes."

1895. He wrote them on the petition, did he?—I cannot say whether it was the petition or a piece of paper, but it was a piece of white.

1896. You were some yards from him, and you saw him write when you told him what the names were?—I did.

1897. But whether it was a petition or a bit of paper on which he wrote, you cannot say?—No, because I did not take particular notice; but I know it was a big sheet, and he laid it on the trestle.

1898. You did not look at the paper afterwards?—I did not.

1899. Mr. Yorke.] Do you remember what day of the month this was?—No.

1900. Do you remember the day of the week?—I think it was on a Monday; I think it was Easter Monday.

Thomas Thorpe.

10 July 1843.

1901. What time of the day?—About eleven; my wife came up to him when he was writing; she had been fetching some greens out of the garden; we were going to get ready for dinner, and most of us folks dine at 12.

1902. Mr. Hardy.] Is there a Thomas Foster in your town?—No. (The name of "Richard Millstone" to the Petition for the Repeal of the Corn Laws was shown to the Witness.) They may spell it Millstone, but he goes by the name of Milson; he has not been there three quarters yet.

1903. Mr. Henley.] How does Foster spell his name?—F-o-s-t-e-r; there are many Fosters, but no Richard Foster in the town; there are seven John Fosters in Epworth, but there is not another name in the town like mine.

1904. Mr. Darby.] You told the man to put your name if he liked?—He saw my name on the board, and asked me if that was my name; the same as he took down all the names down the street.

1905. How do you know he did?—There was a woman seed him looking at the different signs, and she said he was writing; he stood in the middle of the street, and was looking at the signs.

1906. Mr. Yorke.] Who was that woman?—The housekeeper to a farmer.

1907. Do you know the woman?—Yes, but she could not swear what he was writing, because she was 150 yards off.

1908. Do you know a woman of the name of Nanny Crosier?—Yes, she does not live a great way from me.

1909. What is she?—A poor widow woman.

[The Witness withdrew.

1913. Are you an inhabitant of Epworth?—Yes; I never did write.

1914. Did any one come and ask you to sign a petition for the repeal of the Corn Laws, about the end of April last?—No, I never saw the man before I saw him now; I know nothing about him.

1915. Mr. Darby.] You did not write that, if you cannot write (showing the Witness the name of "Hartly Robinson" to the Petition for the Repeal of the Corn Laws)?—No, I cannot write at all.

1916. Chairman.] Did you desire any one to write it for you?—No.

1917. Is there any other person of the name of Hartly Robinson about Epworth or the neighbourhood?—No.

1918. You know of no other person of that name?—I do not know that there is any other person of that name anywhere about Epworth.

1919. Mr. Darby.] Are you sure you never saw Potts there?—No, I never saw him, nor ever heard tell of him before to-day.

[The Witness withdrew.

Lancelot Coggon, called in; and Examined.

Lancelot Coggon.

1920. Chairman.] YOUR name is Lancelot Coggon?—Yes.

1921. You are a labourer?—Yes.

1922. Do you live in Epworth?—Yes.

1923. Had you any conversation with a man of the name of Potts, who came with an anti-corn law petition?—Yes; I had a bit of a conversation with him.

1924. Will you state what passed between you and him?—Yes; the truth and nothing else. The first beginning of our conversation was, he came up and asked me if I would sign the petition.

1925. What did you say?—I said, "No; it would not do me any good, nor the country neither." Well, he said he had been to Hatfield Woodhouse, and had got three names there, and one was William Davidson. "So, then," he says, "you will not sign the petition, will you?" And I said, "No;" and that was all that passed between him and me.

1926. Mr. Darby.] Did you tell him that he might sign your name for you?—No.

1927. Are you sure of that?—Yes.

1928. Mr. Yorke.] Did he ask to do so?—No, he did not ask to do it.

1929. Chairman.] Can you write your name?—Yes, I can write it.

1930. Mr. Yorke.] Will you be good enough to write it?—(The Witness wrote his name.)

Lancelot Coggon.

10 July 1843.

Samuel Potts was called in.

1931. Chairman.] (To Lancelot Coggon.) Is that the man you remember coming to Epworth (pointing to Samuel Potts)?—Yes, that is the man.

Samuel Potts was directed to withdraw.

1932. Mr. Darby.] Is that your writing (showing the name "Lancelott Coggan," in the Petition for the Repeal of the Corn Laws, to the Witness)?—Yes, that is my writing; it is not my writing if it is in Potts's petition; is that Potts's petition?

1933. Did you write that yourself?—No, I did not write it; that I will take an oath of.

1934. Mr. Yorke.] A moment or two ago you said you did?—I did say so, but I did not write that; if you produce the other writing I can swear to it.

1935. When you at first said it was your writing, were you under the impression that it was the other petition?—Yes, that was my impression.

1936. And furthermore, it may be possible that you may mistake your own writing?—I know my own handwriting.

1937. If you do, how came you to say that that was your handwriting?—I was thinking it was the other petition.

1938. Mr. Hardy.] Did you mean it was your handwriting, or your name?—I meant my name.

1939. Mr. Darby.] Looking at it now, can you tell whether it is your handwriting or not?—I can tell that this is not like that (pointing to his name, which he had written in the Committee-room).

1940. Mr. Hardy.] Did you ever write your christian name with two t's at the end?—No, I never did in my life.

1941. Chairman.] Are the Committee to understand that you did not authorise Potts to sign your name to that petition?—Yes; I never authorised him to sign my name, and I did not sign it myself.

1942. You are pretty well acquainted with Epworth and its neighbourhood?—Yes.

1943. Do you know any other Lancelot Coggon that lives about there?—No, I do not know one anywhere else; I never heard of one.

1944. Anywhere within two miles of Epworth?—No, nor within 20.

[The Witness withdrew.

John Chessman, called in; and Examined.

John Chessman.

1945. Chairman.] YOUR name is John Cheesman, is it not?—John Chessman.

1946. Have you been long resident in Epworth?—I have been 40 years and better.

1947. Did you ever sign any petition to do away with the Corn Laws?—No.

1948. Are you quite sure of that?—Oh yes, I am sure.

1949. Will you look at that signature to that petition (the Petition for the Repeal of the Corn Laws being shown to the Witness); is that your writing (pointing to the name of John Cheesman)?—I am not a writer; I neither can read nor write.

1950. Mr. Yorke.] Can you spell your own name?—No, I can do no such thing; if anybody came to my house for me to sign anything, I should not be able to do it.

1951. Did you give anybody authority to sign your name to a petition to do away with the Corn Laws?—No, I never was asked that question.

1952. Chairman.] Did you sign Mr. Hudson's petition?—Yes, as soon as it came.

1953. You mean you authorised him to do it for you?—Yes.

1954. Mr. Yorke.] Do you know the letters of which your name is composed?—No.

1955. Mr. Henley.] Did you ever see Potts?—Never before he was under this roof; not to my knowledge.

1956. Mr. Darby.] Are you sure you gave neither Potts nor anybody else, except

John Chessman.

10 July 1843.

except Mr. Hudson, authority to write your name?—I never was asked that question before Mr. Hudson came and told me my name was there.

1957. That was the first you knew of your name being there, when Mr. Hudson told you?—Yes.

1958. Mr. Yorke.] Have you given anybody else authority to sign your name for you to any petition whatever?—None but to Mr. Hudson.

1959. None whatever?—None whatever; that I can say safely.

[The Witness withdrew.

Joseph Chessman, called in; and Examined.

Joseph Chessman.

1960. Chairman.] YOUR name is Joseph Chessman, is not it?—Yes.

1961. Are you the brother of the last witness?—Yes.

1962. You are a labouring man in Epworth?—Yes.

1963. Can you write your name?—No, I am no scholar.

1964. Mr. Yorke.] Can you read?—No, I cannot.

1965. Chairman.] Did any person about the end of April last come to you and ask you to sign a petition to do away with the Corn Laws?—No.

1966. No person?—No person; that I am certain of.

1967. Did Mr. Hudson come to you and ask you to sign a petition?—His son came.

1968. Did you authorise the son to sign that for you?—He wrote my name, with my authority, in my house.

1969. Mr. Yorke.] Did you ever authorise any person to sign a petition for you against the Corn Laws?—No.

1970. Mr. Darby.] What is your brother's name?—John Chessman.

1971. What is your name?—Joseph Chessman.

[The Witness withdrew.

Thomas Simpkin Callis, called in; and Examined.

T. Simpkin Callis.

1972. YOUR name is Thomas Simpkin Callis?—Yes.

1973. Where do you reside generally?—At Sheepshead, in the county of Leicester.

1974. What is your business?—A framework-knitter.

1975. What is the reason you came up to London lately?—I was part of a deputation deputed from a meeting of the three counties of Nottingham, Derby, and Leicester, to bring a petition to the House of Commons, complaining of grievances in our trade.

1976. You had an interview with Mr. Gladstone in consequence of that, did you not?—We had.

1977. During the time you have been in London, have you met with a person of the name of Samuel Potts?—I have.

1978. Where did you meet with him?—At the Magpie and Horseshoe, near Westminster-bridge.

1979. Would you know him if you saw him again?—Yes.

1980. Did you see him in the passage just now?—I did.

1981. Will you state the nature of the conversation you had with him?—I had a message to the maid at the Magpie and Horseshoe, from a person at Sheepshead, that had been residing in London, and had an acquaintance with the maid; and having delivered this message, the maid asked me what had brought me to London; I told her; she told me there was a person up-stairs that was on a similar errand; that that person had been charged with forgery. I immediately named this to the other parties acting with me; the consequence was, they deputed me up-stairs, to make out what the features of the case were. I went up stairs, and got in conversation with the man, and he stated that he was charged with forgery, and had been before a Committee of the House of Commons on the subject.

1982. Did he tell you the number of villages he had been to?—Yes.

1983. Do you recollect the names of any?—I took them down in writing.

1984. Have you got the writing with you?—Yes.

1985. Mr. Darby.] How came you to go where Potts was; what intention had you

T. Simpkin Callis.

10 July 1843.

you in going?—I think I have explained how I came to go; the party that were acting with me (we are four in number) desired me so to do.

1986. What business had you to go to Potts?—We were on a similar subject, bringing a petition; our petition had been presented, and we did not know what the object or nature of his petition was; we merely knew what the maid had told me, that this man had brought a petition, and had been charged with forgery; this being something novel, we were anxious to learn something of the particulars of it.

1987. Chairman.] What further conversation passed between you and Potts?—(The Witness referred to a memorandum-book.) The names of the towns he named were Epworth, Wadworth, Bawtry, Cantley, Armsthorp, Hatfield, and Hatfield Woodhouse, Barnby-by-Dun, Sandals, Stainforth, Fishlake, Moss, and Fenwick, places I know nothing of, any of them; those places he named, and I took them down in writing.

1988. Mr. Hardy.] Did you write those in his presence, in the book from which you have been reading?—No, I merely wrote them on a slip of paper, and afterwards copied them out.

1989. Did he see you writing?—Yes.

1990. Chairman.] Did he say he was employed particularly by anybody?—He did.

1991. By whom?—A Mr. Hastie, H-a-s-t-i-e. I asked how he spelt the name, that I might write it down, and those were the letters.

1992. What did he say further?—He said he was employed by a Mr. Hastie, a grocer, of Baxter-street, Doncaster, I believe, and also another person named Miller, a hatter, of French-gate, Doncaster; that Mr. Hastie was the principal person that had employed him, but he named Mr. Miller also; that he was employed to get signatures to a petition against the Corn Laws, but in an honourable way; that he was to obtain the signatures in an honourable way; and that he was particularly cautioned against getting them in a dishonourable way. I think, as far as regards Mr. Hastie, that was the whole of the man's statement. He then proceeded to say that he found it very difficult to obtain signatures, and that, consequently, he had recourse to this method: that when he got outside a town, or in different places, where no one could observe him, he wrote some names that were in the villages where he had been, and other names which had occurred to him; and by this means he filled up the sheets; and that, in the case of the Epworth petition, the signatures so obtained were more than two-thirds.

1993. Did he state anything else to you?—I think that was the principal of what he stated.

1994. Mr. Darby.] What had you represented yourself as to this man that he should tell you everything in this way?—I told him that I and the party who were with me had come up with a petition. He asked me, had I been before a Committee? I said, "No, there was no Committee granted as yet." And he laughed, and says, "By God we shall all have to go over the water together." I found then that the impression upon his mind was, that I was in the same situation as himself; and my impression was, that he opened his mind to me in consequence of considering that I was just placed in his situation.

1995. Mr. Yorke.] As having obtained false signatures?—Yes; but the truth of it was, that when I stated that the Committee was not granted, the prayer of our petition was that a Select Committee should be appointed to inquire into the distresses and grievances existing among frame-work knitters, which Mr. Gladstone did not actually refuse; but he showed us very potent reasons why, in the advanced state of the session, a Committee would be very unfavourable to us; and in consequence we declined pressing the Government for a Committee this session, on the understanding that something should be done next session.

1996. Mr. Darby.] You say your impression was that Potts apprehended that the Committee which you speak of was a Committee of the same nature as the one now sitting in this room?—Yes.

1997. Mr. Yorke.] Then, in fact, he thought there was a Committee sitting connected with that affair?—No, I think not; the man's impression was, I have no doubt, that a Committee was about to be granted for the purpose of bringing parties before it to implicate them for forgery or something of that sort; there is no doubt the man thought that I stood in the same situation as himself.

1998. Did you go abruptly to him without previous notice, and did he as abruptly make these communications to you?—It took some time; but when I first went

T. Simpkin Callis.

10 July 1843.

went up to him, I said, "I believe you have a petition." "I have," says he "So have I," says I. Then he went on to state at once, says he, "I have been before The House;" and I believe he told me that a great number of witnesses had been before the Committee, and that a great number, 40 more, were about to be brought against him early this week; and then he asked me whether I had been before a Committee; and I said, "No, the Committee was not granted." I took it at once that the man's impression was that I was about to be brought before a Committee to be charged with forgery, the same as himself; that was my impression; he immediately began to state, as I have said before, that he had been charged with forgery; and he laughed and said it was impossible; he would defy the whole world to bring it home to him, for he had taken such great care not to do anything of this sort in the presence of a second party.

1999. Mr. Henley.] Did you ever see that man before?—Never.

2000. Mr. Yorke.] Will you proceed to state the remainder of the conversation between you and Potts?—I think I have stated before all that took place; one word brought another up, until the man opened his mind entirely to me; but at that time I had no thoughts of anything of this; I beg distinctly to be understood that I had no thoughts of anything of this taking place. I went down stairs and made a report to the party who had sent me up, and they had no idea of anything of this sort; they immediately wrote a letter to Mr. Ferrand. Mr. Ferrand presented our petition, and had been very kind to us. They, or rather Mr. Humphries of Nottingham, wrote a letter to Mr. Ferrand, stating what had transpired between this Mr. Potts and myself, and we did not apprehend the consequences then; Mr. Ferrand immediately gave me the address of Mr. Christopher, and the consequence was that I was summoned here.

2001. Mr. Darby.] Had you any knowledge that Potts was in the house when you went in, or was it by mere accident that you got into the same house?—I went in to deliver a message to the cook.

2002. Did you know that Potts was at the house?—No.

2003. You did not know Potts's name?—I did not know that there was such a person as Potts in existence; neither that there was a petition from Epworth, or anything upon the subject.

2004. Was it in consequence of information you received from the maid, that somebody was there upon the same business as your own, that you went up stairs to see this person?—Yes.

2005. Did you address Potts first, or did he address you?—I addressed him first; I told him I had brought a petition; his answer was as I have stated before; says I, "I believe you have brought a petition." "I have," says he. "So have I," says I. Those were the first words that took place between us. The reason why I was sent up stairs was, because we thought it might be a petition similar to ours, and we might co-operate, as we had done with the Spitalfields weavers at Bethnal Green; we had been down there, and occasioned them to get up a large meeting of their trade, and send a petition to this House similar to our own.

2006. Mr. Yorke.] You were sent with a letter, you say, to Mr. Ferrand?—Yes.

2007. Upon what subject?—Stating what had taken place between Potts and myself.

2008. That letter being written by Mr. Humphries, your chief?—Yes.

2009. Mr. Ferrand thereupon gave you Mr. Christopher's address?—Yes.

2010. And you went to Mr. Christopher?—I did.

2011. Had you any conversation with Mr. Christopher?—I had.

2012. And the result of that conversation was that you had to attend here?—I had the summons to attend here.

2013. Will you state to the Committee the purport of the conversation you had with Mr. Christopher?—It was relating to this business.

2014. What was the general purport of it?—I believe the question that gentleman asked me was merely to see whether there was any necessity for me to be summoned before this Committee.

2015. And the impression upon his mind, from what you said, was, that there was a necessity for summoning you?—I believe that was his impression.

2016. And you were summoned?—I was summoned in consequence. I did not state any particulars to Mr. Christopher; he asked me one question, and I said I would rather not give an answer there.

2017. Mr. Estcourt.] Did you go to Mr. Christopher, or did Mr. Christopher send for you?—I went to him.

T. Simpkin Callis.

10 July 1843.

2018. Mr. Hardy.] Did Mr. Ferrand desire you to go to Mr. Christopher?—Mr. Ferrand gave me Mr. Christopher's address, which I suppose he thought sufficient.

2019. Mr. Yorke.] Were you sent by Mr. Ferrand or Mr. Christopher, or any one else, to any other person, after you had been to Mr. Christopher's?—I was not sent anywhere else by any party.

2020. Mr. Henley.] Where do you live when you are at home?—At Sheepshead, in the county of Leicester.

2021. Have you ever been at Doncaster in your life?—Never.

2022. Did you ever see Potts before?—Never.

2023. Mr. Yorke.] I wish again to ask you whether your impression of the conversation you had with Mr. Christopher was this, that Mr. Christopher merely put questions to you for the sake of observing whether you were a witness that would be necessary or useful for the purposes of this Committee?—The impression on my mind was, that Mr. Christopher's questions were tending to that effect.

2024. To justify him in determining whether you should or should not be called as a witness?—Yes; he did not enter into any particulars at all, but merely to satisfy himself whether I was a necessary witness.

2025. Mr. Henley.] Is the young woman you went to see at the Magpie and Horseshoe a townswoman of yours?—No, she is quite a stranger to me, I never saw her before; but a young man now living at Sheepshead has been living in London, and working at the New Houses of Parliament now building; and he gained an acquaintance with this cookmaid during the time that he was in London, and he sent a message by me, knowing I was coming to London on this business of ours; he sent a message by me to this cookmaid, and I delivered the message; she happened to say, "What is your business here, young man?" I told her, and she happened to say there was a party up stairs taking refreshment that had brought a petition; the consequence was that we got into conversation.

2026. Did she tell you what petition the man had brought that was up stairs?—She did not.

2027. Mr. Hardy.] She understood that you had come to town with a petition?—Yes.

2028. And she said, "There is a man upon like business that you are upon up stairs"?—Yes.

2029. Mr. Henley.] Do you recollect the words she made use of?—I told her we had come up with a petition from our trade; she said there was a man up stairs with a petition; I did not ask her the subject of it, nor she did not state it.

2030. Upon her stating that there was a man with a petition, what induced you to go to him?—I went down stairs immediately to the party that was acting with me, and told them; and they, not knowing the nature of this petition, deputed me, while they were doing other business, writing and so on, to go up stairs, and learn the nature of the petition, and the particulars of the case; and the man went into them as I have described.

2031. Do you know where Potts lodges?—Yes.

2032. Where?—At that place.

2033. That is his regular place of lodging, is it?—Yes, so he told me.

2034. Mr. Yorke.] What was the question which Mr. Christopher asked you, and which you declined to answer, or which you preferred not to answer?—It was relating to the contract between Mr. Hastie and the man Potts; and I thought that anything I had to state, it would be better to state publicly, and not to any party privately.

2035. Then, in fact, what Mr. Christopher, for the sake of his personal satisfaction, wished to obtain from you, you have now stated to the Committee?—Yes.

2036. Mr. Henley.] What was the contract between Mr. Hastie and Potts?—I have stated it before; it was, that Potts was to obtain as many signatures as he could to this petition against the Corn Laws, in an honourable way; and for so doing he was to be paid so much per day.

2037. Mr. Yorke.] Did he tell you how much per day?—He did; but I do not recollect the sum.

2038. Did he tell you he was paid so much a day for his work, or by such a percentage per head?—He told me positively, that he was paid so much per day.

2039. So that your impression was, that whether he got a hundred signatures

T. Simpkin Callis.
10 July 1843.

or whether he got a thousand, his payment for the day would be the same?—Yes; but at the same time the impression upon my mind was (I may be wrong), that the man knew that if he did not obtain a certain quantity of signatures, he should be likely to lose his situation, and he is a labourer; he stated to me that he has no trade, and consequently would be put about.

2040. Upon what do you found that impression?—Upon his conduct.

2041. You mean upon his conversation?—No, my impression is from his conduct; I mean his forging, if it may be so called, his putting down names which he had no business to put down; from that, the impression upon my mind is that he did so to keep his situation.

2042. But that is merely your impression?—That is all.

2043. Mr. Henley.] You have stated that you came up to town upon the question of machinery?—Yes.

2044. Are you a member of the Anti-Corn-Law League?—No, nor of any other league.

2045. The subject you came up upon has nothing to do with the petitions on the Corn Laws, one way or the other?—No, neither way; we complain of grievances between our employers and ourselves.

2046. Mr. Darby.] The question is, whether you have taken any part upon the Corn Law question, one way or the other?—Neither for or against.

Samuel Potts was called in.

2147. (To Thomas Callis.) What is the name of the place where you had the conversation with Potts, to which you have spoken?—The Magpie and Horseshoe.

2048. (To Samuel Potts.) Did you meet this witness there?—Yes, I saw him there on Wednesday I think; I had been getting something to eat, or was getting something at the time he came in.

2049–51. Mr. Henley.] (To Thomas Callis.) Is this the man you saw there (pointing to Samuel Potts)?—It is.

Samuel Potts.] I shall have the right of reply by-and-by, shall I?—

Mr. Yorke.] Every justice will be done to everybody here, of course.

[The Witness withdrew.

Samuel Potts was again called in, and Examined.

Samuel Potts.

2052. Chairman.] YOU say you admit having seen the last witness at the public-house at which you are stopping?—Yes.

2053. You said you wished to make a reply?—Yes, I did.

2054. The Committee are quite ready to hear any explanation which you wish to make, or to call any witnesses you wish to suggest?—There can be no witnesses called; but I will speak the truth. For these two hours my blood has been boiling within me to think that a man should come and lay a wilful lie upon my back, like they did upon the old Psalmist, David; they laid many lies upon his back. I mean to prove that this is an infernal barefaced lie.

2055. Mr. Yorke.] What is?—That the man should say that I told him that I had forged a great number of names in the Epworth petition.

2056. How do you know that the man has said so?—I do know it, because from his own mouth he said, "Mr. Ferrand has sent a letter to Mr. Christopher;" and I believe that if it has been so, the man is bribed to it.

2057. Mr. Darby.] From whom have you learnt that this man has said that you forged a single name in this petition?—I cannot speak to him; he is a stranger in London.

2058. Has any man ever told you that this man has charged you with having forged any number of names?—I cannot say; but if you ask me anything about this man, I am ready to reply.

2059. You say this man has told an infernal lie, and that your blood boils?—I did.

2060. From whom have you learnt what he has said?—I cannot tell all the people in London.

2061. Has anybody in London told you what this man has said to anybody?—Yes.

2062. Mr. Yorke.] Name any one of those persons?—There is one person; I cannot identify his name; it is not necessary.

2063. Mr. Darby.] You say you met this man on Wednesday?—Yes; I was in the Horse-shoe and Magpie.

2064. The question is, wherever you were, whether at the Horseshoe and Magpie or elsewhere, this man being a stranger to you, whether for the first time you met him on Wednesday?—Yes.

2065. And you had some conversation with him there?—Yes; I did not want him, but he offered himself.

2066. You say this man has told infernal lies to this Committee; the Committee wish to know who has told you what he has said to this Committee, or was going to say to this Committee?—So far I might misunderstand the person; but still I will not speak upon my oath; I might have misunderstood him. I will withdraw, and you must call in Mr. Hastie.

2067. The question put to you is, who has told you what the man you met at the Horseshoe and Magpie was going to say, or has said?—I have told you the man.

2068. Who?—Mr. Hastie; I say, call him in and I will withdraw. I say I might be in error, but I believe, word for word, as I have said he said so; Mr. Hastie told me to that effect.

2069. Mr. Hastie has told you what this witness was going to say?—Yes.

2070. Chairman.] Mr. Hastie is here, is not he?—Yes, and has been all the afternoon.

2071. Mr. Darby.] Mr. Hastie was the person who told you this?—Yes.

2072. What did Mr. Hastie tell you?—He told me this man was going to say that I had told him that I had forged a great number of names in this petition. "Well," says I, "surely a man never could be so barefaced as to say a thing of that kind;" because I am sure I never said no such thing. He was sitting at a distance of three or four yards, on the other side of the room, and I was in a small place, and he came over as a volunteer; I did not want him, because he had too much blab by half for me; I could see what he was; he said, "What business are you about here?" I said I had come with a petition from Epworth, in the county of Lincoln, and some others. "And," says he, "so am I upon that business; I am about a petition in the House of Commons; my name is so and so; my address is No. 90," and so on. "I have had an interview with Ferrand," and so on. "Well," he says, "I have brought a petition, signed by 15,000, to take the tax off machinery;" and he said he expected a great number of mine were forgeries; he said three-thirds of theirs was. I said, "I tell you what, my man, I never let any man know my business;" and if he has said anything of that, you should let me know, that I may reply.

2073. Mr. Yorke.] All you have to do is to speak the truth, and all justice shall be done you?—It is very mortifying that a man should be allowed to come as a witness to filter up such things. I am sure I never said such a word. His own word was, according to his statement, that he was about a petition concerning machinery; and afterwards he contradicted himself, because I saw the statement he had in his pocket; he said he had had an interview with Duncombe, and he was going to Ferrand, and if I would go to hear Ferrand lecture in a hall of their own he would go too; I said, "I am not going." He said he had to go to Mr. Christopher's, and had his address. I thought this was a nice fellow, and I was not going to trust him with any secret.

2074. Mr. Darby.] And you have not told him, probably, even the names of the petitions that you had got signed?—Yes, he took them down. When he asked me my business I saw he was a forward chap; I told him, and he took the names down; the Epworth petition, and the Wadworth petition, and so on; I could see he was a man of business.

2075. Mr. Hardy.] Did he say whether your petitions were upon the same subject as his own?—No, he could not fancy so, because I told him.

2076. Mr. Darby.] If you did not want to let him know your business, how came you to allow him to write down every single name of the petitions you said you had?—When the man came to me I forget what we were talking about, whether he had heard anything in the house, or he said he had seen me in the house; I do not remember having seen him; and he says, "What are you about?" and so I told him. "For Epworth?" he says. "Yes," says I; and I said, "There is more signatures in the petition than the Committee or the House of Commons like, and so they have trailed me." He says, "Is there any other petition?"

Samuel Potts.

10 July 1843.

petition?" and I told him all the names I thought of at the moment. He out with his pocket-book and wrote them all down directly, and told me his business; and, says he, "I am about a petition having been sent to Parliament." I understood they had signed it for 15,000; that it had been signed concerning machinery; and he told me positively that three-thirds (I believe that was the word) they had forged.

2077. Mr. Darby.] What proportion did he tell you was forged?—Three parts out of four, he meant.

2078. Mr. Henley.] How many people were there in the room at the time?—There was another man; I know him well; but the place we were in is boxed off, so that two persons may talk for half a day, and any one else not tell anything that passes. One of those places will hold about two or three.

2079. How many others were there in the room?—I do not know. There was one person, I remember, there, for we both went to him, and talked to him afterwards for 20 minutes, I should think.

2080. How much did you have to drink while you were together?—I do not think I had anything to drink, for I very seldom drink above a pint of porter.

2081. Had he anything to drink?—Yes; some grog of some sort, either gin or whisky.

2082. How long did he stay there?—He did not stay long up stairs; it could not be above half an hour perhaps, perhaps more.

2083. Did you go down stairs with him?—No, he went down stairs.

2084. Do you know how long he stayed down stairs?—I do not; he said he could not stop, for he had to go to this Ferrand.

2085. Who was with him?—There was nobody up stairs with him; there was an oldish man that has gone away came once or twice to tell him he was wanted in the house here.

2086. How long have you lodged in the Horseshoe and Magpie?—Ever since I came; the officer brought me there. I think the 24th was the first time the Committee met.

2087. Chairman.] You have been stopping there ever since you have been summoned here?—Yes.

2088. Mr. Darby.] Did you give this person Mr. Hastie's name at that time?—I cannot tell.

2089. Recollect, because he happens to know how to spell it, and he says you gave it him?—I do not question it for a moment.

2090. You do not doubt you gave him Mr. Hastie's name?—Yes, and may be Mr. Milner's and all; I do not doubt it.

2091. You told him Mr. Hastie's name?—Yes; and Mr. Milner's and all.

2092. You told him also that Mr. Hastie told you to obtain signatures in an honourable way, as many as you could?—Yes; in an honourable way, certainly.

2093. You told him that?—I dare say I did.

2094. Mr. Henley.] When did you write last to Mr. Hastie?—I never wrote to him at all.

2095. Mr. Darby.] You were understood to say you could distinguish immediately what sort of man this was; you found he was a sort of Paul Pry, and you did not wish to have anything to say to him?—No, I did not.

2096. And yet you told him the number of petitions you had brought here?—Yes, I could not get well rid of him.

2097. And the names of them?—Yes.

2098. And Mr. Hastie's name?—Yes.

2099. And where he lived?—Yes; he wanted to know, and I told him his house.

2100. And that he had told you to get names in an honourable way, as many as you could?—Yes, I do not doubt I did.

2101. You told him you were paid by the day?—I do not know whether I did or not.

2102. Are you sure you did not; he is informed of it?—It is no matter whether he is or not; he has nothing to do with it. I do not remember that I did; I will not deny that I did.

2103. You told him the names of the petitions?—Yes.

2104. And Mr. Hastie's name, and where he lived?—Yes.

2105. And that you were to obtain as many names as you could in an honourable way, for that was your engagement with Mr. Hastie?—Yes.

2106. And you will not say you did not tell him what you were to be paid a day. If he has known what you were to be paid a day it is a good guess, is it?—He has been enough with the blabbers at the outside door to say that.

2107. You do not know whether you told him or not?—No, because it was no business of his or any one else's.

2108. Did you have any further conversation with him about any particular signatures?—No, not to my knowledge; no one name in the petition.

2109. Did you say you had found it easy or difficult to get signatures?—I did not say no such a word, to the best of my belief.

2110. Directly you told him the names of the petitions, and Mr. Hastie's name, and where he lived, and Mr. Milner's name, and what Mr. Hastie had employed you to do, and that you were paid by the day, which you are not sure about; that was the end of your conversation, was it?—No; I think after that, if I remember right, he was talking about being a Chartist. "Well," I said, "I am not an old Chartist, but I am favourable to the six points." "Are you?" says he. "I will give you my address, 90, St. Martin's Lane." I have called twice at his house to see him, but never saw him. I think that was the close of it.

2111. Then you did not tell him you found it difficult to obtain signatures?—No, I deny that in toto; I never said no such thing.

2112. You did not tell him you wrote such names as you saw in the town, and wrote others as they occurred to you?—No, I never did; a lie like that. That would make an iron fellow speak if he had a heart.

2113. Did you suppose that he had forged any names?—He told me there were three engaged in his petition; I would not be sure whether he said three or more; he was one.

2114. Did he tell you he was engaged to forge the names?—No, he did not say that, but that was the way they did; they forged the petition, and three parts out of four were forgeries in their petition; so that he need not acknowledge it, and then want to lay it upon me. If I were at the judgment seat of Christ, I would solemnly deny it.

2115. Did he or you say you were very likely to go over the water together?—I am sure I cannot tell; I do not remember.

2116. Mr. Yorke.] Do you remember that expression?—I cannot say I do.

2117. Mr. Darby.] Will you say it was not used by either of you?—I do not know whether I said such a word as that I am sure; I would not be sure; I might say such a thing, but I do not remember that I did.

2118. Chairman.] You appear to have a pretty good memory about many things?—I have.

2119. Mr. Darby.] That was a very remarkable expression to use; cannot you remember whether it was used or not?—If I did say such a thing to him, what does it amount to? I cannot say.

2120. Did you or did you not say so?—I have told you I cannot say; I cannot remember whether I did or not; I cannot deny it; I do not remember that ever I did say such a word.

2121. If he says that you said, "We shall all have to go over the water together," you will not say whether you did or did not say that?—No, I cannot say that I did; I do not remember ever saying such a like word; I said it was possible that there might be people in this Epworth petition, poor people, and even little farmers, or something to that effect, that were in difficulties, that would deny their own names from fear; and I said, "In such cases it will place me in a dilemma if they do;" that was what I said.

2122. Mr. Hardy.] Mr. Hastie is here in the passage, is he not?—Yes, and has been since 12 o'clock.

2123. When did you first see him in London?—I saw him about 12 o'clock at the House of Commons here.

2124. To-day for the first time?—Yes.

2125. Is anybody else from Doncaster that you know here?—Not that I know of.

2126. Where was it that you first saw Mr. Hastie to-day?—In the House of Commons.

2127. Chairman.] Did you see him yesterday?—No, nor never since I saw him at Doncaster till I saw him in this House here.

Samuel Potts.

10 July 1843.

2128. Mr. Hardy.] When was it he told you about this man?—In the passage this afternoon, about an hour since.

2129. Upon your first seeing him?—No, I am telling a story, I did not remember; he came over; I saw him here first as I said, and I left word with Mr. Hudson, and all of them, in case I was wanted, I would be at the Horseshoe and Magpie. I thought, as there were so many witnesses, it was a great chance if I should be called on; and when I had been there not long, Mr. Hastie comes, and says he, "There is a man to say you have been acknowledging you have been forging these names; a man," says he, "that" so and so; "Well," I says, "it is an abominable lie; I declare positively that it is;" "Oh," says he, "I do not think the Committee will take any notice of the man at all." I think that was all that passed between us.

2130. That was at the Horseshoe and Magpie?—Yes; we were not many minutes there when Mr. Hudson came and fetched me.

2131. Did this pass between you and Mr. Hastie at the Horseshoe and Magpie?—Yes.

2132. And nowhere else?—Yes, after he came here he told me.

2133. Did you leave the Horseshoe and Magpie with him, or did he leave you there?—He left me there, and in a few minutes afterwards Mr. Hudson came for me; I was not there long altogether.

2134. Did you receive a letter by the post this morning?—Yes.

2135. Where from?—From my wife and brother.

2136. From anybody else?—No, I will take my oath of it.

2137. Your own brother?—Yes, my brother and my wife; my brother writes for my wife. There is nothing in the letter; I should not be ashamed of it being seen; there is nothing at all in it; I am not ashamed of the letter; I have the letter in my pocket.

2138. I do not wish you to read it, but have you any objection to show it?—Do you mean to the whole Committee, or any particular gentleman?

2139. Just show the outside of it, that the size and appearance of it may be seen?—(The Witness produced the letter.)

2140. That is the only letter you received this morning?—That is the only letter I received this morning, and it is from my own wife, and there is the name at the bottom.

2141. Mr. Henley.] Is it in your wife's handwriting or your brother's handwriting?—My brother's handwriting. That is the only letter I had; and as to writing to Mr. Hastie, I never wrote a letter to him at all.

2142. What makes you say you never wrote a letter to Mr. Hastie?—Because one of the gentlemen asked me if I had.

2143. Chairman.] How came you to mention Mr. Milner's name to this man Callis, whom you met at the Horseshoe and Magpie?—He was asking me who was the Corn Law party at Doncaster; who were those Corn Law men who employed me; and I told him that Mr. Hastie was my employer, but that Mr. Milner and Mr. Hastie were the two active men at Doncaster; that was the reason it came out. I thought he put himself forward; but as he asked me, I thought there was no harm in it, and I gave the names. I says, "We have a very active man, Mr. Milner; but I fancy Mr. Hastie is the secretary, but I do not know it."

2144. Mr. Henley.] What was the man's name with whom you had the conversation at the Magpie and Horseshoe?—This man that has been here.

2145. What is his name?—I do not know; perhaps I tell a story, because, when I called the other day, two or three persons were on the business of the Committee.

2146. Do you know the man's name?—I did not know till the young woman told she thought the man's name was Callis; the others had gone away. I knew no more of the name than this sheet of paper.

2147. He did not tell you the name?—No, but No. 90, St. Martin's-lane. As I told him I was favourable to the six points of the Charter, he took that down directly.

2148. What did you go to No. 90, St. Martin's-lane, for?—I am not a drinker, but to have a drop of drink perhaps.

2149. Mr. Darby.] How came you to call at the house where he lodged?—I had no particular hatred against him, though I saw he was a forward man.

2150. You told the Committee you did not want to have anything to do with him; him; why then did you seek him out?—I did not particularly want to have anything to do with him. Samuel Potts. 10 July 1843.

2151. What made you call upon him afterwards?—I do not know what possessed me to alter my mind in two days. I thought, as I was wandering about, and had nowhere to go, I would go in there.

2152. Mr. Yorke.] Did not you call upon him more than once?—Yes, I said so; twice, if you understood me right. I have been by two or three times; and, thinks I, this is No. 90; I will go and see how those fellows are getting on. That was all; nothing more than that.

2153. In fact you called several times?—No, not any more than twice.

2154. When you came into this room just now, you were most susceptibly desirous of being allowed to reply to Callis, the witness examined before you; how do you explain to us that susceptibility?—Because I fancied he had been charging me with forging the names to the petition, from what I have told you I heard; and for a man to bring false charges against me was enough to bring my blood up.

2155. Were you told by anybody but Mr. Hastie that Callis was going to do this?—No.

2156. But you were told this by Mr. Hastie?—As near as I can tell, he said word for word what I have said; but I will not be quite sure.

2157. If anybody else told you but Mr. Hastie, and if you are not sure Mr. Hastie told you, will you inform the Committee from whom you did hear it?—Nobody else; if Mr. Hastie did not, nobody else ever did.

[The Witness withdrew.

Mr. John Hastie, called in; and Examined.

2158. Chairman.] YOU are a grocer at Doncaster?—I am. Mr. John Hastie.

2159. Did you employ a man called Potts to get up any petition for the repeal of the Corn Laws?—Yes, I did.

2160. Mr. Yorke.] The man who has just left the room?—Yes, the man who has just left the room.

2162. Will you state the instructions?—I might just premise by saying, that in the neighbourhood of Doncaster, previous to this year (Epworth, I believe, was a new place), several villages had sent petitions, and they had found a difficulty, some of them, from a little fear in going round with the petition, any individual in the place; and we sent this Potts to several places to leave petitions for the parties themselves to take them round, to leave them at particular places. At one or two places the parties that had previously had them the year before refused to take them round this year, and he was sent to go round with them for signatures. Samuel Potts was an entire stranger to me, for I did not know the man was in existence; but I had him recommended to me by a Mr. Matthew Wilton of Doncaster, a highly respectable man, for whom Samuel Potts has written for four years; he gave him a very good character, a copy of which, I believe, has been sent up to this Committee, signed by Mr. Wilton. I said to him, "Now, Potts, you are going out into a neighbourhood or a district where you will be looked upon as a poacher in the agriculturists' preserve; and," I said, "our wish is that you shall use the utmost care in preventing any improper signatures being allowed on the petition. Take care that no boys sign under 20 years of age; allow no person to sign for a suppositious friend who is not present, for a pretended friend who happened not to be present; and, especially, take care you do not allow the petition to go out of your sight, lest anybody else should tamper with it." I said, "We will be just as satisfied with five names to the petition as 500, and it will not make the least difference to your wage," which was 4*s.* a day; "it will not make the least difference to you whether you bring five names to the petition or 500;" and I added, that we would rather have five bonâ fide names to the petition than 500 that any cavil could be made about. The man admitted these general instructions before four very respectable men. As soon as I heard of this affair at Epworth (in fact I happened to be down at Epworth on business myself, and I heard of it before it was publicly known in the place), as soon as I came home I sent

Mr. John Hastie.

10 July 1843.

I sent for the man, and stated to him the allegations that I had heard about this petition, and he peremptorily denied all knowledge of anything improper.

2163. How came you to employ Potts to go to Epworth?—The reason we employed him to go to Epworth was, that we had been informed by various parties that a great number of people were anxious to sign a petition on the subject of the Corn Laws, if they had any person to carry it round, but they were afraid for any of them to be seen taking an active part in the matter; it was simply done on that account.

2164. Can you remember any of the parties who informed you that the people at Epworth were anxious to sign such a petition?—I perhaps could not be able to state any names. I will state to the Committee a circumstance, that from Thorne, where they managed it themselves, and where they had previously done so, the person who came for the petition would not tell me his name.

2165. Mr. Darby.] You are not answering a direct question; the question you are asked is, whether you know any person who told you that the people at Epworth were anxious to sign a petition for the repeal of the Corn Laws; will you answer, yes or no?—I do not know any name.

2166. Chairman.] Are you connected with a party calling itself the Anti-Corn-Law League?—I am secretary to the Doncaster Anti-Corn-Law-Association.

The Witness was directed to withdraw.

The Witness was again called in.

2167. Was Potts receiving parish relief at the time you employed him?—No, I believe he was not at the time we employed him; I was not aware that he had been receiving parish relief till I saw it stated so in the Doncaster Chronicle after it came out about this petition.

2168. Are you to be understood that you had employed him to get up other petitions before?—To carry them out to villages where they had signed petitions for two or three years before, and we sent Potts there simply as a messenger to carry them; some places he came back from where there were parties that would not take the management of them.

2169. Are you yourself acquainted with Epworth and its neighbourhood?—Yes.

2170. Do you know any people in Epworth yourself who are in favour of a repeal of the Corn Laws; what is the reason you did not employ some person in Epworth to get up this petition who entertained views similar to your own?—The reason is such as I have stated before; that we had found a great many places similarly circumstanced to Epworth, where, from the fear that I have previously named, while there were a great number of people who would sign such a petition, yet there was no person who would take the management of it for fear of bringing odium upon themselves in the eyes of their neighbours. Will the Committee allow me to look at the face of the petition?

2171. Look at that petition (the Petition for the Repeal of the Corn Laws being shown to the Witness); look at the heading of it; is that the petition that you put into Potts's hands?—I have no doubt of it.

2172. Mr. Darby.] Is it as you received it from him?—It is as I received it from him. I believe the petition was under lock and key in my house till it was sent to Sir George Strickland here.

2173. Chairman.] How long was it from the time he first had it in his possession to the time Potts returned it to you; do you remember?—He got it on a Monday, I am not certain whether the 16th or the 17th of April, and I think it was returned to me on the Wednesday.

2174. It was blank when you gave it him?—It was blank when I gave it him.

2175. And filled up as you now see it, when he returned it to you?—Yes; I believe there were 240 names; I counted them myself when it was brought in.

2176. Mr. Darby.] Did you, in consequence of receiving a petition that you had before sent out by Potts, with a great many marks to it, tell Potts that he was to write the names instead of getting the marks, because it was so much longer about?—No.

2177. Can you state you have never told him anything of the kind?—I believe I told Potts this, but not on account of having one with marks, that it was the general custom to write the name for a person that could not write himself, without the necessity of having a mark; I believe I told him that was usual, but I do not recollect, recollect, to the best of my knowledge, any circumstance having caused me to state that, than simply as a general instruction to the man.

2178. You did not tell him that they did not like having the names apparently in the same handwriting?—No.

2179. Are you quite sure of that?—I am quite sure I did not tell him that.

2180. You understand the question?—Yes, I understand the question. I believe, to the best of my knowledge, my instructions went to this, that in all cases where the parties could write themselves it was desirable that they should sign the petition with their own hands.

2181. You did not tell him that where names were written for other parties they should be written in a different handwriting?—No, I am certain I gave him no instruction of that kind.

2182. Is that one of the petitions sent out from you (the petition from Stainforth and Fishlake being shown to the Witness)?—Yes, I believe it is.

2183. Do you take the trouble of looking over the petitions when they come back to you?—Yes. Last year there were many more signatures from Fishlake than this year.

2184. Was there anything in the appearance of that petition which has been just shown to you that particularly struck you?—No, not very strikingly, from the knowledge I had of the place.

2185. In any degree, did anything in the appearance of that petition surprise you?—No, I think not; the names seem, several of them, to be written in the same hand.

2186. It appears that that petition was carried about; did it strike you as coming back in a clean state for having been signed by labourers?—No, it did not strike me so; I believe if the petitions were looked over, many of them would be found nearly as clean.

2187. Have you looked at these two together (the Petition from Epworth for the Repeal of the Corn Laws, and the Petition from Stainforth and Fishlake)?—Perhaps not together.

2188. Will you look at them now?—The one seems a great deal more soiled than the other.

2189. Look at the writing of the two; you say you look them all over when they come in?—Yes; but I might not happen to compare them, because they came in at different times.

2190. Did anything strike you with respect to them?—No.

2191. Does anything strike you now?—(The Witness examined the two Petitions.) A good few of the names appear to me to be written by the same person.

2192. In both petitions?—Yes, they seem so, so far as I am able to judge at present. That may arise, and the signatures be perfectly genuine, because a great many labouring people who can write have a very great objection to it.

2193. Have you seen a person of the name of Callis to-day?—No. Was he the man giving evidence as a stockinger here?

2194. Yes.—I did not happen to know his name; I beg pardon.

2195. Have you seen him?—Yes.

2196. Have you had any conversation with him?—Yes.

2197. What conversation had you with him?—I hardly can tell, but a good deal of conversation about many things.

2198. Mr. Hardy.] When?—Just now.

2199. Mr. Darby.] Did you communicate any part of that conversation to Samuel Potts?—Yes; I told Samuel Potts that Mr. Hudson told me this man had been making a statement that Potts had made some confession of fraud being upon the petition. Mr. Hudson introduced me to this man, and the man stated in substance that Potts had said so, and I told Potts that this man had been charging him with it; and I said it seemed a very singular thing, that after he had been stating to us pertinaciously that he had done all things right, he should tell that man here he had so and so; I stated that to Potts particularly.

2200. Mr. Hardy.] Where was that?—Just at the door here.

2201. Mr. Darby.] Can you say at what time Potts left your house on the Monday with the petition to go to Epworth?—I should say about noon.

2202. At what time did you see him back upon the Wednesday?—I was not at home when the man returned, and therefore I am not exactly able to speak to that.

Mr. John Hastie.

10 July 1843.

2203. If he came back on the Tuesday you know nothing about it?—I know when my young man in the shop said he came back.

2204. You only know from him?—Just so; when he brought him the petition into my shop.

2205. Mr. Henley.] When did you first see the petition after Potts brought it back?—On the Thursday; I was out of town on the Wednesday.

2206. Mr. Darby.] At what time did you go out?—I went on the Monday.

2207. And did not come back till the Thursday?—No.

2208. Mr. Henley.] Where did you see Potts this morning?—In the Cloisters here.

2209. Where else did you see him?—Not anywhere else; I had not seen Potts at all since the Thursday fortnight before he came up here till I saw him in these cloisters to-day.

2210. Have you had any conversation with Potts upon the subject of what he has said to any other person about this petition, except in these cloisters?—Not a word.

2211. You have told us you gave directions to Potts how he was to conduct himself in getting the petition signed?—Yes.

2212. Did you give directions to Potts in the same language, or anything like the same language that you have repeated to us here?—Yes, to the best of my recollection.

2213. You have said you told him he was going into an agricultural preserve?—Yes, I believe I said so; Mr. Collinson is a gentleman I am intimately acquainted with, and I said I believed he would be looked upon as going into John Collinson's preserve, who is not a very large landed proprietor there, but of very great influence in the Isle of Axholme, which I believe the Chairman is well aware of; I said it more in a joke than anything else. I told Mr. Collinson what I had said to Potts; I did not say it with any hostile idea.

2214. Because he was going into an agricultural preserve you told him to get the signatures of no boys under 20?—I told him it would be necessary to be exceedingly cautious; because I thought that a petition of that kind coming from an agricultural district, particularly so numerously as we had had some signed from Conisbrough and Tickhill, where the parties had managed them themselves (and I had that knowledge of Epworth to know that there were many of what may be called leading men in the town that had strong opinions on the opposite side), might give umbrage, and I therefore told him to be exceedingly cautious that he should do nothing wrong, simply because he was a stranger to me; I gave that as matter of instruction, which I thought I was bound to give to a man going out on such a mission.

2215. Mr. Henley.] Those orders or directions you do not give to your men except they are going into an agricultural preserve; is that to be understood?—I can explain that very easily: there is a petition in Doncaster, we will say, which lies on the counters of individuals who choose to let it do so, with a placard in the window; there is hardly any danger of anybody but a volunteer coming to sign it; but when it is taken about, and people are called upon, those instructions it appears to me are necessary; I thought them so to a man who was a perfect stranger to me, although I had a very good character of him, a copy of which I have in my pocket, from Mr. Wilton; and I believe Mr. Wilton is a man that Messrs. Childers, Wrightson, Charles Wood, and Becket Denison can speak to, as to his respectability.

2216. Mr. Darby.] That is not the point; you say when people are deterred, from fear or any other cause, from signing a petition, it requires more caution than in the case of volunteers?—It is very probable I would not have made use of the expression, "agricultural preserve," but from being on friendly terms with Mr. Collinson, although he holds different political principles from me.

2217. The question is, what was the use of giving the caution which you did to a man who, according to your own account, was a stranger to Epworth, and did not know a single soul in the place?—I can give one reason that led me to caution him, he being a stranger. At Braithwell we sent a petition with a person of the name of Clarkson, who lives in Braithwell, and had been in the habit of getting it signed; a party got the petition from Clarkson, after he had got a considerable number of names, and took it and burnt it. Now it can be seen at once, this having occurred the very day before Potts was sent out, it was necessary to caution him not to let the petition be out of his sight.

2218. The question asked you was this, how a man was to take these precautions who was an absolute stranger, not knowing one name from one end of the town to the other. You told him he was to take care that one person was not to sign for his neighbour; was that your expression?—Yes.

2219. How was a man who was a total stranger to Epworth to tell whether a man signed for his neighbour or not?—If my language has been ambiguous I will again tell the Committee what I stated to him. The man being an entire stranger to Epworth, I told him he was not to allow any person to sign for a supposed friend to the cause, who was not present and consenting; that was what I told him; not to allow any person to sign for a suppositious friend, not being present or consenting, because I had that knowledge of the matter, that I had had it put to me myself, and I had rejected it: "There is so and so; we know he is favourable; we will put his name down." I have said, "Let him come himself;" and therefore I required this man to act upon the same principle; let us see him here, and we will be glad to have his signature.

2220. Mr. Yorke.] Did you employ this man from a belief that he possessed any particular qualifications for your purpose?—No, not further than being represented to us as an honest man.

2221. Did you know that he had the capacity of writing different hands?—No, I never saw the man in my life before; I did not know there was such a man in existence till he was sent to me.

2222. Is he a man who bears a good reputation in Doncaster?—I never knew anything about this affair till I saw an article in the Doncaster Chronicle, traducing the man's character, and so on; and then I took occasion to wait on Mr. Wilton, who had given us the character, and upon whose recommendation we had employed the man; and he wrote a character out of what he believed the man to be, which is to this effect, that he had been generally in his employ for four years; he had always found him industrious and civil, and never had had occasion to suspect his integrity. That was the character which Mr. Wilton has put his name to.

2223. Mr. Darby.] Was this the character you got afterwards or before?—We had a verbal character before, and Mr. Wilton wrote it afterwards.

2224. Mr. Henley.] Have you written to Potts since he has been in London?—No.

2225. Has he written to you?—No.

2226. Mr. Yorke.] Have you had any communication with him, directly or indirectly, since he has been in London?—No.

2227. Have you been acquainted with the proceedings of this Committee?—Verbally, from communication with parties in Epworth; parties summoned on the other side, no other. One reason, in fact, why I felt it my duty not to interfere in the matter at all was, that if the man was guilty he must stand or fall upon the merits of the case; I did not think it my duty to attempt to screen or protect him in any shape or form whatever.

2228. Have you heard any subsequent circumstances which have led you to think the man was scrupulously correct in doing the duty with which you charged him?—We have had nothing to make us believe to the contrary. There are several other very respectable men, of whom I have taken the trouble to inquire his character, men for whom he has written, and they corroborate the character we had of him, that they always found him a respectable honest man in his station in life.

2229. You have heard nothing inducing you to question the genuine character of the signatures to the petitions he brought back to you?—Not a syllable, from all the inquiries I made in Doncaster, and I have taken special pains to inquire of several individuals whom I have known he has written for.

2230. Mr. Hardy.] Have you had any conversation with him with respect to what passed between him and a man of the name of Callis, excepting what you have referred to in the passage?—None, excepting in the passage; I have never seen him for the last month till I saw him in the passage to-day.

2231. Mr. Darby.] Have not you said you had taken the trouble to inquire whether any of these petitions were genuine petitions or not?—No.

2232. What, then, did you mean by saying you had made inquiries in Doncaster?—I made inquiries about the man's character.

2233. You were asked whether you had any reason to believe he had improperly obtained signatures to these petitions?—Yes; I understood the honourable Member

Mr. John Hastie.

10 July 1843.

Member to ask me if, from the man's character, we had any reason to suspect him of having acted improperly with respect to this petition.

2234. Mr. Yorke.] The question you were asked was, whether any subsequent circumstances had given you the impression that any of these signatures purporting by the man to be genuine were not genuine?—No, I am not in possession of any circumstances to make me think so.

2235. Mr. Darby.] Have you made any inquiry as to the names to these petitions, whether they have been signed by the parties whose names they purport to be?—No.

2236. Mr. Greene.] Have you any reason to believe that they are the genuine signatures of the parties?—In looking over several, I know we should have had the same signatures before.

2237. Mr. Henley.] Have any of the people whose names you have looked over told you that they signed them?—Yes, some of them; I will name a case in point, that of the Barnby-by-Dun petition.

2238. Mr. Darby.] If you say you have reason to believe these are genuine signatures, you must have made inquiries from the parties that signed them; is that the case?—No.

2239. Then your knowledge of their genuineness depends upon what you have heard of this man's character?—Just so.

2240. Mr. Yorke.] Though you employed him, you did not feel it your duty, after you heard the correctness of these petitions impugned, to make local inquiries upon the spot with reference to the truth or falsehood of the charges made against him?—In certain places.

2241. Did you at Epworth?—No, not at Epworth; Mr. Milner was down there on his own business, and I requested him to make inquiry after I heard of this affair.

2242. Mr. Darby.] Did you make any inquiries yourself?—Not individually; mainly from the reason I stated before, that the man was properly cautioned about the matter; and if he had been guilty, I thought it better, under all circumstances, that the thing should be sifted.

2243. The only thing you are asked is, what your knowledge is of the genuineness of these petitions; is it merely upon what you have heard of the man, or did you make inquiries of any of the parties whose names are to the petitions?—I made no such inquiries. I must have misunderstood the honourable Member's question; I thought it was turning upon Potts's character.

Samuel Potts, called in; and further Examined.

Samuel Potts.

2244. Mr. Yorke.] I THINK you said there were seven persons who imposed upon you the condition of silence when they signed their names?—Yes.

2245. Was Francis Morrish one of them?—No.

2246. Was Richard Maw one of them?—No.

2247. Was Goodall one of them?—No.

2248. Was Matthew Ingham one of them?—Oh no.

2249. Was Thomas Thorpe one of them; the man that was here to-day?—I shall be acknowledging the thing at once; is it for me to say?

2250. Yes, it is for you to answer the question?—I really cannot say; I almost think he is one.

2251. Is Thomas Coggon one?—(The Witness hesitated.) No, I think he is not one.

2252. Is Levi Clark one?—I do not remember who he is; that being his own writing.

2253. He is not one of the persons who imposed upon you the condition of silence?—No.

2254. Is Benjamin Leggatt one of them?—No.

2255. Is William Reed one of them?—No.

2256. Is Thomas Richardson one of them?—(The Witness hesitated.) I am not quite sure about that.

2257. You have distinctly told us there were, how many names with respect to which silence was imposed upon you?—Seven that I could speak to.

2558. Is Robert Gardham one of them?—No.

2259. Is Philip Duncan one of them?—No.

2260. Is William Cawthron one of them?—Which petition is it?

2261. The Epworth Petition?—No.

[The Witness withdrew.

Mr. William Hudson, called in; and Examined. Mr. W. Hudson.

10 July 1843.

2262. Chairman.] HAD you any conversation with Mr. Hastie, in the passage, about a man called Callis that you saw there?—No.

2263. Had you any conversation with Potts as to a person coming to tell him about his forging the petition?—I do not recollect anything of the kind.

2264. Had you any conversation with Potts in the passage?—I have talked to him two or three times, and advised him to confess and let us all be at peace.

2265. Mr. Henley.] Have you had any conversation with Mr. Hastie this morning, about Callis?—I do not know the name.

2266. Chairman.] Did you see a stranger outside as a witness?—Yes, there is a stranger.

2267. Had you any conversation with him?—He was telling me Potts had been confessing something to him: that is most of what we had, I think.

2268. Mr. Henley.] Did you tell that to Mr. Hastie?—I am sure I cannot say; I do not believe that I did.

2269. Mr. Yorke.] Do you know Mr. Hastie by person?—Yes.

2270. Mr. Henley.] Did you tell Mr. Hastie this morning in the passage what the stranger had been telling you?—No, I do not recollect anything at all that I said to Mr. Hastie.

2271. Mr. Darby.] Do you mean to say you cannot recollect what you did this morning?—I cannot, indeed.

2272. Do you mean to say you cannot tell whether ten minutes ago you told such an extraordinary thing to Mr. Hastie, a man connected with Potts, as that Potts had confessed to his forging most of the signatures to this petition?—I am sure I cannot recollect. We were talking many of us together; I was not with Mr. Hastie particularly.

2273. Mr. Yorke.] But surely your having been connected with a petition to prove that the petition of Potts was false, you would recollect so important a fact as that you had communicated to Mr. Hastie that this man had stated Potts had committed a forgery by Potts's own confession; would not you?—I do not recollect anything at all about what passed, I am sure; we were in a loose conversation, one among another, and I do not remember.

2274. Mr. Hardy.] When did you first learn that Potts had made a confession?—The man told me here.

2275. How long ago?—Almost as soon as we came in.

2276. About 12 o'clock?—Yes.

2277. Had you any conversation with Mr. Hastie after that?—I shook hands with him when he came in. I do not recollect anything about it; I have not a good memory.

17 July 1843.

2278. Chairman.] DO you wish to be put in possession of the Evidence that has been taken before this Committee. Give a direct answer?—It will not be long, will it?

2279. The question is, whether you wish to be put in possession of the Evidence taken before this Committee?—Yes.

2280. And

Samuel Potts.

17 July 1843.

2280. And whether you desire time to decide whether or not you will call witnesses?—As for witnesses, I can call witnesses if you wish it.

2281. Give a direct answer; the question is a very simple one; listen to the question. Do you wish to be put in possession of the Evidence taken before this Committee, and do you desire further time to call witnesses; say yes or no to that question?—If it is necessary, I do.

Samuel Potts was directed to read over the Evidence by Wednesday next, and to attend the Committee on that day at twelve o'clock, and inform the Committee whether he was desirous of calling any witnesses.

LORD WORSLEY, IN THE CHAIR.

Samuel Potts, called in; and further Examined.

Samuel Potts.

19 July 1843.

2282. Chairman.] HAVE you had an opportunity of reading the evidence over?—Yes; I have read part of it over; all that I intended to read.

2283. In consequence of what you have seen of the evidence, do you wish to call any witnesses?—No; I do not think it is necessary to call any witnesses.

2284. Mr. Yorke.] Why did not you intend to read all the evidence?—I do not see that it amounted to anything, when there was a weight of evidence denying the signatures. I did not see that there was any occasion for it, because I am fully aware, from information I have, which I have no doubt is correct, that at the time they had the meeting in Doncaster there was such a rivet put on that no man durst acknowledge to his signature. Mr. Callis says that I said to him, "By God, we shall all have to go over the water together." I never used such a word as that; I could not use such a word.

2285. Mr. Yorke.] You object to the expression "By God," as stated by Callis, as having been used by you?—Yes.

2286. You rather express a dissent to that word than to the sentiment of the sentence at large with reference to going over the water?—Yes, more particularly with that word; I could not use such a word. Then, in answer 1992, this is a very wrong statement; he says that I said, that I found it very difficult to get signatures, and that, at the outside of the villages, I put the names; I never said anything to that effect; it is a most shameful statement. He says, "He then proceeded to say, that he found it very difficult to obtain signatures, and that, consequently, he had recourse to this method, that when he got outside a town, or in different places where no one could observe him, he wrote some names that were in the villages where he had been, and other names which had occurred to him, and by this means he filled up the sheets; and that, in the case of the Epworth petition, the signatures so obtained were more than two-thirds." I never drew my breath to say any such thing, if I were to die this minute. He told me himself that three-fourths of the signatures to the petition about machinery were positively forgeries, and he said, "I expect yours is the same;" and I put out my hand across the table at dinner, and I said I never let any man know my business.

2287. Then it seems he was much more confidential and communicative to you than you were to him?—I did not want to have anything to say to him at all; he eyed me over several times, and at last he came up to me, and says, "I saw you in the House of Commons the other day." I turned my eyes up, said and I could not remember him. I thought a man like him I should have known, above all, if I had seen him in the passage. I said, "I was there certainly, but I have no recollection of you." Then he says that I said, "No, the Committee was not granted." I took it at once that the man's impression was, that I was about to be brought before a committee to be charged with forgery, the same as himself; that was my impression. He immediately began to state, as I have said before, that he had been charged with forgery; and he laughed and said, it was impossible; he would defy the whole world to bring it home to him, for he had taken such great care not to do anything of this sort in the presence of a second party. That is as false as anything can be in this world. If there had been anything of the kind, I would admit it at once; and, besides, if I had got anything to say, he was the last man I should have said anything to, because I did not like the looks of the fellow. I have no doubt that I could refute this, if I chose, but I wished to bury it. Then, with regard to question 1585: This Bentley petition is a petition of itself. I had nothing to do with the Bentley petition. I thought that the Bentley petition might be included in the Moss and Fenwick petition; but I had nothing to do with this Bentley petition. Two or three times this Bentley petition has been named, and I could not understand how it was, because I never remembered having anything to do with Bentley, and I thought it possible that it might be included in the Moss and Fenwick petition.

2288. Chairman.] As you do not think it necessary to call witnesses, you may now, if you please, make any general statement in refutation of the evidence that has been given?—I cannot do so. I have no doubt that there are some of the statements that are very true. I have no doubt that there are some men that did not sign the petition; but I do not believe, for all that, but that there are some people that did sign it. It strikes me, from the appearance, and from conversation I have had, that some of them did sign; but I am firmly persuaded that there are some that did not sign at all.

2289. Have you any explanation to give of their not signing?—No; it will not amount to anything if I do. There are one or two that I have not the slightest knowledge of at all. There is one gentleman that I was talking to, I forget whether he is an auctioneer or what he is; he is a stoutish person; I have no knowledge of the man, and I have no knowledge that ever that man signed it; I have no recollection at all; and there are some others that I cannot recollect; but as to others, it strikes me forcibly that a good many others had something to do with the petition; but as to some of them I do not think they ever did sign; I do not think I ever saw some few of them.

2290. You are speaking of the petition from Epworth for the repeal of the Corn Laws?—Yes, because I had nothing to do with any other.

2291. Mr. Yorke.] You say that there were a few that you do not think you saw at all; can you define what you mean by "a few"?—There is one Sayles Brunyee, I do not remember seeing him. I do not know that I can say anything particularly about the men that were here, but there is an impression upon my mind that there were some few that did not sign the petition; and I am firmly persuaded that there are some amongst them that did sign, or that gave leave.

THE SELECT COMMITTEE to whom the PETITIONS from EPWORTH, BARNBY DUNN and SANDALL, FINNINGLEY and AUSTERFIELD, HATFIELD, and from ARMTHORPE and CANTLEY, severally presented to The House on the 9th of May last, for a Repeal of the CORN LAWS, and the PETITIONS from the same Places, presented to The House on the 10th and 11th of July, complaining that the former Petitions were Forgeries, were severally referred; and who were empowered to Report their Opinion from time to time to The House, together with the MINUTES OF EVIDENCE taken before them;——HAVE considered the Matter thereof, and have agreed to the following RESOLUTIONS:—

Resolved, 1. MINUTES OF EVIDENCE.

Veneris, 21° die Julii, 1843.

MEMBERS PRESENT.

Mr. Darby.	Mr. Henley.
Mr. Milner Gibson.	Mr. Forbes Mackenzie.
Mr. Hardy.	Lord Worsley.

LORD WORSLEY IN THE CHAIR.

Samuel Potts, called in; and Examined.

Samuel Potts.

21 July 1843.

2292. Chairman.] WHAT is your name?—Samuel Potts.

2293. Where do you live?—Near the Turf Tavern, Saint James's-street, Doncaster.

2294. What are you in your way of business?—I am no particular trade.

2295. Do you know the parishes of Armthorpe and Cantley, in the county of York?—Yes, I know where they are.

2296. Do you know the parish of Barnby Dunn?—Yes, I know where it is.

2297. Do you know the parishes of Finningley and Austerfield?—Yes.

2298. They are in Nottinghamshire, are not they?—No, they are in two different counties, I fancy, but I am not sure; the petition says, I think, in the county of Nottingham, but I am of opinion they are in two different counties.

2299. Mr. Darby.] You know the places?—Yes, I know the places.

2300. Chairman.] Do you know the parish of Hatfield?—Yes, and Hatfield Woodhouse too.

2301. Is that in the county of York?—Yes, I dare say it is; I fancy so.

2302. Do you know the parish of Sandall?—Yes; there are two Sandalls; I do not know whether they are included in one or not; but they will both be in the Barnby Dunn petition, I think.

2303. When were you last in the parishes of Armthorpe and Cantley?—I am sure I do not know; some time, I should think, in the latter end of April or very early in May, but I cannot tell; I have no idea; I know it must be either April or the beginning of May, because the House assembled on the 9th of May; that is what I go by. I should think the latter end of April, but I am not sure; it might be in May; I cannot tell.

2304. It is necessary to caution you, that you will be answerable for what you have done with regard to the signatures to these petitions, therefore you need not answer any question that may criminate yourself; were you at Barnby Dunn about the same time you state you were at Armthorpe and Cantley?—Yes; I fancy it would be somewhere about the same time, within a day or two; somewhere about the same time, I should imagine.

2305. What was your object in visiting those parishes?—Because I was employed to take those petitions to get what people thought proper to sign.

2306. To take what petitions?—The petitions you have named to those places, and to get names to them.

2307. Petitions for the repeal of the Corn Laws?—Yes; but there is another petition, the Bawtry.

2308–9. You will have the goodness to confine yourself to the petitions you took to Armthorpe and Cantley and Barnby Dunn?—Yes. Are you going into any more than those two petitions, the Armthorpe and Cantley and the Barnby Dunn?

Chairman.—Afterwards we may.

Samuel Potts.

21 July 1843.

2310. Mr. Darby.] From whom did you receive those petitions?—The person that was here last week, Mr. Hastie. I received all the petitions from him that I had anything to do with.

2311. Were there any signatures attached to them when you received them from Mr. Hastie?—Not one.

2312. Have you seen them since?—Yes, I have seen some of them since, I know. (The two Petitions were shown to the Witness.)

2313. Look at the inside of those petitions; is that the petition you received from Mr. Hastie (the Barnby Dunn Petition)?—Yes, that is one.

2314. Look at the other (the Armthorpe and Cantley Petition)?—Yes, that is another.

2315. To whom did you return them?—Mr. Hastie.

2316. Are they in the same state now as when you returned them to Mr. Hastie?—Yes, I dare say they are.

2317. What is your belief upon the subject?—Yes, I believe they are. I do not remember the number, but I believe they are the same as I delivered them in.

2318. Where did you go from, to Armthorpe and Cantley; did you go from Doncaster?—When I went to Cantley I did, but I did not finish the petition that day. I went again to Armthorpe.

2319. How near is Armthorpe to Cantley?—Three miles, I should think.

2320. From Armthorpe to Cantley?—No; from Cantley to Doncaster; it would be, perhaps, about a mile and a half from Armthorpe to Cantley.

2321. Did you go to Armthorpe first, or Cantley?—Cantley.

2322. How long were you at Cantley?—I do not know how long; I might be two or three hours.

2323. Were you there more than once?—No, not there; I went twice with the petition, as I said before; but this was two different places, Cantley and Armthorpe.

2324. How often were you at Cantley?—Once.

2325. And once at Armthorpe?—Yes; two different days.

2326. You were two hours, you say, at Cantley?—I might be three.

2327. And how long at Armthorpe?—Not a long while in Armthorpe; the principal names I got at Armthorpe were in the fields; I do not know whether I got scarcely any in the houses at Armthorpe.

2328. Were you there an hour, or three hours?—No, I was not long in Armthorpe; I should think not more than an hour and a half in Armthorpe, perhaps not so long.

2329. Did you go to Barnby Dunn from Doncaster?—Yes.

2330. Were you there once, or more than once?—I was there twice, two days.

2331. You were two days at Barnby Dunn?—Yes.

2332. Did you sleep there?—No.

2333. How long were you there the first day?—All the day.

2334. The second?—The second day I cannot tell; I was not long the second day. (The Armthorpe and Cantley Petition was shown to the Witness.)

2335. Looking at those names, did those parties all sign for themselves?—(The Witness inspected the Petition.) No, they did not sign for themselves; many of them did not.

2336. Who signed for the people who did not sign for themselves?—I signed for many of them.

2337. Can you tell us what proportion you signed for of that number?—The principal of them are what I signed myself.

2338. Mr. Mackenzie.] Did you sign for all those that did not sign for themselves?—Yes.

2339. Mr. Darby.] Looking at the petition, can you tell how many of those names you signed?—How many of those I signed?

2340. Did you sign the greater proportion of them?—I said so.

2341. Will you tell us those which you did not sign?—There are many that I cannot tell you exactly that I did not sign.

2342. Can you tell which you did?—That is one I signed (Thomas Shearman), and that (Thomas Cooke).

2343. You signed the names of Shearman and Cooke?—Yes.

2344. Will you tell any others?—George Gabbitus.

2345. Can you find any other?—There is a James Beldam.

2346. There is the name of George Dodson; is that your handwriting?—That has not been wrote by me, I think.

2347. What are you doing now; taking the names down that you wrote yourself?—No, I am taking the names down I speak to.

2348. How many have you taken down?—I have taken down the names I have given to the reporter.

2349. How many are those?—Five.

2350. Just read out the names you have taken down?—Shearman, Cooke, Gabbitus, Beldam, and Dodson.

2351. Is Dodson one you signed?—No.

2352. Then what have you taken it down for?—I have put it down, but it is not one I have signed.

2353. You have taken down only five names; as you signed the greater proportion of them, and you seem to recollect the writing, look at the rest and say which of them you signed?—There are others that I cannot perhaps be able to identify besides those.

2354. You did not sign John Pinchin; that is not your handwriting, is it?—Yes, I believe it is.

2355. That you are putting down as one of those in your handwriting?—Yes.

2356. Is there the name of Batty there?—Yes, there is.

2357. You did not write that, did you?—Yes, I believe I wrote that too.

2358. Are you sure of that?—I cannot be quite sure.

2359. Is there the name of Belk there?—Yes.

2360. Who wrote that?—I cannot speak to that; I do not remember.

2361. Is there the name of Park?—Yes.

2362. Who wrote that?—I do not remember.

2363. Is there the name of Watkinson?—Yes; I do not remember any of the others, I think.

2364. According to your general recollection, how many names are there attached to that petition?—I do not know. (The Witness counted the names.) About 48.

2365. Do you think you signed as many as 20 of them?—Yes, I think so; yes, I have.

2366. That number you must have signed for, if you signed the greater proportion of them. It appears that there are 50 names; do you think you signed 40 of them?—Forty out of 50? No, I do not think I did.

2367. Do you think you signed 30 of them?—I think I may have signed better than 20.

2368. But you will not speak to 30?—I do not mean to speak to any given number.

2369. Twenty is not the greater proportion of 50; you said you signed the greater part of them; 20 is not the half of 50?—I might stand to what I say, if I said 26; I should think I signed 26.

2370. Chairman.] Did you sign the names of those persons who requested you to do so?—Yes.

2371. And only those?—And only those.

2372. Mr. Mackenzie.] Did they say they could not write for themselves?—Very few of them can; there is not a many that can write for themselves; they are chiefly labourers. I do not know that there is anything else in it much, because they were in the fields.

2373. Chairman.] Cannot you recognise, looking at that petition, those names that are in your handwriting?—Yes, I very likely might do such a thing, but I do not think it would be good policy on my part so to do.

2374. Mr. Darby.] Do you decline answering the question on the ground that it would criminate yourself; the only ground upon which you can decline answering a question to this Committee is, that it will criminate yourself; if there is no other ground, the Committee must insist upon an answer?—By my stating what number I signed, would be the way to criminate myself, for I know there is scarcely a man in the place that will acknowledge that he signed.

2375. The only ground upon which you can refuse to answer a question to

Samuel Potts.

21 July 1843.

this Committee is not a ground of policy, but that feeling you have done something wrong, your answer may criminate you?—I understand. If I refer to any given number of those people, I know from fear ——

2376. If that is your only ground, you must answer the question?—That is my objection.

2377. Then you must answer the question, and tell the Committee which you signed and which you did not?—I do not know that I am compelled to answer.

2378. The Committee will compel you, unless upon the ground which has been stated?—I do not see that I have a right so to do when I have assigned a reason, because I say if I give any given number of names of those men which I maintain from fear will fall back, because I know they durst not acknowledge it, it lies upon my shoulders; therefore, I say, it will have a tendency to criminate myself.

2379. Mr. Mackenzie.] How do you know they will not acknowledge from fear?—I knew it when I got the names. There is one man that came to my own cottage house to prevent being known to anybody. I think he was the first man, though not first in the petition, and he is an able-bodied man too; he particularly cautioned me that I did not let anybody know his name; he is in the petition, and I know the person, and his name and everything.

2380. Mr. Darby.] The question is, that unless you have done something wrong, and your answer may criminate yourself, you are not only bound to answer the question, but the Committee must take means to make you answer it?—I cannot criminate myself, only I say, as I said before, that if the people would actually deny those names which they vested me with authority to sign, what could people think? The Committee might think at once I had signed them without their consent, because two will overcome one. If two men positively swear, what chance has one man?

2381. Chairman.] You will understand, that if you are afraid that any answer of yours will tend to criminate yourself, you are at liberty to refuse answering that question, stating your reason to me that you are afraid it will criminate yourself; but if, on the other hand, it is not from any apprehension of any ulterior proceedings, or in consequence of your being afraid of criminating yourself, you are then bound to answer any question that is put to you by this Committee. I will therefore ask you this question. You stated that you had signed for other persons at their request?—Yes.

2382. You can therefore easily tell the names of those persons, by knowing your handwriting from that of other persons?—I might know part of them, but I say I should refuse to do it, because I say these men would turn.

2383. You would know your own handwriting, would you not?—Yes, I dare say I should.

2384. You would have no reason, as you have only signed for those who requested you to do so, to write otherwise than in your usual hand?—No.

2385. And therefore we are to understand that the names that you wrote are written in your usual manner?—Yes.

2386. And not that you wrote different names in different manners, as you stated you did upon the Epworth petition?—No.

2387. Mr. Darby.] Do you mean to say you did not sign the names in different handwritings in the Armthorpe and Cantley petition?—No; they pretty nearly correspond, I think, with my handwriting.

2388. Chairman.] Are you understood to say that you decline giving any information to the Committee as to which the names are that you did sign?—Yes.

2389. I wish to know what your reason for so refusing to give that information is?—Because those people, as I said before, whom I signed for, I know will deny their names, and therefore it will lie upon my shoulders; that is what I maintain, because there is scarcely a man in it that durst acknowledge it.

2390. Mr. Hardy.] You mean to say they will deny giving you leave?—Yes.

The Witness was directed to withdraw.

The Witness was again called in.

2391. Mr. Darby.] You said you did not sign George Batty's name, I think?—I think I did not say nothing at all about George Batty.

2392. Did

2392. Did you write it?—Yes.

2393. Mr. Mackenzie.] You did write it, did you?—Yes; I signed George Batty.

2394. Chairman.] At George Batty's request?—I believe it is George Batty; the person gave me his name as George Batty; I cannot say anything more.

2395. Mr. Mackenzie.] Should you know the man if you saw him?—I should question whether I should or not.

2396. Mr. Darby.] Did you know the parish before you went that day?—I had been there, but there is only one person I know in it.

2397. Has that person signed the petition?—No.

2398. What is his name?—Reasbeck; his name is in the petition, I fancy, at least the same name, but it is not him: he is the only man I know.

2399. What is he?—A shoemaker.

2400. Did you go to him?—I never see'd him.

2401. Did not you go to see him?—I almost think I called, but he was not in.

2402. Mr. Mackenzie.] Did you see any person in his house?—I do not remember; I do not know the house which he lives at now, because he has removed. I did know before he removed, but I do not know whether I went to his house or not, because he has removed since the last time I was there.

2403. Chairman.] Is his name down in that petition?—Yes. There are many Reasbecks about Doncaster and the neighbourhood of Tickhill and Thorne, I think, but this is not the Reasbeck that lives in Armthorpe. I know him well.

2404. What is his christian name?—George. I have known him many years.

2405. Did you sign the name of Reasbeck which is in the petition at the party's request, or did he sign it himself?—The person signed it himself.

2406. Mr. Darby.] Did you know his name; did you ask him whether he was any relation of the other Reasbeck?—No; I think my remark was, "Are you Reasbeck?" He was a man that came off the Thorne road.

2407. Chairman.] Should you know him by sight again if you were to see him?—I should know Reasbeck at Armthorpe, but I do not know whether I should know the other or not.

2408. Mr. Darby.] He is the only man you know in that parish?—The only one in that parish. I do not know that I know another.

2409. Did you know Barnby Dunn before you went there?—Yes; a good deal better than the other.

2410. Do you know several people in Barnby Dunn?—Yes, I know some there.

2411. What are the names of the people you know at Barnby Dunn?—I do not know; here is the petition; I can tell by looking at it.

2412. Mr. Mackenzie.] Cannot you name them without the petition?—I can call them to mind when I see the petition.

2413. Mr. Henley.] Without the petition, if you know the place you will know them?—There is not many people I know in Barnby Dunn, but there may be some that have not signed.

2414. Mr. Mackenzie.] Let us know the names of some people that you know there?—There is one of the name of Sailes, a beer-shop keeper.

2415. Chairman.] What is his christian name?—I do not know; he keeps a beer-shop.

2416. Mr. Darby.] Did you see him when you were in Barnby Dunn?—No.

2417. Did he sign the petition?—There were three or four in his house did before his face, and he would not.

2418. Mr. Mackenzie.] What are the names of those who did sign before his face?—I should have some difficulty in naming them all; there is one man I remember of the name of Day; he was in, but I do not think he lives there; but he is a man that I can identify—that I can swear to—if an oath be lawful.

2419. Chairman.] What aged man is Sailes, who keeps the beer-shop?—I do not know; I should think he would be 40 or 45.

2420. Has he a son at home with him?—I do not know; he has some children, but I do not know what family.

2421. Not grown up?—I think not; I do not know that he has.

2422. You do not know the son, if he has one?—No, I do not.

Samuel Polts.
21 July 1843.

2423. Mr. Darby.] Is it Sailes that keeps the beer-shop?—There are several Saileses in Barnby Dunn; it is Sailes who keeps the beer-shop, I think.

2424. Mr. Mackenzie.] He positively refused to sign it, did he?—Yes.

2425. Mr. Darby.] How many names did you sign in that petition (the Barnby Dunn Petition being shown to the Witness)?—I cannot tell how many.

2426. Did you sign the greater proportion of them?—I signed part of them.

2427. Did you sign the greater proportion of them?—No, I cannot say that I did.

2428. Chairman.] Will you have the goodness to tell us any other persons you know at Barnby Dunn, without looking at the petition?—There is a man of the name of Parish.

2429. Mr. Mackenzie.] What is he?—A publican.

2430. Mr. Darby.] Do you know him well?—I do.

2431. What is his christian name?—I forget his christian name.

2432. Robert?—I think he has two names.

2433. Is his name to the petition?—(The Witness inspected the Petition.) Yes; that is him (pointing to "R. Parish").

2434. Is that his handwriting?—No, it is mine.

2435. Mr. Hardy.] You signed the name of "R. Parish," did you?—Yes, I did; I know I signed it.

2436. Did you sign "Henry Wightman"?—No, I did not. There is a person of the name of William Whitty, I know at Barnby Dunn.

2437. Chairman.] What is he?—He is a labouring man.

2438. Mr. Darby.] Who wrote this (George Whitby)?—I do not know, I am sure.

2439. Did you?—No.

2440. Did anybody assist you to get the names to these petitions?—No.

2441. Why were you so long answering the question; did any persons assist you to get the names either to the Barnby Dunn or to the Armthorpe and Cantley petition?—To none of them.

2442. Were the petitions in your custody all the time you had them from Mr. Hastie?—Yes, I got them back and delivered them at night.

2443. Mr. Henley.] When you were at Cantley did any person besides yourself sign the petition at Cantley?—Oh yes; in the town I do not know whether there was; yes, there was.

2444. Who was it that signed it in the town of Cantley besides yourself?—(The Witness looked at the Armthorpe and Cantley Petition.) Who signed for themselves, do you say?

2445. You say there was some person in Cantley signed the petition; I ask you to point out who that was?—There was one of the name of Cooke, I think, signed the petition. Have you the other petition that corresponds with this petition?

2446. Mr. Darby.] What other petition?—The House of Lords.

2447. Mr. Darby.] No.

2448. Mr. Mackenzie.] Cooke signed the Cantley petition, you say?—Yes; I think he did.

2449. Chairman.] Speak positively, if you please.

2450. Mr. Hardy.] What was Cooke's christian name?—I do not know. I cannot say positively whether he did sign it or not, but I know very well there were two in one house I remember signed it.

2451. Mr. Mackenzie.] What was Cooke's christian name?—I do not say positively whether this Cooke did sign it or not. It is Thomas Cooke here.

2452. Mr. Henley.] Who signed the first name to that petition?—I cannot tell that.

2453. Did you sign the first name yourself, or did anybody else sign it?—No; I did not sign the first name. This or that may be first. I do not always get them put down by columns, but as it happens.

2454. Mr. Darby.] You say there were two persons that signed the Barnby Dunn petition themselves. Will you undertake to say that there are any signatures besides those two signed by the parties themselves?—Not in the village. I do not know.

2455. In that petition at all?—Yes.

2456. Did you always write down the names when you got the consent at the time, time, or take the list home and write them down there?—I wrote them down at the time, excepting in one or two parishes that I can refer to, where they have been wrote as soon as I got out of the town, from fear.

2457. In most instances you wrote the name down at the time, but in one or two you did not write it till you got out of the town?—No; by orders of the parties, from fear.

2458. Mr. Hardy.] Which were those?—I can point out one of them, I am sure. Do you mean the Cantley petition? I am not meaning the Cantley petition.

2459. Take the other?—Parish.

2460. Mr. Darby.] That is the man that keeps the public-house?—Yes; that is the man that has petitioned to be heard as not having signed. I saw him in the Times paper, the first man in the paper, though he gave me consent to sign his name.

2461. When did you see his name in the Times paper?—A week or so since.

2462. You say his name you did not sign till you got out of the town?—No.

2463. Was that when you had got all the other signatures?—I do not know for that, because when I had done with the farmers I might not be so particular.

2464. The object was, that the parties in the town might not see that Parish had signed, of course?—Yes, that was my object.

2465. And therefore you did not put the name down till you had got all the signatures you could, that it might not be seen?—I might, when I got sufficiently away from the farmers, amongst the labourers.

2466. Do you mean you got both farmers and labourers; you have told us they were principally labourers?—There were not many farmers at Barnby Dunn. I cannot speak to it exactly, but I was about going out of Barnby Dunn, or thereabouts, when I signed that name; I had his authority and request so to do.

2467. What I understand is, that he requested you to sign his name, but not to put it down at the time, that it might not be seen?—Yes.

2468. And as soon as you got out of the town you signed his name?—Yes; that was what he ordered me to do, but I do not know whether I had got quite out of the town or not when I signed it.

2469. But you had got the petition pretty nearly finished?—I cannot remember that, but I remember him so well because I know the house well; when I asked him he refused, that makes me take the more notice.

2470. Your object was that the parties who signed afterwards might not see his name attached to the petition?—Yes.

2471. And therefore, I presume, you did not sign it until, as far as you could, you had finished the petition?—Until I was out of the town.

2472. How many signatures did you get after you were out of the town?—I cannot tell.

2473. Were you on your return to Doncaster when you signed it?—Yes; there was people along on the roads and in the fields, and part of them signed.

2474. Do you mean to say that the first names on that petition are all farmers, and the last labourers?—No; there are very few farmers in it; there is Parkinson, a farmer.

2475. Are you understood to say that the farmers and the labourers are mixed together, whatever farmers there are?—Yes.

2476. And your object in signing this man's name when you got out of the town was that nobody might see it who signed their names afterwards?—Yes.

2477. And therefore you signed it as soon as you had finished the petition as much as you could in the town?—In such a case as that I do not know whether I did not leave a vacancy or not for the express purpose, but I will prove before his own face that he gave me his consent.

2478. You think it possible, then, that having deferred to sign this till you had got the petition finished, that people might not see it, you left a vacancy in the middle of the petition for his name?—Yes, I do.

2479. Chairman.] That was Parish's name?—Yes; I maintain he gave me his consent.

2480. Mr. Darby.] The Committee do not accuse you of having written it without.

Samuel Potts.

21 July 1843.

without. Mr. Parish has not been called, and he may say he gave you that authority; but the question is, you having determined on not signing it till, as far as you could, you had finished the petition, did you leave a blank in the middle of the petition to insert his name, which you say he gave you authority to sign?—I do not speak distinctly, but very likely I did.

2481. Chairman.] Parish is the man who keeps a public-house, and with whom you were previously acquainted?—I do not know about previously acquainted; it was a house I had been at at different times when I had gone through.

2482. Mr. Darby.] You say there is another name in the Barnby Dunn petition you think also you signed just under the same circumstances, after you got out of the town?—I said one or two; I do not know whether there was another or not; I cannot just now remember.

2483. When you deferred signing the name of a person that gave you authority, did you write the name down so that you might recollect it, and copy it into the petition afterwards, or did you carry it in your memory?—I am not quite sure, but I fancy I did not take the name down. I do not remember; but I know I was particularly charged not to let it be seen.

2484. That would make you remember it, having had to recollect the name till you got out of the town; just look and see if you remember the other name?—I do not remember such matters as these, because I did not expect I should have to speak to them.

2485. Having to remember a man's name till you got out of the town, and then signing it, is a matter that would make an impression upon any man's mind of ordinary sense; can you see the other name in reading them over; what do you think the man was; was he at the same place with Parish, the man that wished you to write his name afterwards?—I did not say there was two, but there might be one or two.

2486. You say there is one, and there might be another?—I will try to remember whether there was another or not. I cannot speak to it.

2487. Chairman.] Did you get the Barnby Dunn petition or the Epworth petition first from Mr. Hastie?—I got it from Mr. Hastie before the Epworth; the Epworth petition was the last petition I had to do with.

2488. Did he give you any instructions when he gave you the Barnby Dunn petition, or any of these other petitions, as to your mode of proceeding to obtain signatures?—Yes.

2489. What were those instructions?—He told me that I was to be very cautious that people signed their own names, and if they could not I was to sign for them; that a cross was not necessary; and that I was not to put any wrong names down, or anything of that sort; he would rather have a few to go to the House of Commons or Lords that were all right, than have any indifferent names put to them.

2490. You stated a short time since that amongst the parties you previously knew at Barnby Dunn was Parish, who kept a public-house?—Yes.

2491. I think you also stated you did not know what his christian names were, but that he had two names?—I thought so; that was what I thought, if I remember right. I thought I see'd two names in the Times; but whether he has two names or not, that name, Robert Parish, is his, the one I mean.

2492. What length of time may you have known Parish?—I did not know him before that day; I had a glass of ale in the house; I stopped half an hour with him.

2493. How long have you been acquainted with the parish of Barnby Dunn?—I have had to go through it to Thorne for several years. I have been through it several years; above ten years; that was the house I stopped at.

2494. When was the last time you were there before you went with these petitions?—I do not know; four or five years since.

2495. Have you been used to stop at Parish's public-house?—Yes, I called, and had a pint of ale, or something of that sort, but not regularly; I sometimes called.

2496. Did Parish keep it at that time?—No; Bedford kept it; I do not think this man has kept it long; but I do not know.

2497. Did you call at the house to ask him for his signature, or did you happen to go into the house as being a house you were acquainted with before?—No; it was to go to ask him for his name. I dare say I might intend to have

have a glass of ale, but if I did, I intended to ask for his name, either for him to sign it, or to let me sign it. He said he durst not. I told him he need not be afraid; that if he would give me his consent to sign it, as soon as I got out of the town I would do so; only I said "I must have your consent, or it will be thrown overboard;" so he gave me his consent.

2498. Mr. Mackenzie.] Was that before or after you had the glass of ale?—It was all within half an hour; I should think it was after I had the glass of ale; he was in the garden when I first went in.

2499. Chairman.] Will you look at the name of Thomas Mapplebeck in the Barnby Dunn petition; did you sign that, or did he?—Are not there two?

2500. Chairman.] There is only one Thomas Mapplebeck?

2501. Mr. Hardy.] There are two Mapplebecks, Benjamin and Isaac?—I think there are some more Mapplebecks.

2502. Chairman.] Look at the name of Thomas Mapplebeck, and say whether it is in your handwriting, or do you know that Mapplebeck signed it?—I believe it is my handwriting.

2503. Mr. Henley.] Did he give you any authority to sign it?—He must have given me authority, or else I should not have signed it.

2504. Answer the question; did he give you authority or not?—Yes; at least if it is the same person. I do not know him; I cannot tell where he lives.

2505. Chairman.] Look at the Barnby Dunn petition, and tell me if there are any persons' names there that you know, and have such a distinct recollection of the parties as to be able to speak to them if you were to see them here?—I will see (the Witness looked at the Petition); there is a name I can speak to.

2506. What is that name?—James Richard Parkinson.

2507. Mr. Hardy.] You can speak to it for what?—I can identify the person. There is another I can identify, William Whittam.

2508. Chairman.] Are there any others?—I fancy that I should be able to speak to one of those Mapplebecks, but I do not know which it is, because there is a Mapplebeck, a collar-maker, and this man I mean is a relation, and was in his house; it is about the sixth of the first row of houses entering from Doncaster. I think he is a relative or something, and he gave me leave; he is a Mapplebeck, but I do not know his christian name.

2509. You can speak to James Richard Parkinson and William Whittam?—Yes.

2510. Looking at those names, do you recognise them as being written by yourself, or have they been written by the parties?—Parkinson has been written by myself.

2511. Mr. Hardy.] Did William Whittam write his name himself?—No, I wrote it. There are some more that I can recognise; there is William Swift.

2512. What is that "Sandall" at the end of the name?—This is the Sandall petition.

2513. It is the Barnby Dunn petition?—It includes Sandall as well; Barnby Dunn and Sandall.

2514. Chairman.] Should you know Parish again?—Yes, I should. George Parkinson is a name I should know.

2515. Mr. Hardy.] Did he sign for himself, or did you sign for him?—I think he signed for himself.

2516. Cannot you tell whether it is your writing or not?—I cannot always tell whether it is my writing or not. There ought to be 13 or 14 more genuine names in this petition that is not in at all.

2517. Mr. Mackenzie.] Did you write any of those names which you got authority to write, in Doncaster?—I will just look for another or two, and then tell you.

2518. Answer the question in the meantime?—No; I do not know that I signed any in Doncaster.

2518*. Not one?—No, I do not know that I did.

2519. Mr. Henley.] Do you know you did not?—If I knew I did not, I should know at once whether I did or not.

2520. You will not answer the question one way or the other?—I say I do not think I did sign any name in Doncaster.

2521. Will you take upon yourself to say you did not?—I do not remember that I signed a name at all at Doncaster.

2522. If you do not remember that you did sign one, I suppose you will take

Samuel Potts.

21 July 1843.

upon yourself to say that you did not sign one?—It is very possible a person might give me his name and I might forget it.

2523. It is possible you might have signed a name in Doncaster?—If anybody told me to keep the name back, I did, but I say I do not remember; I do not think I did, and am almost persuaded I did not do such a thing.

2524. You will not take upon yourself to say you did not?—I might take upon myself to say so.

2525. Will you?—No. There are three or four more names that I can identify, but I do not remember; there is one (Richard Moore).

2526. Did he sign his name, or did you for him?—I signed for him, but I think I ought to be allowed to make a memorandum or two.

(The Witness was about to make a memorandum, but was prohibited by the Chairman.)

2527. Mr. Hardy.] I think you say you signed for Thomas Mapplebeck?—Yes.

2528. Did you sign for Benjamin Mapplebeck?—I cannot speak to it.

2529. Look at it?—I cannot speak to it.

2530. You cannot say whether you did or not?—I cannot speak to it.

2531. Did you sign for Isaac Mapplebeck?—I cannot speak to it.

2532. You do not look at it?—Yes, I do. I have seen it before.

2533. You cannot say whether that is your writing, or the writing of Isaac Mapplebeck?—No; I cannot particularly.

2534. Did you sign for Christopher Langfield?—No.

2535. That is his writing, is it, then?—No; I cannot say. If it be his own name, of course it is his writing.

2536. Is that the writing of a man who put his name down as Christopher Langfield?—Yes.

2537. Do you remember two George Needhams?—I do not remember.

2538. Did you sign for that George Needham (pointing to the name), or did he sign for himself?—I cannot speak to it.

2539. Did you sign for that George Needham (pointing to the same name in another part of the Petition)?—I cannot speak to it.

2540. You cannot tell whether that is your writing or not?—I might tell, perhaps.

2541. You must give some answer that a reasonable person would give; you cannot tell whether either of these George Needhams is your writing?—I do not speak to either of them.

2542. You cannot tell whether they were written by the persons or by yourself?—Yes, I perhaps could tell that.

2543. That is the question I am putting to you?—It depends upon my own part whether I am obliged to answer it or not. I cannot answer it.

2544. With respect to either of them?—No; I cannot answer to either of them.

2545. Why cannot you answer?—My memory fails.

2546. It is not from the character of the handwriting, but because your memory fails, is that it?—I do not know, I am sure. I tell you I cannot speak to those two names.

2547. Can you speak to John Nettleton?—Do you mean whether I know him, or whether it is his writing?

2548. Whether he wrote that name or you wrote it?—I am to make no memorandum of the persons I speak to?

2549. You are to answer the questions put to you?—I cannot answer.

2550. Then you cannot tell whether you wrote that or not?—Very likely I might.

2551. Mr. Mackenzie.] Do you refuse to answer because you are not allowed to take notes?—I think when I speak to a thing I should make a memorandum of it.

2552. Do you refuse to answer because you are not allowed to take notes?—No.

2553. Then why do you refuse to answer the question?—I do not see what harm there is that I should not take down a name when I speak to it.

2554. Mr. Hardy.] It that your reason?—Yes; it is one reason.

2555. Then can you tell whether that John Nettleton is written by you, or some some person professing to be John Nettleton?—Yes; I do not doubt that I could.

2556. Is it yours or his writing?—I refuse to say which it is.

2557. Chairman.] We have thought it better not to allow you to keep writing the names down as you speak to them, because you will have the same opportunity, after the examination has been gone through on these petitions, which was given you upon the Epworth petition, of looking over the evidence, and you will be able to state anything you choose upon it. It is more regular that a witness under examination should go on in the usual way. You did not attempt to do anything of the sort when you were under examination upon the Epworth petition, and the Committee do not think they are putting you in any position of which you have a right to complain; therefore, unless you refuse to answer the questions upon the ground of criminating yourself, we shall equally feel bound as before to insist upon your giving answers to the questions which are put to you.

2558. Mr. Hardy.] You hear what his Lordship has said; I ask you again whether that John Nettleton was written by you, or by a person saying he was John Nettleton, or bearing that name?—It is impossible for me to remember all the names in the petition.

2559. Mr. Mackenzie.] You said you could answer that question?—Then that name I did write.

2560. Mr. Hardy.] Did you write Thomas Kelsey?—I cannot speak to that; I cannot tell who wrote it.

2561. Thomas Nettleship?—I cannot speak to that.

2562. You cannot say whether you wrote it or not?—No.

The Witness was directed to withdraw.

The Witness was again called in.

2563. Chairman.] You were understood to state a short time ago that no one had assisted you with these petitions, or written any names for you when you had been requested by the parties to write their names down?—No; those that I signed for was by consent of the parties.

2564. Where a person said, "Yes, you may put my name down," you always did it; nobody else did it?—Yes; there has been some few instances where it has been done, where I have stood by and seen a person write his own name, and perhaps he may have wrote for one or two more that have been by-standers at the time.

2565. Mr. Darby.] But there is no party connected with yourself that has done so?—No; I was the one always entrusted with the petition.

2566. Mr. Henley.] Was the petition ever out of your sight?—No, not unless when I was abed and asleep.

2567. Chairman.] When you took the petition back to Mr. Hastie, after having obtained the signatures, did you see Mr. Hastie?—I do not remember, but I think I did see him.

2568. Do you recollect to whom you gave it at his house; was it at his house you left it?—Yes, it was to his shop.

2569. Having looked carefully at those petitions, are you persuaded they are in the same state now as they were when you gave them back to Mr. Hastie?—I have not a doubt of it.

2570. Chairman.] We have been speaking about the Barnby Dunn, and the Armthorpe and Cantley petitions; did you take a petition to Hatfield and Hatfield Woodhouse?—Yes.

2571. Was that at the same time that you took the others?—It would be some time then abouts; of course I only took one at a time, and they took some time getting.

2572. But it was about the same time?—Yes.

2573. Did Mr. Hastie give you the petitions for Hatfield and Hatfield Woodhouse?—Yes. Would you allow me to look at the Hatfield Woodhouse petition? (The Petition was handed to the Witness.)

2574. Is that the petition you took to Hatfield?—Yes.

2575. Looking at that petition, do you think it is now in the same state as it was when you returned it to Mr. Hastie?—Yes; I do not question that it is.

Samuel Potts.

21 July 1843.

2576. Did any one go to Hatfield with you, and assist you in getting the signatures to that petition?—No, not with any of them. I see there is a man there on the second page; he will be like the Irish Repealers; he will be under discharge; he is a magistrate, R. W. Pilkington. I think he is a magistrate somewhere in the neighbourhood of London.

2577. Mr. Henley.] Did he sign it, or did you sign it?—No; he signed it himself.

2578. Chairman.] With regard to the Hatfield petition, do you recollect whether there are many who did not write their own names, but requested you to do it for them?—Yes; there are a good few ordered me to write.

2579. Did you take a petition to Finningley and Austerfield?—Yes.

2580. There did you find many persons who signed their own names, or did they generally request you to sign for them?—I signed the principal.

2581. Should you be able, in looking at that petition (the Finningley and Austerfield Petition being handed to the Witness), to recognise the names of those who signed their own names?—I dare say I might. George Richardson has signed. I have signed part of these.

2582. Can you recollect how many, out of the district of Finningley, you have signed?—I do not doubt but there is about 20.

2583. Do you consider that the Finningley petition is in the same state now as it was when you returned it to Mr. Hastie?—Yes.

2584. Mr. Darby.] How do you spell "George?"—G-e-o-r-g-e, I should say.

2585. That man (pointing to the name "George Shaw") has made a mark; did you write the name for him?—Yes.

2586. You have not spelt it so there?—No; I did not expect it would be very particularly looked at, or I might have taken more pains.

2587. Mr. Mackenzie.] How do you spell Henry?—H-e-n-r-y or r-e-y, I do not know which; I think, perhaps, it may not be spelt in two places alike.

R. ADAM CHRISTOPHER, Esq. IN THE CHAIR.

Thomas Belk, called in; and Examined.

Thomas Belk.

24 July 1843.

2588. Chairman.] WHAT is your name?—Thomas Belk.

2589. Where do you live?—At Armthorpe.

2590. What are you?—A labouring man.

2591. Did you sign any petition for a repeal of the Corn Laws lately?—No.

2592. Will you look at the signature to that petition, and tell me whether that is your handwriting (the Armthorpe and Cantley Petition being shown to the Witness)?—This is my name (pointing to the name Thomas Belk in the Petition), but not my writing.

2593. You did not write it?—No, I am certain I did not.

2594. Are you well acquainted with Armthorpe and the neighbourhood?—Yes; I have lived in Armthorpe all my time.

2595. Mr. Villiers.] Just write your name?—(The Witness wrote his name.)

2596. Chairman.] Is Cantley a hamlet of Armthorpe or another parish?—Another parish.

2597. Are you acquainted with Cantley?—Yes, pretty well.

2598. Is

2598. Is that an adjoining parish?—An adjoining parish.

2599. Do you know any person bearing the name of Thomas Belk in that neighbourhood besides yourself?—No.

2600. Will you look at the signature to the other petition (the counter Petition being shown to the Witness); is that your handwriting?—Yes, this is my handwriting.

2601. Mr. Darby.] Do you know a man of the name of Samuel Potts?—No, I do not.

2602. Did you hear of his being at Armthorpe?—I never heard of his being at Armthorpe till Mr. Littlewood, of Armthorpe, came round to ask me if I had signed a petition of that kind, and I said I never had.

2603. Did you give that man any authority to put your name to this petition?—I never saw him, and never had a question of the kind put to me till Mr. Littlewood came to ask me if I had signed a petition.

2604. Mr. Villiers.] What is this petition (the counter Petition from Armthorpe and Cantley)?—I am sure I do not know.

2605. Do you remember any one giving it to you to sign?—I remember a person of the name of John Atkin giving me a petition to sign for Mr. Littlewood.

2606. Do you remember what John Atkin said to you when he asked you to sign the petition?—Yes, perfectly well; for he came and asked me if I had ever signed a petition any time back respecting the Corn Laws, and I told him that I never had, and he asked me if I had any objection to sign his petition, and I said no, I had not, and I signed it.

2607. Who is John Atkin?—A labourer of Mr. Littlewood's, of Armthorpe.

2608. What is Mr. Littlewood, of Armthorpe?—A gentleman farmer.

2609. What are you?—A labouring man.

2610. And this was one of Mr. Littlewood's labourers who asked you to sign his petition?—Yes.

2611. Who summoned you here; who told you to come up?—I got a summons on Saturday afternoon, about three o'clock; I did not understand it rightly, and at night I went up to Mr. Littlewood's to ask him; I thought he would understand it, but he did not rightly understand it, and ordered me to go to Mr. Baxter, of Doncaster, the attorney, who would give me information about it; accordingly I went, and he told me I was obliged to come.

2612. Did they tell you what you had to say when you came?—No, they did not tell me what I had to say when I came at all; they told me I was to come; the summons ordered me to attend here at 11 o'clock this day, and I was to call upon Mr. Denison this morning to ask him the way to get here.

2613. Who is Mr. Denison?—He is a gentleman from Doncaster, who is known pretty well in the neighbourhood.

2614. Is that the Member for Yorkshire?—Yes; I was to call at his house to ask him the way we were to get into the House this morning. We were strangers in London; none of us had been here before; and Mr. Baxter thought it the best way for us to call upon Mr. Denison, to ask him the way to get into the House this morning, and accordingly we did.

2615. Did you see Mr. Denison this morning?—I saw Mr. Denison this morning.

2616. Did he speak to you about this petition?—Yes.

2617. What did you say to Mr. Denison?—I had nothing more to say, only to ask him the way we were to get here, and to ask him the particulars about coming in; and accordingly he told us we were to be here at 10 minutes before 11, and he directed us the way from his house, and we came down in a coach. We came by the train this morning, and stopped at a coffeehouse and had breakfast, at the top end of Tottenham-road, and we could not find the way by ourselves being strangers. We hired what they call a cab, which brought us to Mr. Denison's, and he put us in the road to come here: it was about 10 o'clock when we were at Mr. Denison's.

2618. Did you tell Mr. Denison what you had come up for?—Yes.

2619. What did you tell him?—We told him we had come up respecting the Epworth Petition.

2620. What did he say?—He took my summons and looked at it, and said it

Thomas Belk.

24 July 1843.

it was all right; we should attend here at 10 minutes before 11, and he told us the road we were to come; and that was all he said to us.

2621. Nothing passed about the petition?—Nothing at all about the petition.

2622. You never gave anybody authority to sign any petition for you?—Never before this John Atkin came with a petition to me.

2623. Then you signed your own name?—Then I signed my own name.

2624. Have you ever, upon any occasion, authorised any person to sign a petition for you?—No, never; I never authorised any person to sign a petition for me in my life.

2625. Lord Worsley.] Were you asked by any person to sign a petition against the Corn Laws at Armthorpe?—Never.

2626. Did you read this petition when you signed it?—No, I never read the petition I signed at all.

2627. Then you did not know what you were signing?—No; John Atkin told me he came from Mr. Littlewood on account of Potts; he did not say anything more, and I said I had no objection to sign it for Mr. Littlewood.

2628. Mr. Villiers.] Did he tell you it was about the Epworth Petition?—He told me it was about Potts, but I do not know whether he said it was about the Epworth Petition.

2629. That was the first time you ever heard of Potts?—It was the very first time I ever heard speak of him.

2630. Lord Worsley.] Did not you inquire who Potts was, and what he had been doing, or what was the reason they wished you to sign this petition?—I have done since, but not before I signed the petition, because I never knew anything about it before.

2631. Mr. Villiers.] Mr. Littlewood employs several labourers, does not he?—Yes, he employs several labourers.

[The Witness withdrew.

George Dodson, called in; and Examined.

George Dodson.

2632. Chairman.] IS your name George Dodson?—Yes.

2633. Where do you live?—At Cantley.

2634. Have you lived there long?—Yes, all my time.

2635. What are you?—A labouring man.

2636. Can you write your name?—No; not very well, I cannot.

2637. Did you ever sign a petition for the repeal of the Corn Laws?—No.

2638. Did you ever authorise any person to sign one for you?—No.

2639. Can you write your name at all?—No; I cannot make nothing at writing.

2640. Mr. Villiers.] Did you ever sign a petition in your life?—No, never one.

2641. Mr. Darby.] Can you read your name if you see it?—Yes, I can read my name. (The Petition was shown to the Witness, and the name George Dodson pointed out to him). That is my name.

2642. Chairman.] Did you write it?—No.

2643. Mr. Villiers.] What is your Christian name exactly?—George Dodson.

2644. You have two Christian names, have not you?—No; not to my knowledge.

2645. Chairman.] Is there any other person of the name of George Dodson in Cantley, to your knowledge?—No.

2792. Mr. Greene.] How came you just now, in answer to a question put to you, to say that Potts was the man who came to you with the first petition?—I did not know his name when he came to me, but a young man told me.

2793. Did that young man see him with you?—No, he did not see him with me; it was when John Littlewood came round to see if we had signed.

2794. Then, in point of fact, when you say it was Potts, you do not positively know it was Potts who really did come with the first petition?—No.

2795. Mr. Henley.] You spoke of a young man who had signed the petition?—Yes.

2796. What is that young man's name?—Thomas Cooke, and he has a brother, James I think, who signed; the only men in Cantley who did sign.

2806. Mr. Darby.] Who was it brought the petition for you to sign?—John Atkin.

2807. When you signed it, did you know what the petition was for that Atkin brought?—He said it was for to signify that I had not signed the petition that Potts brought.

2810. Can your wife write?—Yes.

2811. Did you hear those men talk about the matter who had signed the petition; those two single men?—I never heard mention about it till John Littlewood came with this paper; I did not know who it was that had signed till he came and the two young men told him they had.

2812. Did the stranger you call Potts show you his petition when he asked you to sign?—No; he had a paper rolled up under his arm and he never opened it.

2813. Did he go up to you as a perfect stranger and say, "Will you sign a paper I have under my arm"?—He came and knocked at the door, and I went to the door to him; I was in the house that night.

2817. You refused because you never do sign papers?—Yes.

2818. He did not say anything about signing for you?—No, he did not say anything about signing for me; he said it was not material; that was what he said.

2820. Did you see anybody that he went to afterwards; did you see him go to any other men?—No, I never saw him go anywhere after; I never saw him again.

2826. You did not hear them speak about it?—No, not till Mr. Littlewood came.

2827. After John Littlewood had come, did you hear them say anything?—No.

2828. Then you never heard them say anything at all about it?—No, only what they said to John Littlewood, that they had signed.

2830. What was it he asked; whether they had signed a petition for the repeal of the Corn Laws?—He axed them if they had signed that paper; they said they had, but they had not written their own names.

2847. These two single men that signed the petition, are they labourers of Mr. Littlewood's?—One worked for him for a twelvemonth or better; but he does not work for him now, and has not worked for him, I should think, for this half year or more.

2848. Has he worked for anybody else?—He is a single man, and has been a good deal out of work lately; he has had a single job now and then, but I do not think he has worked for Mr. Littlewood for six months back.

24 July 1843.

never signed it, and never authorised you to sign it; and that they would not know you by sight, except one of them who saw you?—I cannot make any more of it if I see it.

2883. Do you know anybody of the name of Watkinson?—I do not know that I do at all. I do not know anybody at Armthorpe, except the one I mentioned the other day.

William Watkinson was again called in.

W. Watkinson.

2884. Mr. Darby.] DID you say you saw Samuel Potts when he came?—I saw him once.

2885. You saw the man who had the petition, and that wanted it signed?—Yes.

2886. Mr. Villiers.] Was it you to whom he said it was not material. when you refused to sign it?—Yes.

2887. Mr. Mackenzie.] Is that (pointing to Samuel Potts) the person who came?—I cannot swear to him; I took very little notice of him.

[William Watkinson was directed to withdraw.

Samuel Potts.—I did not understand what he said, when he said it was not material.

2888. Mr. Villiers.] He says he refused to sign the petition, and that you took it away, and said it was not material.—I have no doubt of having seen three or four of them, but I could not pretend to swear to any of them; I have one particularly in my eye, but could not pretend to swear to him positively.

2889. Lord Worsley.] Do you recognise having seen any of the witnesses who have been here to-day at Cantley or Armthorpe?—As far as matter of opinion goes, I do.

2890. You think you saw them before?—Some of them, yes.

2891. Did you observe the oldest man, Battie; did you recollect him?—I have a faint recollection of that man, but I cannot make him out.

2892. Mr. Villiers.] Do you think any of those people told you to sign their names?—I could not be sure, but I know what my opinion is.

2893. Mr. Greene.] What is your opinion?—An opinion does not amount to anything, unless I can swear positively; I cannot swear positively, because I should not do a thing of that sort except I was quite positive.

2894. Give the Committee the best of your knowledge and belief upon the subject?—I am firmly persuaded that there are three, if no more, as far as my opinion goes; but I would not be positive.

2895. Mr. Villiers.] As far as your opinion goes, three you think authorised you to sign their names?—Yes, or signed themselves, as far as my opinion goes; but I will not swear positively.

2896. Mr. Darby.] Which three are they?—I could not say whether they gave me authority or signed themselves.

2897. Which are the three, to the best of your belief, that either signed or gave you authority to sign?—There is one man, I think, rather failing in his eyes; he is one I noticed. I think I remember him, because I remarked that at first.

2898. Is that the old fat man?—He is a tallish man.

John Pinchin was called in.

Samuel Potts.

2899. Chairman] (To Samuel Potts). Is that the man?—Yes.

2900. Mr. Greene.] Would you like to ask John Pinchin any questions upon the subject?—Not at all, because I have no doubt he has been asked questions, and has answered.

2901. Mr. Darby.] What do you think he did?—I said I was not sure; that further than matter of opinion, I could not say anything.

2902. Your opinion is, he did what?—That he might sign or consent; I cannot say that he did or that he did not. I do not say that he did at all; I do not say positively; I only give my opinion. I said I could not pretend to swear to any person, nor I cannot.

2903. Lord Worsley.] Is it your opinion that he gave you authority to sign his name?—It is my opinion.

2904. That he gave you authority?—Yes, or else he signed it himself; but I cannot pretend to be sure.

2905. You told us the other day that you believed his name was in your handwriting?—I cannot say; I do not remember, I am sure.

2906. Mr. Greene.] Do you remember where he was at the time he gave you that authority?—No, I should not remember any place distinctly, except a particular person that I knew.

2907. Mr. Villiers.] Is it near four months ago you were in those parishes?—I should think it would be in April; I do not know; either April or the beginning of May; April I think.

2908. Mr. Greene.] Would you like to see any of the others who have been examined?—No; it is no use calling anybody that I cannot identify; I do not wish to do anything of the sort. I do not want to get any parties into ill-will, because I cannot speak positively, and it might as well be buried in oblivion as not.

2909. Mr. Villiers.] You cannot speak positively as to the identity of any of these witnesses?—No.

[John Pinchin was directed to withdraw.

2910. Mr. Henley.] Did you ever see that man before to-day?—Yes, I think I have seen him before; Oh yes.

2911. You are quite sure of that?—I have not a doubt about it.

2912. Do you know where you saw him?—No, I cannot tell that.

2913. You are sure you have seen him before to-day?—I have not a doubt about it.

2914. Chairman.] Had you any conversation with him when you saw him?—I do not remember.

2915. You remember seeing him, but you do not remember talking to him; am I to understand that that is your answer?—No.

2916. What is your answer?—I said I had not a doubt but he might have signed or given consent, and that I had seen him before.

2917. Where have you seen him?—I cannot tell where I have seen him; it is impossible for me to remember as to all these petitions I have had in my hand, and to speak to any party which you think proper to call forward; I never expected I could; I never dreamt of such a thing.

2918. Mr. Villiers.] Do you mean to tell the Committee you have no distinct recollection of the particular persons who signed these petitions?—Not of these parties, I have not.

2919. Mr. Greene.] Have you seen the six witnesses who have been summoned?—Yes, and have been talking to them.

2920. You understand, from what has been stated to you, that those six witnesses declare they never signed the petition, nor authorised you to sign it. Would you like to have any of those witnesses in for the purpose of examining them upon the subject?—No; it would not amount to anything; because if they have said a thing it is of no use saying it twice over. I do not wish to question them about it at all.

2921. You do not wish to cross-examine them?—No.

2922. Mr. Villiers.] You do not feel yourself in a situation to cross-examine them, from not being sure as to their identity?—No, not being certain.

2923. Lord Worsley.] Are the Committee to understand that you would like to have a copy of the evidence which has been taken to-day, as you had upon the Epworth Petition?—No, I have no occasion, so long as I have been told what they said.

2924. You are asked that question because you were told the last time you were under examination, that if you wished it you should have it?—It is not necessary; I do not require it.

2925. Mr. Henley.] Do you wish any witnesses to be called with respect to the Cantley Petition?—As to recognising them, or any one in the petition?

2926. Mr. Mackenzie.] Do you wish to call any witnesses whatever, for any purpose, with respect to the Cantley Petition yourself?—I wish to bring witnesses to say they have signed the petition.

 2927. Mr.

Samuel Potts.

24 July 1843.

2927. Mr. Villiers.] Have you a copy of the second petition from Cantley?—No.

2928. Mr. Henley.] Whom do you wish to call?—The summonses could not be filled up, because I do not think anybody could find them but myself.

2929. Mr. Mackenzie.] You mean to say you could not summon the witnesses without going down to Cantley?—No; the Chairman gave me that permission the other day. There are the other two petitions; if you are going into them, let it be done all at once, and then I will bring witnesses: I shall have to go down myself.

2930. Chairman.] The witnesses will be here if you will tell us whom you want summoned?—It will be a difficult thing for me to find them.

2931. Other parties will find them if you will inform us whom you want?—I cannot find them without I can make out the name; the name is the great object.

2932. If you will mention the names, the Committee will take care that the witnesses shall be here?—I have not a doubt about it, if I can mention the names; but that is the difficulty about it.

2933. Mr. Villiers.] You think there are some witnesses you would wish to call, if you had an opportunity of getting at their names?—Yes.

2934. Lord Worsley.] To speak to what?—That they either signed the petition, or consented that it should be signed; I do not mean to say these, for that was done in a corner, and there can be no witness against them; I could not bring any witness where there was not one; but I mean people who have signed, and who are in the petition; those people I would bring to identify their names as genuine.

2935. Mr. Villiers.] Are there any persons who signed the petition that did so in the presence of a third party?—In the presence of two or three people, do you mean? Yes.

2936. For your own vindication do you wish to call some of those witnesses?—Yes; if you are going into the other two petitions, I thought it might be done at once; I am sure it cannot be done without my going down.

2937. Those are the people complaining of their names being forged (the counter Petition being shown to the Witness); those people say their names are put to the other petition, and are forged (the Witness looked at the Petition); do you recollect any of the houses of any of those people, or any of their names?—No; because at Armthorpe there was nobody in the houses, they were in the fields; that is where it is; but I can find some of them notwithstanding.

2938. Chairman.] If you will point them out we will summon them?—How many are there, besides what are here, in the other petition?

2939. Mr. Villiers. There are several others in the first petition that have not signed the second?—I have no doubt about some of those signing, but I could not recognise all of them; I can find a part of them, but I could not speak to all.

2940. Chairman.] If you can find one or two, they shall be brought.—They were in the fields; and when people are in the fields, it is a difficult thing to find them afterwards. It was a fine day, in the middle of the afternoon, when I was at Armthorpe, and the people were out.

2941. Mr. Darby.] Nobody has been summoned here except those whose names are upon the second petition?—If those people deny it at all, of course they will deny it here.

2942. There is no person who has been summoned here to prove that his name is forged except his name is down in the second petition; the question is, whether, if you go down to this place, you can find out the residence of those persons, in order to prove that they have put their names to the petition?—If I go down and find out the residence, it would amount to nothing, so long as they deny it in the other petition. If they have denied it there, I do not see what use it is to bring them here to deny it still. If they deny positively in the petition, and say they have not, I cannot make them say one thing or another; they will stick to it abroad; I am sure there is not a question about it.

[The Witness withdrew.

2954. Mr. Darby.] Is that your handwriting (showing the Hatfield Petition to the Witness, and pointing to the name of Thomas Morris)?—That is not mine.

2956. You never heard of it till then?—No.
2957. Chairman.] You never heard of a man called Potts going about Hatfield with a petition at the time, did you?—At the time I did not; not till lately.
2958. Mr. Darby.] You say the first you heard of it was when there was a noise about the Epworth petition?—Yes.
2959. You then heard the first time of Potts being at Hatfield?—Yes; then I heard that he had been at Hatfield.

[The Witness withdrew.

John Kelsey, called in; and Examined.

John Kelsey.

2960. Chairman.] IS your name John Kelsey?—Yes.

2962. What are you?—A small farmer.
2963. Did you ever sign a petition for the repeal of the Corn Laws?—No.
2964. Mr. Darby.] Is there more than one John Kelsey there?—I have a son of the same name.
2965. Does he live with you?—Yes.
2966. Mr. Greene.] What age is he?—He is 22 years of age.
2967. Chairman.] Did he sign any petition for the repeal of the Corn Laws?—No

John Kelsey.

25 July 1843.

—No person never was at our house, and never one of them saw him, to their knowledge.

2968. Mr. Henley.] Can your son write?—Yes.

2969. Mr. Darby.] Do you know his handwriting when you see it?—Yes, I do.

2970. Is that your handwriting (pointing out the Witness's name on the Petition)?—No.

2971. Is it your son's?—No.

2972. Are you sure of that?—Yes, I am.

2973. Chairman.] Did you authorise anybody to sign it for you?—No, not anybody. I never was asked a question of anything of the sort.

2974. Mr. Darby.] Is that your handwriting (pointing to the name of J. Kelsey on the Petition)?—No.

2975. Nor your son's?—No.

2976. Is there a person of the name of Thomas Kelsey in your neighbourhood?—No; not that I know of.

2977. When did you first hear of this petition being about?—Only from a week to 10 days ago. I did not know anything at all about it.

2978. You did not know there had been such a petition till a week or 10 days ago?—No; till the Epworth people had been called up I did not.

2979. Chairman.] You do not know a man of the name of Samuel Potts?—No, I do not; he has been talking to me a bit, but I did not know him, nor no one of the four did.

[The Witness withdrew.

Mr. George Outwin, called in; and Examined.

Mr. G. Outwin.

2980. Chairman.] WHAT is your name?—George Outwin.

2981. Do you reside in Hatfield?—Yes.

2982. What is your business?—A farmer.

2983. Mr. Darby.] Is there any other person of the name of George Outwin in your neighbourhood?—I have a father of the name of George Outwin.

2984. Chairman.] Do you know his handwriting?—Perfectly well.

2985. Did you ever sign a petition for the repeal of the Corn Laws?—Never.

2986. Mr. Darby.] Just look at that signature, and say whether it is your handwriting (pointing to the name George Outwin in the Petition)?—It is not mine, and I could swear it is not my father's; I have lived with him, and he is a man that is infirm, and scarcely capable of signing his name at present.

2987. Mr. Hardy.] Just write your name in the way you usually write it.—(The Witness did so.)

2988. Chairman.] Did you hear of any petition for the repeal of the corn laws being about Hatfield?—Yes.

2989. At what time did you first hear of it?—About a month ago, but I never saw the man.

2990. Did you see a man of the name of Samuel Potts in charge of the petition?—Never in my life.

2991. Was there much talk about a petition going about at the time?—No, I did not hear but very little said of it.

2992. You are well acquainted with Hatfield, are you?—Perfectly well.

2993. And you know no person except yourself and your father of your name?—There is no person in Hatfield parish of that name, excepting myself and my father.

2994. Did you sign a petition to inquire into this circumstance?—I did.

2995. Mr. Henley.] Did your father sign the petition about the inquiry?—No, he did not.

2996. Mr. Greene.] Is that your handwriting (pointing to the Witness's name in the counter Petition)?—Yes, that is my handwriting; I never write my first name with any more than three letters.

2997. Did you put any person's name down to a petition by the desire of the individual?—No.

[The Witness withdrew.

George Crapper.

George Crapper, called in; and Examined.

25 July 1843.

2998. Chairman.] IS your name George Crapper?—Yes.

2999. Do you live at Hatfield in Yorkshire?—Yes.

3000. What are you?—I am a fishmonger.

3001. Is there any one else of that name there?—No.

3002. Are you well acquainted with the place?—I have lived there 50 years and more.

3003. And there is no other person of that name?—No, there is not.

3004. Did you ever sign a petition in favour of the repeal of the corn laws?—No, I do not know that ever I did.

3005. Mr. Greene.] Did you in the course of this year?—No; I was not at home when the man called.

3006. Chairman.] Are we to understand that you did not sign a petition for the repeal of the corn laws?—No, I did not.

3007. Mr. Darby.] You said you were from home when the man called?—Yes.

3008. When you returned, did you hear of a man having called?—My wife told me there had been a man with a thing of the kind, but I never saw the man, and do not know anything about him.

3009. Chairman.] You can write your name, I suppose?—Yes.

3010. Mr. Darby.] Is that your handwriting (pointing to the name of George Crapper in the Petition)?—It is none of my writing; indeed I never saw the man or his paper.

3011. Mr. Greene.] That is not your handwriting?—No.

3012. Mr. Henley.] Did your wife give the man leave to put your name down?—No.

3013. Mr. Greene.] Is that your handwriting (showing the Counter-petition to the Witness, and pointing to his name)?—It is; that I have signed lately.

3014. Chairman.] Did you hear of a man, called Potts, being about Hatfield, from any other information than the man calling at your house?—I never heard his name till I came here; he has been conversing with me and my neighbours, but we did not know him, and did not know what his business was; we were told after he was gone out that it was him, but we did not know him; I never saw the man in my life that I know of.

[The Witness withdrew.

Samuel Potts.

Samuel Potts, called in; and further Examined.

3015. Chairman.] YOU may look at the Hatfield Petition, and if you have any explanation to make about it, or any witnesses you wish to call, the Committee will be glad to hear you; or if you would like to have a copy of the evidence that has been given on the Hatfield petition, say so?—No; I do not know that I should require a copy; but as for witnesses on the Hatfield petition, I should wish either to go, or some one to go with me, and I will bring some, not a few; I will bring a little fair. (The Counter-petition was shown to the Witness.)

Are these the dissatisfied parties?—Mr. Darby.] Yes.

3016. Chairman.] You may look over those names?—I can pick names out of that list. I see one, without any trouble, that I can identify.

3017. What is his name, and the Committee will summon him?—It is no use summoning one or two that I may name; if I go myself, or an officer go with me, I can send plenty.

3018. Mr. Darby.] You say, upon looking at the one petition and comparing it with the other, you see names of parties whom you are prepared to call?—I particularly noticed one name.

3019. Which is that?—(The Witness looked over the Petition.)

3020. Chairman.] The names of the witnesses that have been called, are Thomas Morris, John Kelsey, George Outwin, and George Crapper?—Those are the witnesses that are here to-day; are they on the Hatfield petition?

3021. Chairman.] Yes.—I understood they were on the Epworth petition. It is of no use their telling a story; truth always goes furthest; summon witnesses; I cannot do without going down; you can get an officer to go with me, and I will bring you a good many.

3022. Chairman.] That will not do. You can look at those two petitions and

Samuel Potts.

25 July 1843.

and compare them; we are perfectly ready to call any witnesses that you may desire, and they shall be brought here?—There would be very many in this petition (the Petition for the repeal of the Corn Laws,) that I can find that I can give no name at all.

3023. Mr. Darby.] It is of no use bringing people in the petition who say they have signed; the thing is for you to bring some of those who say they have not signed?—Bring some of those who say they have not signed? then I am not tied to any of the others?

3024. Mr. Henley.] There may be a great many good names who will admit they have signed; the thing is with respect to those who say they have not?—I understand now what you mean. There is one name I do not see, George Crapper. (The Witness looked over the Petition, and the name of George Crapper was pointed out to him). Does Crapper reside in Hatfield?

3025. Yes.—Then I stand to it he gave me consent to sign.

George Crapper, again called in; and Examined.

George Crapper.

3026. Chairman.] (To Samuel Potts.) YOU may put any question to Crapper that you like.

3027. (Samuel Potts.) Mr. Crapper, do you remember meeting me between Hatfield and Doncaster, between Park-lane and Hatfield, with a pony or something on the road?—No; I did not notice you if I did meet you.

3028. Had you a pony?—Yes, I think I had; I have a pony I carry fish on.

3029. You know where Mr. Pilkington lives?—Yes.

3030. Going upon the Doncaster road, the first turn on the right-hand side, do you live up there?—I live near the mill.

3031. You will be able to answer me this question; when you go from Doncaster, the first turn on the right-hand when you get by the six cottage houses, do you live up there on the right-hand side?—Yes.

3032. You do not remember my meeting you, and talking to you?—I do not recollect anything of the kind.

3033. You had a pony with you, I think; I would not be sure, but I think so?—I was either going to Doncaster or Armthorpe; I travelled with fish.

3034. Are you a labourer or a farmer?—I am a fishmonger, and have been a good many years now.

3035. Did you ever gather any manure upon the road?—I may sometimes.

3036. Have you done so within these last 12 months?—Some odd times I may have done so for gardening.

3037. And you do not remember me between Robert Hewitt's and the end of Pilkington's plantation, about 150 yards or 200; you do not remember my talking to you on the highway?—I do not remember you at all; I think you have mistaken the person; I do not remember you a morsel. My wife told me when I got home there had been a person there.

(Samuel Potts.)—I recollect I told your wife I had seen you on the road; I remember that very well.

3038. Mr. Darby to Samuel Potts.] Had you got his consent to put his name down before you called at his house?—Yes, I had.

3039. (To George Crapper.) Is your name over your door?—No.

(Samuel Potts.)—Not that I know, it is not; I had the name from himself.

3040. (To Samuel Potts.) Did you know where his house was?—I was at his house, that was when I was in Hatfield, after I had met him on the road.

3041. Did he tell you where his house was?—No; when I popped upon his house, I did not know that it was his house at all.

3042. Mr. Mackenzie.] How did you find out that it was his house?—Because the mistress told me his name was Crapper, and I says, "Crapper! Is he a relation of one Crapper, a mason?" There is a Crapper, and I think he is your son too (turning to George Crapper).

3043. The question put to you was, how you knew it was his house when you got there?—I cannot say; I did not know it was his house till his mistress told me; I says, "What is your husband's name?" and she says, "Crapper." I says, "Is it George Crapper?" and she says, "Yes." I said, "Is it Crapper that married married Miss Atkinson of Hatfield?" I knew that Crapper well, because we were neighbours; she said, "That is my son." I said, "What is your husband's name?" That was how it came out, and then I found out it was Crapper. George Crapper. 25 July 1843.

Samuel Potts was directed to withdraw.

3044. Mr. Darby.] (To George Crapper.) Whether you saw this man or not, do you remember anybody producing a petition or paper to you when you were on the road?—No.

3045. Are you sure that might not have happened, and you forgotten it?—I do not recollect it; it may have taken place, but I do not know the man, more than he says he saw me so and so.

3046. The question is, whether you will undertake positively to say that that man did not produce a petition to you, and that you did not give your consent that your name should be put to it?—I can so swear, if I were going to die, that nobody came to me.

3047 Mr. Mackenzie.] You never saw him before?—Not that I know of.

3048. Mr. Darby.] Will you undertake solemnly to say, having seen him now, that he did not produce a petition to you, and that you did not give him leave to put your name down?—Yes, I will; I positively declare it, and will swear it if it is necessary.

3049. Mr. Henley.] Did this man, or anybody else, ask your authority to let them sign any paper for you?—No, nothing of the kind that ever I knew of.

3050. Mr. Darby.] But are you certain you did not give authority for your name to be signed?—I am certain I did not. Upon the road we may meet several people.

3051. Mr. Mackenzie.] Did any man meet you and ask you what your name was, and where you lived?—No; no man asked me such a question.

3052. Mr. Darby.] You recollect the day upon which your wife said that somebody had been to your house?—I cannot say the day.

3053. But there was a day upon which your wife said somebody had been to your house?—Yes.

3054. On that day had anybody asked you where you lived and what your name was?—No, nobody.

3055. Are you sure of that?—I am sure of it. I was not at home till evening that day.

[The Witness was directed to withdraw.

Samuel Potts was again called in.

3056. Mr. Darby.] DO you remember that man's face who has just gone out?—I did not know him till I was told to look at the petition, and it was by the name I resembled him, and that brings it to my recollection. Samuel Potts.

3057. Do you now remember his face perfectly?—I would not say I remember his face perfectly; but I am firmly persuaded it is him, and I have not a doubt nor a shadow of a doubt about it.

3058. That he is the man?—That he is the man.

3059. Is that by the name, or by your recollection now of his appearance?—Yes, I believe it is.

3060. Answer the question; the question is, whether it is by the name, or upon your recollection now of the appearance of the man, that you remember him?—It is the appearance of the man; and I have not a question, I say, that it is the man.

3061. Is that opinion formed from your now seeing the man, and your recollection of his appearance at the time you saw him?—Yes; the man makes me more particularly remember the name than any other. When I saw Crapper——

3062. That we will come to afterwards; you can answer, yes or no to this question; the question I wish to ask you now is, whether having seen the man, as you say, upon the road, and having circumstances to call that to your recollection, you now remember the appearance of the man?—I do remember the appearance of the man; I speak without a doubt.

3063. As to the other men which you have seen, is there any other man out of these, as you now call to your recollection the appearance of this man, whom you would know again, if you saw him; do you know any other one of these men by sight?—No; I cannot say I do.

Samuel Potts.

25 July 1843.

3064. Do you know by sight any other one of the witnesses that have been called here upon these petitions, so as to speak to him again from his appearance?—To recognise those that have been here?

3065. Yes.—I could not say.

3066. You have seen them here, and the question is whether there is any one man you can speak to?—Yes, I have seen and spoken to them, but I would not say I could identify them.

3067. You could not identify any but this man?—I could some of them, but not all.

3068. What I ask you is this; out of the rest of the witnesses that you have seen that have been called, is there any other one that you can identify by sight, and if there is, name which it is?—Amongst those that have been here?

3069. Yes; that is a very plain question?—I must have a little time.

3070. Take as much time as you like, but give a direct answer?—I cannot speak to them all; there are some that I can speak to that have been here; I cannot say more.

3071. Will you tell who those are?—There is Hudson; I could not but know him again; and there is his son, young Hudson; I am speaking to people that have been here. There is that man who is the auctioneer, Brunyll, or some such a name. There is another man I could call to mind, with a narrow face, that I could recognise again, but I do not know his name, and there are some more I could tell.

3072. Had this man, Crapper, a pony, or a pony and cart, when you saw him?—I would not be quite sure, but I think it was a pony, and I fancy he was getting manure; I cannot be sure whether it was or was not a pony, or a pony and cart; I am almost sure he had a pony.

3073. If I understand you, you stopped this man in the road?—Yes.

3074. And had a conversation with him?—Yes; I think he was getting manure.

3075. And you had a consent from him to sign the petition?—Yes; that I stand to.

3076. And you stopped talking to him; do you mean to say you do not know whether that man had a pony or a pony and cart when you met him in the road, and spoke to him?—I cannot positively state; but I maintain, to the best of my belief, it was a pony.

3077. You do not know whether he had a pony or a pony and cart?—I cannot tell whether he had a cart or not; I cannot be sure.

3078. You think he was getting manure?—Yes, I think he was.

3079. What was he putting it into; on the pony's back?—I fancy he had some panniers on the pony, but I am not sure; something of the sort that carried it on the pony's back.

3080. Mr. Mackenzie.] Did you see him gather the manure?—I am firmly persuaded he was gathering manure when I was talking to him.

3081. When you went to the cottage of this man, Crapper, what passed between you and his wife?—You have clean done me now altogether as to what passed; something about the name, and so on; the name was Crapper, and I was asking who lived in that house (nodding his head); and I went to the house; I forget what house it was; I do not know whether I inquired further or not about this Crapper, but I asked particularly whether the name was Crapper, because I knew her son; and that causes me to be more positive about this George Crapper.

3082. You asked her what her name was?—Yes, I dare say I did, to the best of my belief. I dare say that was how it was brought about.

3083. And then you asked her if her husband's name was George Crapper afterwards?—Yes. I asked her was he any relation, as I have stated before, of this here son, because I knew him well, because he lived by the side of me.

3084. Chairman.] Do you wish to call any other witnesses?—No, I have no witnesses here to call. I have seen the men, but I can only speak to Crapper. I can remember Crapper well.

3085. In looking carefully at that paper before you (the Counter-petition), are there any names there that you wish to call. You understand that the people who have signed that paper declare that their names are forged to the petition which you carried about Hatfield?—Yes, I understand you. I could form a better idea by the petition than by this paper. There is Thomas Morris.

I wish

I wish his name could be found.—(The name was pointed out to the Witness on the Petition.)—There is James Savage. I can tell better by the petition than I can by this paper.—(The name of James Savage was pointed out to the Witness on the Petition for the repeal of the Corn Laws.)—I cannot remember whether it is his own writing or not. I cannot speak to it.

3086. Mr. Mackenzie.] There is another James Savage in the petition?—I cannot tell only by their houses. I cannot remember them unless I see their houses, and where they live.

3087. Chairman.] Take care what you say. Are you ready on your solemn word to declare that that last name you looked at, Savage, on the Hatfield petition, is not in your handwriting?—Yes.

3088. You declare that that is not in your handwriting?—It is not in my handwriting.

3089. Mr. Henley.] Who wrote it?—A person that gave his name James Savage wrote it himself.

3090. Did you see him write it?—I must have seen him.

3091. Did you see him?—I saw the person that wrote that name.

3092. Who was it that wrote it?—I cannot answer; it is not likely that I can, in looking at a petition like this, considering the number of petitions I have had.

3093. Answer the question; you say you saw a person write that name; I ask who was it that wrote it?—I cannot answer that question.

3094. Where was it written?—It would be written either in Hatfield or Hatfield Woodhouse, I cannot say which.

3095. You say you saw a man write it, but you cannot tell who it was?—Unquestionably.

3096. Chairman.] Was it written in a house or out of doors?—I cannot tell that.

3097. You stated just now that you had a perfect recollection of a person having written that name; I ask you upon your solemn word, from the recollection you have, was that name written in a house or was it written out of doors?—I cannot tell, but if you want any witnesses, if you will give me summonses I will fetch you some, and a good lot of genuine ones.

3098. Mr. Mackenzie.] In that petition (The Counter-petition being shown to the Witness)?—No; very likely these people might have been in the fields; if they were in the houses, I may find them, but I cannot if they were in the fields.

3099. Mr. Henley.] There may be many good names in the petition, and it is of no use bringing them up; the question is, can you bring up any persons who have signed against you?—If those people have signed in their houses, then I could bring some of them, but I could not without, if they have signed in the fields.

3100. Chairman.] Do you know who signed in the fields, and who signed in the houses?—I know a good deal better those that signed in the houses; I know whereabouts they have pitched their tents, I can find a decent lot of them; I think I can find a good many; I think I can try to find nine or ten farmers one after another in that petition (pointing to the Petition for the repeal of the Corn Laws).

3101. You are not asked about that petition, you are asked with reference to the names in the other petition?—I cannot speak to any of them, because I do not know but the one I have mentioned, and I am glad it has so happened that the person is here, because the name I abide by and stand to; I am very glad indeed the person is here, but I cannot say anything more.

3102. Mr. Darby.] What time of day was it that you met Crapper?—I do not know, but I should think, to the best of my belief, it would be perhaps 10, or it might be 11.

3103. Ten in the morning?—Ten or eleven; it would be in the fore part of the day.

3104. Which way was he going when you met him?—I cannot say; I believe he was getting manure.

3105. Which way was he going?—He appeared to be going in the direction he has stated, for Armthorpe and Doncaster; they are both in one road, and he was in the right road for either, and I believe his pony's head was that way. I cannot

Samuel Potts.

25 July 1843.

cannot speak as to a cart, but I think there were panniers or something on the pony's back.

3106. Mr. Mackenzie.] You saw him put manure into whatever he had?—I saw him gather it up.

3107. Mr. Darby.] Did you know this man before?—Oh no; it was by giving me his name that I could speak to him, because there was not another person to ask; there was not another person about, that I know of.

3108. Then he told you his name?—Yes, or else I should never have known it.

3109. Mr. Mackenzie.] Did you say to him you knew his son?—Yes, I dare say I did; I do not doubt that I did.

3110. Mr. Darby.] What sort of pony is his; what is the colour of it?—I cannot tell any more than that chair.

3111. Was the man dressed as he is now?—No.

3112. How was he dressed?—Now you have come again to a point I cannot speak to.

3113. It is very simple?—My memory fails.

3114. Mr. Mackenzie.] How do you know he was not dressed as he is now?—I do know that; I remember him.

3115. Was he not so well dressed?—No, he was not; and he was but a very short distance off of Pilkington's plantation end when I seed him and spoke to him, and stopped talking with him for 10 minutes I dare say.

3116. Mr. Darby.] Did you write his name down at the time?—I am sure I forget whether I did or not; I cannot say particularly.

3117. Do you make it a habit to write people's names down at night that you get in the day-time?—Oh no.

3118. Then, did you write his name down then?—I cannot answer that question whether I did or not.

3119. You will not say within what time you wrote it; did you write it that day?—It could not be long first, but I warrant he gave me leave.

3120. Do you know whether you wrote his name the same day or not?—I am sure I wrote it the same day, and not many minutes after, if not before his face.

3121. Mr. Mackenzie.] Did you write it before you went to the cottage?—Yes; I never seed him again.

3122. Mr. Henley.] You are quite sure you wrote it before you went to his cottage?—I have not the shadow of a doubt about it. It happens very fortunately, and I feel glad to think I have named one that is here, and that happens to be the one; that I can maintain for a truth, that he signed the petition, though he denies it.

3123. Mr. Darby.] You say he signed the petition?—If a man gives me consent it is the same thing.

3124. You do not mean to say that is his writing?—No; I admitted it was my handwriting at first; but then, at the same time, if he consents, am I not justified in saying he signed it?

3125. If he says he did not give you authority, and you say he did give you authority, one of the two must tell a lie?—I know one of us must tell a lie; but I will stand to it, if it is the last word I have to speak. I am not going to shrink from the man when I know he has given me consent; and I said it before his face. I do not want to creep behind his back; I maintain it for a truth. There is no doubt about it, because I know the man did consent to sign it.

3126. He having given you consent, and you having signed the petition before you went to his house, what did you go to his house for?—How did I know it was his house? I went to many people's houses whom I met in the streets; for why? because I did not know them.

3127. Mr. Darby.] If you knew Crapper by sight, and you had seen him out here, how came you to mention him just now as one of the witnesses you should wish to go down and summons. When you were asked for the names of the witnesses you wished to call, you said if you could go down you could find them, but you never mentioned that Crapper was a man you had seen here?—I did not know he was the man till you told me yourself, or one of the other gentlemen.

3128. Did you not, when you saw him in the passage, know him to be the man you had seen and had had the conversation with?—No, I did not.

3129. Mr.

Samuel Potts.

25 July 1843.

3129. Mr. Mackenzie.] When did you find out it was the same man?—By his name, and by the Committee, I found out it was him. I was firmly persuaded I had seen him, but did not know where.

3130. And the moment we told you it was George Crapper, then you remembered quite well it was the man you met in the road?—Yes; and having seen him, called him to my recollection; that was where it was. I looked at this man and knew I had seen him somewhere, but could not tell whether he had signed the petition or not; and when I mentioned the name of George Crapper, you said he was here; that was where it was.

[The Witness was directed to withdraw.

George Crapper was again called in.

George Crapper.

3131. Mr. Darby.] AT what time did you return home that night, when you heard from your wife that a man had been at your house?—It might be about four o'clock.

3132. In the afternoon?—Yes.

3133. At what time had you left your house that morning?—About 10, I think.

3134. How far is Pilkington's plantation from your house?—Three hundred yards perhaps, where it begins; it runs about three quarters of a mile in length, or nearly, on the roadside.

3135. Does Pilkington's plantation run for three quarters of a mile?—Nearly so.

3136. Do you go to Doncaster for fish?—No; I travel in the neighbouring towns, Armthorpe, Sandall, and Barnby Dunn.

3137. Do you take the fish from your own house?—Yes.

3138. Do you remember what you went from your own house that morning at ten o'clock for; were you going with fish, or for any other purpose that day?—It was with fish, if I had anything; but I do not recollect seeing this man at all.

3139. Just answer the question plainly; you say you recollect returning home at four o'clock that night?—Some time about four.

3140. Do you know what you had gone out for that day; what to do?—With fish; I take nothing else out.

3141. Do you take your fish in panniers?—Yes.

3142. Can you be sure that you did go to carry out fish that day?—Yes, I should take nothing else out. It must be four or five months ago.

3143. When you collect manure, how do you collect it?—I have a pair of old panniers, which I take; I pick a little up now and then, for the use of gardening, and so on, when I have nothing else to do.

3144. Can you undertake to say, returning at four o'clock that day on which you heard from your wife that a man had been at your house, you had been taking out fish, and that you had not been collecting manure that day?—I was taking out fish; I am most positive of that, because I should take nothing else out.

3145. If you collect manure on some days, you might have been collecting manure that day, instead of taking out fish?—Yes; but I was taking out fish that day that she told me a man had been. I do not know that ever I saw the man, or met him.

3146. Mr. Mackenzie.] Did you meet any man upon the road that day?—Many; it is a very public road.

3147. Did any man stop and speak to you that you did not know?—No, I do not recollect anybody.

3148. Did any man stop and speak to you about your son?—No.

3149. Near Pilkington's plantation end?—No. He mentioned to my wife that he knew the name. I have a son apprenticed at Doncaster.

3150. Mr. Darby.] The question asked you is this, whether you are quite sure that near Pilkington's plantation no person stopped you, and asked you about your son, and told you he knew him?—No; I am certain of that.

3151. Can you solemnly declare it?—Yes, I can.

3152. Mr. Mackenzie.] Are those your ordinary clothes that you have on now?—No; I wear a blue smock when I travel. I have a coat similar to this, nearly the same colour, but I wear a blue smock.

 3153. What

George Crapper.

25 July 1843.

3153. What did your wife say about this man, when you came home?—When we were getting our tea, she said there had been a man wanted me to sign a paper. I said, "What was it about?" and she said he came in and said, "Mistress, do you like cheap bread?" "Aye, to be sure," she says; he says, "Where is master?" she says, "He is from home." He says, "What do you call your master?" and she told him; and he says, "Why, I know something of that name;" says he, "I know a young man at Doncaster of that name."

3154. Did she tell you she had seen him write anything on a paper?—She said he laid a paper on the table under the window, and he looked out at the door, and said, "You seem to have some respectablish houses about here; who lives at that house?" and she told him. "Who lives at that house?" and she told him; and he looked out and says, "There are two or three houses up so and so, who lives there?" and she mentioned one or two that was there; and he says, "I am only just putting down their names in remembrance, that I may call on them when I come again; it will be rather easier for me."

3155. He wrote the names on that piece of paper?—He wrote the names upon something; but I did not ask her what he wrote them on.

3156. Mr. Henley.] Is your wife in good health?—Not very good.

3157. Mr. Mackenzie.] Is she an old woman?—She is in her 70th year.

3158. Mr. Hardy.] What are the names of the people living at those opposite houses you have spoken of?—One they call Moore, and another Taylor.

3159. Mr. Mackenzie.] Is that man's name William Taylor?—John Taylor.

3160. Do you know William Taylor?—I know a William Taylor that lives in the town; this is what we call Hatfield Lings, half a mile out of the town.

3161. Mr. Darby.] Does Stones live near you?—No, he lives more in the town.

3162. What are the people's names, do you recollect, that your wife told him?—I never asked her.

3163. Does Richard Kitchin live near you?—No, in the town.

3164. Does Schoeley live near you?—There is a Schoeley, a farmer for Mr. Pilkington, that lives about a mile from me.

3165. Who lives near you, in such houses as your wife could point out from the door?—John Taylor, and there is William Moore; they are labouring men.

3166. Is William Moore's one of the houses you could point out from your door?—Yes.

3167. Does Roads live near him?—No; there is not one of that name in the town, I think.

3168. Is your wife well enough to travel?—Yes, if she had a proper conveyance, by railway, or coach, or anything of that kind.

3169. Mr. Hardy.] Is there a Joseph Crapper in your neighbourhood?—No; there is none of my name in Hatfield but myself. I have a son lives at Thorne.

3170. What is his name?—Charles; he is steward of one of the steam-packets, and has been for 20 years.

3171. Mr. Villiers.] You have no recollection of having seen that man Potts, who says he met you on the road?—No.

3172. You might have seen him without knowing him?—I might have seen him. I pass numbers of people on the road; it is a very public road.

3173. He might have spoken to you without your remembering it at this distance of time?—He might, without my taking notice of him. I cannot say; but I do not remember the man at all.

3174. Your wife can write, cannot she?—Yes.

3175. Does she ever go to market?—She used to go formerly, but she is getting old and infirm now; she is 70 years of age, and I am 73.

[The Witness withdrew.

[The Witness wrote his name.]

3225. Did you sign the other petition for an inquiry into this proceeding, Mr. Newsom's petition?—Yes. I did not know anything of it till Mr. Newsom came to me and asked me.

3241. Mr. Darby.] Did you see anybody about with a petition against the corn laws?—I do not know if I were sworn, whether I did see a man or not; it is a long time ago if there has been one.

3342. Chairman.] Do you know a man of the name of Potts?—No, I do not.

3243. Had you any conversation with anybody about repealing the corn laws; did any person ask you to sign a petition to that effect?—Yes; there was a man axed me if I would do it.

3244. Should you know the man if you were to see him again?—I would not swear to the man; I do not know that I should.

3245. Mr. Darby.] You say you did see a man?—There was a man.

3246. Is it that you heard of a man being there, or did you see him yourself?—There was a man, I believe.

3247. Did he ask you to sign the petition?—Yes.

3248. Chairman.] What did he say to you?—He axed me if I would, and I said I could not; and he axed me if I would give him leave, and I said No; I said I would not give him leave.

3249. You refused to give him leave?—I said I would not give him leave.

3250. Did you see him write your name down after that?—No, I do not know that I did.

3251. Did anybody come to you with another petition afterwards, Mr. Newsom?—Mr. Newsom came.

3252. Mr. Greene.] You saw Mr. Newsom, did you?—Yes; I saw him twice.

3253. What did Mr. Newsom tell you?—He axed me if I had given this man leave to sign my name, and I told him no.

3254. Did he say anything to you about signing another petition?—I have a petition in my pocket; this has come lately.

3255. Did Mr. Newsom ask you whether you had signed another paper?—No; I do not know that he did.

3256. Chairman.] Did you give Mr. Newsom leave to sign a paper for you?—Yes, I did do that.

3257. Mr. Greene.] You did not write your own name?—No.

3258. But desired him to write it for you?—Yes.

3259. Did you understand what that paper was about?—Something about the corn laws.

3260. What about the corn laws?—I do not know; it was a free trade, I understood.

3261. The paper that Mr. Newsom brought you?—The repeal of the corn laws I think he stated to me.

Thomas Priestley.

26 July 1843.

3262. Mr. Newsom?—Yes.

3263. The paper you were to send up to town with your name to it was for the repeal of the corn laws, was it?—No; he axed me if I had signed a paper of that sort.

3264. Chairman.] What sort of a paper did you authorise Mr. Newsom to sign for you?—A little book that was going about in the village.

3265. Did he tell you what the object of it was?—Yes.

3266. What did he say to you?—I cannot say, particularly, just now; it is a good bit since, now; but I gave him leave to write it to the contrary, that I did not give this man leave.

3267. Mr. Greene.] Should you know the man again if you were to see him?—No, I do not know that I should.

3268. Chairman.] Have you seen him outside the door?—I do not know.

[The Witness withdrew.

Christopher Langfield, called in; and Examined.

C. Langfield.

3269. Chairman.] IS your name Christopher Langfield?—Yes.

3270. Do you live at Barnby Dunn?—Yes.

3271. Are you a labourer?—Yes.

3272. Do you remember any man coming about Barnby Dunn with a petition for the repeal of the corn laws?—I recollect my mistress telling me about a man coming about, but I never recollect seeing him.

3273. You did not see him?—No.

3274. Can you write your name?—No, I am no scholar.

3275. Did you authorise either your mistress or anybody else to give him your name?—No; I do not recollect ever seeing the man, and never authorised no man to set my name down at all.

3276. That you are quite sure of?—Yes.

3277. You say you cannot write?—No, I cannot write at all.

3278. Is there any other person of the name of Christopher Langfield, except yourself, who lives in Barnby Dunn?—No, I do not know such a name, only myself.

3279. How long have you resided there?—I came there last Martinmas.

3280. Are you hired by the year?—Yes, I am a labourer, and live in the house by the year.

3281. Do you live with a farmer?—No, I am working with Mr. Durham.

3282. Did anybody else come to you with another petition afterwards?—Mr. Newsom.

3283. Did he tell you what it was for?—Yes, he asked me if ever I signed my name to a man coming about, and I said, "No, I never had."

3284. Did you authorise him to sign your name to the other petition?—Mr. Newsom took my name down.

3285. With your consent?—Yes.

3286. Mr. Gibson.] Have you authorised any one to sign your name to any petition?—No, I never authorised only Mr. Newsom, who came round after this other man had been; he came round to see who had signed and who had not.

3287. Then you authorised Mr. Newsom?—Yes, he asked me, and he took my name down. I said he was to do as he pleased.

3288. What are you?—I am a labouring man.

3289. Upon the land?—Yes; I have been working along with Mr. Durham this summer.

3290. Are you ever employed by Mr. Newsom?—No, I never have been. I only came into the town of Barnby Dunn this last Martinmas.

3291. You have come in recently?—Yes.

3292. What did Mr. Newsom say to you?—He did not say anything, only he asked me if there had been a man about petitioning. I told him I did not know anything about it, I had never seen him; and he said he understood he had got my name down, and I told him I had never authorised him to put my name down, for I had never seen the man; and he asked me if I was ready for him to sign my name down to his paper, and I told him, "Yes, he might set it down to his paper." He never said anything more; I never authorised

C. Langfield.

26 July 1843.

no man such as this to set my name down; I never saw the man, and never knew nothing about it.

3293. Might a man have been thrown out of employment if he had signed the other petition?—If I had signed the other petition, I do not know what I should have done, I am sure; he did not say nothing, but there are many of them that would have been.

3294. That would have been thrown out of employment?—Yes.

3295. Then you thought it better to let the other petition alone?—Yes; I did not know what would be the consequences of it, and I have never seen the man, and never knew nothing about it, so that I could not have signed.

3296. Are you a married man?—Yes.

3297. Was the man at your house?—Yes; I recollect my mistress saying there had been a man about, but I was not at home, I was at my work, and I did not see nothing of him.

3298. Did she give any authority to the man to take your name down?—No; she said he asked what they called me, and if I was in; she said no, I was at work, and he said he might come another day, and I never saw the man at all.

[The Witness withdrew.

Thomas Mapplebeck, called in; and Examined.

T. Mapplebeck.

3299. Chairman.] WHAT is your name?—Thomas Mapplebeck.

3300. Do you live at Barnby Dunn?—Yes.

3301. How long have you been living there?—All my lifetime.

3302. You are well acquainted with the place?—Yes.

3303. Do you know any other person of your name there?—No; there is no other person of the name there.

3304. Did you ever sign a petition for a repeal of the corn laws?—No; I was working two miles off when he came to our house, and my wife told him she should not consent to no such a thing; and he took the name off the sign over the door.

3305. What is your business?—A collar and harness maker. It would have been like to throw me out of employment altogether. I should never have attempted if I had been at home to do such a thing; it would have played the deuce with me almost.

3306. You can write your name, cannot you?—Yes.

3307. Just write it down.—(The Witness wrote his name down.)

3308. Mr. Darby.] How many Mapplebecks are there; is there a Benjamin?—Yes, he is my brother; a labourer.

3309. Who is Isaac?—He is a nephew of mine.

3310. Where were you at work the day on which the man called?—At Mr. Roads's, on Barnby Dunn Common, about a mile out of Barnby Dunn, between Barnby Dunn and Hatfield.

3311. At what time did you go there in the morning to work?—At six o'clock.

3312. And when did you get home to hear of this?—About nine at night.

3313. Chairman.] Did you ascertain at what time this person had called at your house?—It would be about 11 to half past, I think, when he called; I looked at my book yesterday to see when I booked my work, to tell what time it was.

3314. Mr. Darby.] Are you quite sure that the day you heard of his having been at your house was the day you were at work at Mr. Roads's?—Yes; it was the 11th of April.

3315. How do you know that the day he called was the 11th of April?—Because I set my work down when I got home at night, and my mistress told me there had been a man of that description, and she would not give consent to sign; and she said she saw him writing and standing in the middle of the road, and looking up at my board, and he saw the name over the door.

3316. Is the name over your door "Mapplebeck," or "Thomas Mapplebeck"?—"Thomas Mapplebeck, Collar and Harness Maker." I never saw the man in my life before I saw him just now.

3317. Chairman.] Will you look at that petition (the Petition for the Repeal of the Corn Laws being shown to the Witness) and say whether that is your

T. Mapplebeck.

26 July 1843.

your signature or not; did you write it?—No, that I did not; I never wrote like that.

3318. Did you authorise anybody to write it for you?—No; never.

3319. Mr. Gibson.] You say your wife would not give consent for your name to be put down?—No; she would not give consent at all, and he went away and stood in the middle of the street writing, and looking up at my sign.

3320. Mr. Mackenzie.] She told you so?—Yes.

3321. Mr. Gibson.] What reason did she give for not giving her consent?—Because I told her if anybody came, she was not. We heard it was going about, and my bread lay entirely among farmers; it would have been throwing me out of employment altogether if I had done a thing of that sort.

3322. You were afraid of losing your employment if you signed the petition?—I should have lost it altogether.

3323. Then if you had signed the petition you would not have wished it to be known that you signed it?—No; but I never did such a thing.

3324. But if you had signed it, you would not have wished it to be known?—If I had signed it, I should have let it stood so; I should not have done nothing about it. He called at the time, but I was not at home, and do not know anything about him.

3325. Do you hear that many of those who signed the petition are unwilling that it should be known?—No, I do not think so. This publican, Dawson, he took his name off of his sign, and he did not give consent, and others were not at home, they were working.

3326. When did you sign Mr. Newsom's petition?—About Monday or Tuesday in July, I know; it was our feast; it was Tuesday, I remember now, when I signed that of Mr. Newsom's.

3327. Are you employed by Mr. Newsom?—Yes; I work for all the men and gentlemen within three or four miles round.

3328. Is Mr. Newsom one of your best customers?—No, I have some more as good as him; he is like the head man in Barnby Dunn.

[The Witness withdrew.

Robert Simpson Parish, called in; and Examined.

R. Simpson Parish.

3329. Chairman.] IS your name Robert Parish?—Robert Simpson Parish.

3330. Do you live in Barnby Dunn?—Yes.

3331. What are you?—A publican.

3332. Do you know any other person of the name of Robert Simpson Parish there except yourself?—No.

3333. How long have you resided in Barnby Dunn?—I came the 25th of April before last; I have been there about a year and a half.

3334. Did you ever sign any petition for the repeal of the corn laws?—No.

3335. Can you write your name?—Yes.

3336. Mr. Darby.] Have you seen the man called Samuel Potts outside?—Yes.

3337. Was he ever at your house?—Yes.

3338. Did he ever ask you to sign any petition?—Yes, he did.

3339. Did you authorise him to put your name down?—No, I did not.

3340. Are you quite sure of that?—I am sure of it; he never opened the petition at all in our house.

3341. The question is not whether he opened the petition, but whether you told him he might put your name down to it?—I did not.

3342. Mr. Mackenzie.] Did you tell him he should not do it?—I told him I would have nothing to do with it; that I was getting my livelihood partly from the farmers.

3343. Mr. Darby.] Will you undertake to say you did not tell him that he might put your name down, but that he was not to do it till he got out of the town?—No; I am sure I did not.

3344. Will you undertake to say you said nothing of the kind to him?—I said nothing of the kind.

3345. Will you undertake to say that you did not tell him that you were afraid it should be known if your name was put to the petition?—Yes.

3346. Then if he has said you gave him leave to put your name down when he got out of the place, so that it could not be seen, he has said what is untrue?—

R. Simpson Parish.

26 July 1843.

untrue?—I never did nothing of the kind, and he never opened the petition, nor nothing of the kind.

3347. The question is not whether he opened the petition, but whether you gave him leave, when he got out of the place, to put your name down?—No, I did not.

3348. That you are quite certain of?—I am quite certain of it.

3349. Chairman.] Did he ask you for permission to put your name down?—Yes, he did.

3350. And you refused?—I refused.

3351. Mr. Greene.] Is there any R. Parish in the place?—No; not in Barnby Dunn there is not.

3352. Mr. Darby.] In what part of Barnby Dunn is your public-house?—It is the furthest house in Barnby Dunn.

3353. Mr. Mackenzie.] Nearest Doncaster?—No, the other end, next to the bridge.

3354. Mr. Gibson.] You keep a public-house?—Yes.

3355. Are the farmers pretty good customers of yours?—They sometimes come in.

3356. If it had been known that you had signed a petition of this kind, it might have been injurious to you?—I do not know I am sure.

3357. You said so just now, did not you?—I would not say the farmers in general, but the low class of farming men generally come to my house. There are three other inns besides mine in Barnby Dunn.

3358. Then it would be easier for people to withdraw their custom from your house and go to another, if you did anything to give offence to them, would it not?—Yes.

3359. That might have been the case if you had signed the petition?—I consider so.

Samuel Potts was again called in.

Samuel Potts.

3360. Mr. Darby.] (To Robert Parish.) IS that the man that called at your house (pointing to Samuel Potts)?—Yes.

3361. (To Samuel Potts.) You spoke of a Robert Parish who kept a public house near the bridge at Barnby Dunn, did you not?—Yes, R. Parish.

3362. Is that the man (pointing to the other Witness)?—I am not quite certain, but I think it is.

3363. At any rate he was the keeper of the public-house near the bridge?—Yes; but I think the evidence of the two should be taken privately, if you have no objection.

3364. What do you mean by being taken privately?—Take his evidence, and then take mine.

3365. Mr. Mackenzie.] We have got his evidence?—But he is here to hear everything I have to say now; and an intimation from the Committee might have a tendency to strengthen my memory.

Robert Parish was directed to withdraw.

Samuel Potts.—I understand now that this man is a publican at Barnby Dunn. I thought if you had taken his evidence and heard what I had to say on the matter, I would have asked him a few questions myself.

3366. Mr. Darby.] We will hear what you have to say?—I cannot be quite positive, but it is my firm opinion that that is the man.

3367. You stated that the man you saw was at a public-house near the bridge at Barnby Dunn; is not that so?—Yes; he was in the house when he gave me permission.

3368. The Robert Parish that you spoke of, you told us the other day kept a public-house near the bridge at Barnby Dunn?—That was where I got the name of Parish, at the public-house near the bridge at Barnby Dunn.

3369. Did Robert Parish sign the petition himself?—No, he did not.

3370. But he gave you permission to sign it?—Yes.

3371. But you were not to sign it till you had got out of the town, so that nobody could see it; was not that what you stated?—Yes, till I got out of the way of the farmers; I said so before, and say so still.

Samuel Potts.

26 July 1843.

3372. And you said you left a space, you thought, in the petition, to put that name down?—A vacancy, yes.

3373. Mr. Gibson.] Did he tell you he was afraid of losing some of his customers if he signed the petition?—I think, if I remember right, he put one of his hands out and said, "I durst not sign." I knew his situation. I said, "You get your living amongst farmers;" and he said, "Yes; I am not against the thing." I says, "If you will give me consent, I will put it down by and by." "Well," he says, "I will give you leave to put it down, but mind the farmers;" because that was the way he got his bread. I am firmly persuaded he is the man, though I would not take an oath of it.

3374. Mr. Mackenzie.] Did you promise to him not to divulge his name?—I do not remember whether I did or did not; not in Barnby Dunn; no, I do not remember whether I did or not.

3375. Had you known the man before?—No; I knew the house by calling at it, but I did not know the man; a man of the name of Bedford lived at it when I used to go through Barnby Dunn.

3376. Mr. Darby.] Do you know a man of the name of Mapplebeck by sight?—I am not quite certain.

3377. He is a very remarkable-looking man?—I cannot speak positively; I could not recognize him again, nor I could not recognize Parish again; I thought I should have known Parish again, but I did not.

3378. Do you know the collar-maker's?—I know a collar-maker lived where I got the name, at the entering of Barnby Dunn; the first row of houses, the endmost house. I think there would be six or seven cottages perhaps, and his is the endmost house.

3379. He is a collar-maker, is he?—Yes.

3380. Can you say whether the man you have seen outside is the man?—The man that belonged to that cottage-house was not in, but there was a Mapplebeck in that gave me consent to sign his name.

3381. Mr. Mackenzie.] There was a man in?—Yes, a man and a woman; I did not know what she was, and I do not know whether she had not a child; the Mapplebeck that belonged to the house was not in.

3382. But there was another Mapplebeck there?—Yes, and a relative, I fancy; he gave his name Mapplebeck, and it was signed in the petition.

3383. Where did you get the other Mapplebecks' names; there are three in the petition?—I cannot tell; I think there are more than three Mapplebecks in Barnby Dunn.

3384. Mr. Darby.] There is a sign over this man's door, is there not?—Yes.

3385. And the name is written up?—Yes.

3386. And you remember it?—Yes; I remember the name of Parish well.

3387. The question is not as to Parish, but Mapplebeck?—Yes.

3388. You know the name over the door of the collar-maker's?—Yes.

3389. Did the Mapplebeck that wrote this name down, write his own name?—He did not write his own name.

3390. Did he write his relative's name?—No, he did not; he wrote no name at all.

3391. Then who wrote it?—This man's name was wrote by me.

3392. Did you write the name of the man who kept the shop, whose name was over the door, or his relative's name?—I cannot speak to that.

3393. Did you think it a matter of no importance whether or not you wrote the man's name who was near you; the question is, whether you wrote the man's name who kept the shop, whose name was over the door, or his relative's name?—The man that gave his name, his relative's name, of course.

3394. Then you never wrote the man's name whose name was over the door?—I cannot say whether I did or did not.

3395. Do you remember seeing him?—I might see him in Barnby Dunn, and not see him in his own house.

3396. Did you write all the names of Mapplebeck?—If you let me look at the petition, I will tell you. (The Petition was shown to the Witness).

3397. There are Benjamin Mapplebeck, Thomas Mapplebeck, and Isaac Mapplebeck; is that your writing (pointing to the name of Thomas Mapplebeck in the Petition)?—I cannot speak positively whether it is or not. There is one of the Mapplebecks signed, that I signed for in that house; that I maintain; I almost fancy that is the man, but I cannot be sure. I cannot tell whether it is that or the other.

3398. You say the man was not at home that the shop belonged to?—No, the man that belonged to the house, or shop, was not at home.

3399. Then you did not sign Thomas Mapplebeck there?—No, if he keeps that house, I did not sign Thomas Mapplebeck there; if he is the householder, I did not sign his name there, and I do not say I signed it at all.

3400. Have you had any conversation with Thomas Mapplebeck this morning?—All the conversation that I had with him was, I asked if there was a Thomas Mapplebeck there which was a witness. I said, "I think that is the man." I pointed him out, and he said, "Yes, I am the man:" I think that was all that passed. They can bear witness to the truth.

3401. You have pointed him out this morning?—They can bear proof I said, "I think that is the man; that is a Mapplebeck;" or something to that effect; and I do not doubt that they will confirm what I say, because I asked if there was a Thomas Mapplebeck there, and they said Yes; and I think, if I am not mistaken, I pointed my finger and said, "I think that is a Mapplebeck," 3402. If you knew the man to point him out this morning, can you say where you had seen him: did you see him or not at Barnby Dunn on that day?—I would not say this is the same person, because he was differently dressed.

3403. If you think he is the same person, where did you see him?—In this Mapplebeck's house, the collar-maker, that you are talking of, by the fireside; and, if I am not mistaken, I think he had on a blue smock frock.

3404. Mr. Mackenzie.] How do you know the householder was not at home?—Because, when I asked the name, the woman or himself told me the master was not at home. I said, "Here is a man; that is enough if you eat bread; will you give me your consent?"

3405. If you were told that the Thomas Mapplebeck who has been here to-day is the householder, what would you say?—I could not say he was the person that gave me leave. I am not speaking positively, because I say there was a man with a blue smock frock; he was at his house, and he was a relative; he told me so himself. That was how I got to know he did not belong to the house; something to that effect.

3406. Mr. Darby.] The question is this: you have signed three Mapplebecks names?—I did not say that I did. There are three Mapplebecks down.

3407. Did you, when you went out of Mapplebeck's shop, take any name down which was over his house?—No, not to my knowledge.

3408. Will you undertake to say that you did not copy the name down from Mapplebeck's board, which was over his shop?—Yes.

3409. You will undertake to say you did not?—Yes.

3410. Positively?—Yes; because I knew the name, and had done for years; I had seen it over the door scores of times. I have been by on horseback and on foot, and seen it scores of times over the door.

3411. What did you point out this man as, to-day; as a person you had not seen in the shop, or that you had seen in the shop?—I told you I was not sure. I am not sure yet; I cannot speak positively; but, from the bulk of the person and his face, I fancy he resembles the person that was. I could not speak positively, but he certainly was a Mapplebeck, and he was sitting in the house as though he was the owner; and how I got to know he was not the owner was by his saying, "Master is not in;" and I said to him what I have said before; and, if I am not mistaken, he had on a blue smock frock; and there was a woman in, and I am not quite sure whether she had not a child in her arms.

3412. Did you have any conversation with that woman?—No.

3413. Not a word?—I dare say it was her that might have told me the master of the house was not at home.

3414. Had you any conversation with that woman on the subject of the petition?—No, not to my knowledge; nothing passed but what passed before him and me; she might have a word in, I cannot be responsible for the words she spoke.

3415. Chairman.] The question is, yes or no, had you any conversation with her?—No, not to my knowledge I had not.

3416. Mr. Darby.] Was the principal conversation with the woman or the other Mapplebeck?—The man that was in the house, the Mapplebeck.

3417. What was the man doing who was in the house?—He was not doing anything, he was sitting in a chair.

Samuel Potts.
26 July 1843.

3418. What aged man was he?—I should take him to be nearly 40 years of age; but I cannot speak to the man's age I am sure; I should take him to be the good end 40 years of age when I saw him.

3419. Then which of the three Mapplebecks is the name you put down; Benjamin, Isaac, or Thomas (the Witness looked at the Petition)?—I am not quite sure, but I fancy that (pointing to the name of Thomas Mapplebeck).

3420. Mr. Mackenzie.] Did you write either of the other two also?—No, I cannot say that I did.

3421. You are not so sure of those as of the others?—I am not sure of none of them.

3422. Mr. Darby.] But, to the best of your belief, which was it?—I do not know which it was.

3423. Mr. Mackenzie.] What have you in your hand—(A paper containing a list of names was taken from the Witness)?—That is not any of the names in the petition.

3424. Mr. Darby.] Who gave you that list of witnesses?—That is my own handwriting, and I do not think it is fair to take it; it is my own.

3425. The question is whether you got any list from the persons who have been here?—No.

3426. Do you adhere still to your belief that that was the name you signed (pointing to the name of Thomas Mapplebeck)?—Yes, that I wrote it; it is my firm opinion I wrote it.

Thomas Mapplebeck was again called in.

T. Mapplebeck.

3427. Mr. Mackenzie.] (To Thomas Mapplebeck.) Did you ever see this man before (pointing to Samuel Potts)?—Never before now; I saw him in the passage when he came and talked to us.

3428. Did he say anything to you in the passage?—He asked me if my name was not Mapplebeck, if there was not a Mapplebeck among them; and one of them pointed and showed him. That was the first time I ever saw him; I have no recollection of him.

3429. He asked somebody else if there was not a man of the name of Mapplebeck amongst you?—Yes.

3430. And that other person pointed you out?—Yes; he asked most of their names.

3431. Samuel Potts.) (To Thomas Mapplebeck.) Did the person point before I pointed towards you, do you remember?—Yes.

3432. When he told me there was a Mapplebeck, did not I directly say, "That is a Mapplebeck, I think"?—No.

3433. You do not remember that?—No.

Samuel Potts was directed to withdraw.

3434. Mr. Darby.] You say you have a brother of the name of Benjamin?—Yes; he is a labourer.

3436. Where do they live?—They live in Barnby Dunn.

3437. Do you know whether either of them was at your house when this man called?—No; Isaac was at his own father's house when he called on him, and his father did sign in the presence of this man.

3438. Your brother and nephew signed?—No, my brother was not at home; my brother when he is at home lodges in my house.

3439. What is his name?—Benjamin Mapplebeck.

3444. Did you ever sign a petition for the repeal of the Corn Laws?—I never saw the man.

3445. Did you ever sign a petition for the repeal of the Corn Laws?—No.

3446. Did you ever authorise anybody to sign one for you?—No.

3447. Can you write your name?—Yes.

3448. Mr. Mackenzie.] Just write your name?—(The Witness wrote his name.)

3449. Is that your signature (showing the name of Robert Godley in the Finningley and Austerfield petition to the Witness)?—It is not my writing, but this is my name, and there is my son's name; William Godley and Robert Godley; but I was five miles off at the time the man came, and I never saw him.

3450. Chairman.] Do you know any other person of the name of Robert Godley in Finningley?—No; it is me and my son.

3451. Your son's name is William?—It is.

3452. Mr. Mackenzie.] There is no other Robert Godley there?—I am sure there is not.

3453. Chairman.] Was there a man called at your house to obtain signatures to a petition for the repeal of the Corn Laws, do you know?—Yes, there was a man called; my son knows him, but I do not; I never see'd him; I was not at home at the time he called, and do not know him.

3454. How long have you resided at Finningley?—I was born there.

3455. You know the place pretty well?—Yes, I ought to do.

[The Witness withdrew.

William Godley, called in; and Examined.

William Godley.

3456. Chairman.] IS your name William Godley?—Yes.

3457. Are you the son of the man who has just gone out?—Yes.

3458. Do you live in Finningley?—Yes.

3459. Do you remember any man coming to your father's house some time ago with a petition for the repeal of the Corn Laws?—Yes.

3460. Mr Mackenzie.] Do you live with your father?—Yes.

3461. Chairman.] Should you know the man if you were to see him again?—Yes.

3462. What conversation had you with him, or he with you?—He came with a paper, and axed me if I would have my name set down; and I said no, I would not have no name set down.

3463. Did he tell you what he wanted your name for?—Something about petitioning.

3464. What was the petition for, did he say?—He did not say what for.

3465. He just asked to get your name down?—Yes, he wanted to get my name down, and I said I would not give any name down.

3466. Mr. Darby.] Did he ask you to let him put your father's name down?—No.

3467. Did he say anything about your father to you?—He asked me where my father was, and I told him he was not at home.

3468. Did he ask you if he might put your father's name down?—I think he said something about having my father's name down.

3469. Chairman.] Did you give him leave to put it down?—No.

3470. You are quite sure of that?—Yes, I am sure.

3471. Mr. Darby.] Did you see him write any name then?—No.

3472. Mr. Mackenzie.] Is your father's name on a board over the door?—No.

3473. Chairman.] Can you write your name?—Yes.

3474. Will you write it?—(The Witness wrote his name).

3475. Mr. Darby.] You must take care and speak the truth to us. Will you undertake positively to say that you never gave that man any permission to write your name down?—Yes; I never told him the name, and never said he was to set it down.

3476. Chairman.] Will you look at that petition (handing the Finningley and Austerfield Petition for the repeal of the Corn Laws to the Witness) and say whether whether you put that cross to it?—No; I can take an oath I never touched either pen or ink.

3477. You never touched either pen or ink while he was there?—Yes; I never had it in my hand.

[The Witness withdrew.

Samuel Potts, again called in; and further Examined.

Samuel Potts.

3478. Mr. Darby.] YOU said some time ago, that when Mr. Hastie gave you a petition and you had put some of the names with marks, it took so long doing, that you proposed to write the names down instead of getting the marks?—Yes.

3479. Was that in consequence of the persons who made the marks being so long, and your having to write the names?—Yes, and it not being considered necessary.

3480. I presume when you wrote a name down and took a mark, you took care that the party whose name it professed to be should make the mark himself. Was that so?—Yes.

3481. That was your invariable practice, was it?—Yes.

3482. Did you take the marks of people who could write, or only of those who could not?—I do not know that I took the mark of any person who could write.

3483. You say you had very special instructions; did you take care that the persons themselves should make those marks whose marks they pretended to be in the petition?—Yes.

3484. They made them themselves?—Yes, they did.

3485. Just look at the name of William Godley (handing the Petition to the Witness); I presume that purporting to be his mark he made himself?—Unquestionably.

3486. I suppose you asked him whether he could write before you got him to make his mark; you said just now, people did not make their marks who could write?—If they told me to write their name, and told me they could not write, I could not say they could; that is what I mean.

3487. That is the mark of the person whose mark it purports to be?—Yes.

3488. It is no misrepresentation that the man whose mark it purports to be, made that mark?—Yes, and gave his name in to this effect.

3489. Mr. Mackenzie.] Do you remember where you got that name (William Godley)?—No.

3490. Do you remember where you got that name (Robert Godley)?—No.

3491. Are they both written by you?—I cannot say.

3492. Chairman.] Look at those two signatures distinctly, and tell me, upon your solemn word, whether you did or did not write both of those names?—I cannot say.

3493. You said just now that when people made their marks you put the names down?—Yes.

3494. Then how can you now, looking at that, say to the Committee that you did not write that name, William Godley?—Of course I must have wrote that name.

3495. Then why did you say you could not say you wrote one or the other?—I understood you to say both the names, and I could not speak to the other.

3496. Mr. Mackenzie.] Is there any difference between the one and the other, and if there is will you point it out?—I can see a difference both in the G and the D.

3497. Is there any difference in the Y?—No, there is no difference.

3498. And you have no recollection where you got the name of William Godley?—No.

3499. Would you know the man if you saw him?—No, I do not know that I should.

William Godley, was again called in; and Examined.

William Godley.

26 July 1843.

3500. Mr. Mackenzie.] (To William Godley.) IS that the man that came to your father's house?—Yes.

3501. Chairman.] And asked you, and you refused to sign his petition?—Yes.

3502. Mr. Mackenzie.] Did he ask you whether you could write or not?—He did not say anything about writing; I told him I would not have the name set down.

[The Witness withdrew.

Robert Godley, was again called in.

Robert Godley.

3503. Mr. Gibson.] YOU are a shoemaker?—Yes.

3504. Have you many customers among the farmers?—Yes, I work for the farmers, part of them, and my son lives along with me.

3505. Is your son engaged in the same business with you?—He is; he is a shoemaker.

3506. Do you consider it would have been injurious to you in your business if you had signed a petition against the Corn Laws?—I do.

3507. You think you might have lost some of your custom?—Yes.

3508. And if you had signed such a petition, you would not have liked it to be known to the farmers?—No, I should not; I should like to keep the corn trade up; it reduces everything else in our town pretty well.

3509. Chairman] You are not what may be called a free-trader, are you?—No, I am not.

Mr. R. A. Christopher.	Mr. Henley.
Mr. Darby.	Mr. Forbes Mackenzie.
Mr. Estcourt.

R. ADAM CHRISTOPHER, Esq. IN THE CHAIR.

[A Letter which was delivered in and read on Monday last, is as follows:]

27 July 1843.

Sir, Epworth, 4 July 1843.

You must excuse me takeing the liberty of writing to you on the present occasion; the reason is, that orders have come down to-day for 16 individuals to be in London on Monday next, to give evidence before a Committee of the House against Potts, relative to the Epworth Anti-Corn-Law Petition. I as one who did sign the petition, and knowing that a many more did, but dare not own it, I wonder you have not had any witnesses in Potts' favour. I am ready to swear that whilst working at the house of a person named Blades, that Potts called with a petition, and asked Blades to sign it; he accordingly signed the name of a person named Teanby, his next door neighbour; I was stood over his shoulder at the time, and saw him do it, and told him of it afterwards; he said, "Never mind, the fellow will never be any wiser." This same person, Teanby, whose name Blades forged, has got orders to be in London on Monday next. There is another person of the name of Bolland, who, I believe, has had some correspondence with you, who I can prove by the evidence of respectable people, that his wife told them that he had signed it. I am fully convinced that Potts has been served in a similar way in several instances. I should not have intruded on your notice, but I think in justice to the cause, that we ought to have a chance of clearing him.

Please to return an answer by return of post; in the meantime I will collect all the evidence I can.

I remain, Sir,
Your obedient servant,
(signed) Levi Clark, Painter,
Epworth.

To Sir George Strickland, Bart., M.P.

27 July 1843.

[The following Letter was delivered in, and read:]

July 26th. R. A. Christopher, Esq. M.P. I reserved your order on the 25 and i ham very sorry that i cannot came for i ham a poor man with a large fambley and i have no money to pay my Expences but if you will hellp me by haney meanes i Should be verry willing to Came but i have no nowlidg of haney letters been sent in name if thear has been thay are fogerys for i never Rote one letter this seven before this nor Otherised aney one.

Yours, &c.
Levi Clark, Epworth."

Mr. Thomas Blaydes, called in; and Examined.

Mr T. Blaydes.

3510. Chairman.] WHAT is your name?—Thomas Blaydes.

3511. Do you reside at Epworth?—I do.

3512. What is your business?—I am a currier.

3513. Mr. Darby.] Where do you live in Epworth?—I do not know the name of the street; I think we have not a name to it.

3514. Have you had anything done to your house lately?—I have; on the 24th day of April I had a painter a week.

3515. How do you recollect that it was the 24th; have you looked to see?—I have a book, and I know by Epworth fair when it was.

3516. Was the 24th the first day the workman came in?—Yes.

3517. That you are quite sure of?—Yes.

3518. Who was the workman that did the work that day?—I employed Mr. Goodall, and he sent a man of the name of Levi Clark to do it.

3519. Had Levi Clark been at work in your house before the 24th?—Never in his life.

3520. Are you positive of that?—I am.

3521. I believe Mr. Goodall is a druggist, but has something to do with painting, and employs Levi Clark as a journeyman?—Yes; I have the bill with me, and also a certificate from Levi Clark's master when he did come.

[The same were handed in and inspected by the Committee, and the Certificate read, as follows:]

This is to certify, that my man, Levi Clark, finished working at Mr. Blades', on Saturday, April 30, commencing on Monday the 24th previous.

25 July 1843. (signed) T. A. Goodall.

3522. You need not answer any question which tends to criminate yourself; but as you say it was on the 24th of April that this man was in your house, did you ever sign any name to a petition on the 17th?—I did not.

3523. Or the 18th?—I did not.

3524. Did you ever sign the name of Teanby?—I never did.

3525. It has been stated that on the 17th or the 18th of April you signed the name of Teanby without his consent?—I have been informed so before, but I never did.

3526. And in point of fact, you are quite sure that Levi Clark was not in your house either on the 17th or the 18th?—He never worked at any time for me before the 24th of April.

3527. Chairman.] Did you sign any petition at all for the repeal of the Corn Laws?—I never signed any petition either for them or against them. I never saw the man in the town.

3528. Did you sign any other person's name to any petition?—I never did in my life; I could bring 20 witnesses to prove that this Levi Clark never was in my house in his life before the 24th of April; that is to say, since I have been in it.

3529. Mr. Mackenzie.] Do you know Levi Clark's handwriting?—No, I do not. I never saw him write in my life.

3530. Chairman.] Has the man Potts, whom you saw outside the door, had any conversation with you in the passage?—He was going to ask me where I came from. I told him I came from Epworth; and he said he was a Yorkshireman; and I asked him what part he came from. I asked him where the fellow was that the bother was about, and he said, "I am the man." I never saw him before.

3531. Mr. Henley.] You never saw him in Epworth at all?—No, I never saw him in Epworth at all; and never heard tell of him till this noise was. I understood, stood, on Tuesday, that Levi Clark had been writing up to some person in London, to say he could prove that I had forged Teanby's name. Mr. T. Blaydes.

3532. Mr. Mackenzie.] Who told you so?—Hudson; and now he denies ever writing to London. He says he saw me sign something; but he does not know what. 27 July 1843.

3533. Do you know whether he has written a letter to London, denying he ever wrote?—I do not know anything about it; I have not spoken to him since he was working in my house till I heard this report. As soon as I heard the report, I went to him to ask him about it, and he stood to it as hard as could be.

3534. Mr. Darby.] He stood to what?—That I had signed it.

3535. Mr. Mackenzie.] At first?—Yes. A person came to me and said, "I understand you have been signing this petition for the repeal of the Corn Laws;" and I said, "I never saw the man;" and he says, "Levi Clark said you did; and he saw you when working at your house." So I went to his master's shop, and asked him. He says, "To be sure you signed it—I saw you." I asked him where that was; he said, in my own house. I wanted to know, as well as I could, when this fellow was in the town; and I heard it was on the 17th and 18th of April, Gainsboro' Mart. I looked at Levi Clark's master's book, and found it was on the 24th of April he came to my house. I knew he had started on the Monday morning, and finished on the Saturday night before Epworth fair, and Epworth fair is on the 3d of May.

3536. Mr. Henley.] You are quite sure that neither upon the 17th, 18th, or 24th you ever saw Potts?—I never did; I never saw him in my life before I saw him to-day; and I am certain Levi Clark never worked at my house till the 24th of April.

3537. Mr. Mackenzie.] Did you tell Potts to-day what your name was?—No, I did not.

Samuel Potts was called in.

3538. Mr. Mackenzie.] (To Samuel Potts.) Did you ever see that man before (pointing to Mr. Blaydes)?—I cannot say that I ever did. Samuel Potts.

3539. Mr. Darby.] Look at that name (pointing to the name "W. W. Teanby" in the Epworth Petition for the repeal of the Corn Laws); somebody signed that name; do you remember that being signed?—No, I do not remember anything about it; I have not the slightest knowledge of the person.

3540. Mr. Mackenzie.] Is that name of Teanby in your handwriting?—No.

3541. Do you know in whose handwriting it is?—No, I am sure I do not.

3542. Was it signed by a man who calls himself Teanby?—Yes.

3543. Chairman.] Where did he write it?—I do not remember.

3544. Mr. Darby.] Were you at a house where any man was at work painting or papering?—Where at?

3545. At Epworth?—I am sure I do not remember that I was; I cannot call to my mind that I was, I am sure; I might have been.

3546. You said you knew Levi Clark?—No, not personally; I think I did not say so; I do not know him.

3547. You know Goodall?—No, I did not say I knew Goodall; but I said I thought the barber signed Goodall. I did not know Goodall, and I was not sure that he signed that name.

3548. Mr. Mackenzie.] You have no recollection whatever of being at a house where a man was at work painting and papering?—No, I cannot call to mind, I am sure.

3549. Mr. Darby.] Were you at more grocers' houses than one in Epworth?—Yes, two.

3550. Teanby is a grocer, is not he?—I am sure I do not know what he is. I was at one grocer's shop in the market-place, at the corner, and another higher up.

3551. Did you get any signatures at either of them?—I got at one house three or four, as I stated to the Committee before.

3552. Did you at both?—There was one person at the first; but I asked for the master, and he was at his breakfast. There was a person in the shop that had a name put down; I did not know who it was; and when I came again, I called, and the master was in the shop, but he did not sign.

Samuel Potts.

27 July 1843.

3553. Was it at the shop at the corner of the market-place that you got the signatures, or at the other?—No, the one a few doors above.—(Mr. Blaydes.) That must be Mr. Reed's.

3554. Which is Mr. Teanby's?—A little shop down the street, next door to where I live; a kind of peddling sort of shop.

3555. Mr. Mackenzie.] (To Samuel Potts.) Do you remember anything about Goodall at all?—No.

3556. What do you think he is?—I do not know, I am sure, what he is. If I remember right, I said the man signed Goodall, I thought, but I was not quite sure; I named it before. In the corner there was a barber's shop I stated I had been at. I did not state that was the shop; but two or three doors further going towards the church, about three doors up, there was a shop and I took it to be a hairdresser's shop; this is the shop I mean, because the first barber's shop I was in, and there were two persons in, and he had nothing to do with it; it is not him that I mean; that has been stated before.

Thomas Blaydes withdrew.

Samuel Potts.—I would beg to ask whether the witnesses from Barnby Dunn are gone?

Chairman.—Yes.

Samuel Potts.—I thought I should have been allowed to ask some questions yesterday of William Watson. I was waiting outside, and I was not aware that the Committee had broken up till I met the reporter in the passage. I maintain positively that William Watson gave me leave to sign the petition.

3557. Mr. Darby.] Every opportunity was given to you. Just look at the Barnby Dunn Petition. (The Petition was shown to the Witness). There are Benjamin Mapplebeck, Isaac Mapplebeck, and Thomas Mapplebeck. You have stated, that out of those three you signed one?—Yes.

3558. But you do not know which it is?—Yes, I do.

3559. Which is it?—Thomas Mapplebeck.

3560. Are you sure of that?—Yes.

3561. Will you tell me how it comes to pass that that name is written so exceedingly like the other two; did you try to copy it?—I had two or three pens in my pocket; they said when they had old pens they could not write.

3562. It seems that Thomas Mapplebeck is a copy of the others; how do you explain that?—Thomas Mapplebeck is my own handwriting; I did not say that I signed Isaac or Benjamin.

3563. Will you say positively you signed Thomas?—Yes.

3564. Then the question is how it came to pass that you signed Thomas Mapplebeck so very like the other two; was it done on purpose?—No; I wrote it just by chance.

3565. Will you undertake positively to say that that is the one you signed, and not Isaac; will you say you signed Thomas?—Yes.

3566. Mr. Mackenzie.] You signed it in the house where you saw the woman?—No; I did not say so.

3567. Which was it you signed in the house?—I do not remember. He was the man that belonged to the house; I knew he was not at home, because the woman and the man told me he was not at home. I have named about the petition, because I did not think the Barnby Dunn witnesses were going away; I did not know the Committee had broken up; but with my dying words I will maintain that that man Watson signed the petition. I remember the man, and I remember his being threshing at the back of the church, near to a house where there was once a little school, since I remember, kept by a woman of the name of Birkenshaw, but I do not know whether she keeps it now. Watson was either threshing barley or wheat I think, and I asked him whether he had any objection to sign the petition, and I think he said he could not write; I said, "I will write if you will give me your consent, and put your name down." and it was agreed to, and I did do so I am sure.

Mr. Greene.	Mr. Villiers.
Mr. Hardy.	Lord Worsley.

R. ADAM CHRISTOPHER, Esq. IN THE CHAIR.

Ann Crapper, called in; and Examined.

Ann Crapper.

28 July 1843.

3568. Chairman.] WHAT is your name?—Ann Crapper.

3569. Do you reside at Hatfield, in Yorkshire?—Yes.

3570. Are you the wife of George Crapper, a fishmonger?—Yes.

3571. Do you remember a man, some time ago, coming to your house with a petition?—Yes.

3572. Will you state to the Committee, as nearly as you can, the conversation which passed between you and that man at that time?—Yes; that man came to my house with a paper, and he says, "Is your husband in?" And I says, "No, sir. What do you please to want with him?" He says, "I suppose you will have no objections to have a cheap loaf?" And I said, "No." Well, he set his name down, George Crapper; and he says, "What do they call the neighbours that lives about here? I think I might as well set their names down, if you will tell me them." And so I began at the first house, and told him.

3573. Do you remember the name you told him?—Yes, John Rowley, for one; and the next was William Moore.

3574. Did you see him put the name down?—Yes, I did; he laid his paper upon the table, and I stood beside him all the time. The next was John Taylor; and the next was William Birkenshaw; and the next was John Vaisin; and the next was Richard Harrap; and the next was Richard Hilton; and the next was James Gorrell; and the next was James Crosby; and the next was James Savage; and the next was William Scholes; and the next William Swallow; and the next was Joshua Gambles.

3575. Mr. Darby.] Was it George Taylor you told him, or John Taylor?—John Taylor.

3576. Chairman.] Did you see him write all those names down?—Yes, I did.

3577. Upon that bit of paper (pointing to the Petition)?—The paper he brought to me.

3578. Was it like that?—I cannot recollect what sort of a bit of paper it was.

3579. But you saw him write those names down?—I saw him write them down: I stood beside him, and he had his paper upon the table, and I told him those names. Perhaps I might not think of every one, but those are the names I told him.

3580. Mr. Henley.] About what time of the day was this?—I think it was the forenoon. Not thinking anything, and it being so long since, I cannot call to mind whether it was the forenoon or not.

3581. Chairman.] Do you remember what other conversation you had with him that day?—Nothing at all else: he took what I told him down, and he went; he said that he had not time to go to their houses that day, but he should come in two or three days after. That was all that passed between us, except that he said "Good morning;" he mentioned the time of day, and I did so to him, and he went away.

Ann Crapper.

28 July 1843.

3582. Do you remember your husband going out that day?—Yes.

3583. At what time did he go out?—Indeed I cannot say.

3584. Cannot you remember near about what time it was; was it the morning, the forenoon, or when?—It was the morning when he went out.

3585. Did he go out that day with fish, do you remember?—Yes.

3586. Mr. Mackenzie.] What had he with him when he went out?—No, he had not any fish with him that day, but he professes to be a fishmonger.

3587. Chairman.] At what time did your husband come home that day?—I am sure I cannot recollect.

3588. Can you remember about the time?—Was it the forenoon or the evening?—I really do not know; I cannot tell.

3589. Did you mention to your husband having had any conversation with the man who came about the petition?—No.

3590. You said nothing to him at all about it?—I told him a man had been and what I had done; that was all that passed. I told him about the man coming, and what I had done, and that was all.

3591. Mr. Mackenzie.] Did you tell him what the man had said to you?—Yes, to be sure I did, every thing particular.

3592. Would you know the man if you saw him?—Yes, I should; I think so.

3593. Mr. Henley.] Did the man who brought the petition to you say anything to you about your son?—When I mentioned Crapper, he says, "Have you a son called Crapper?" I says, "Yes, I have." He says, "He is a stone-mason, is not he?" and I says, "Yes;" and he says, "I know him very well."

3594. When he came into your house, did he ask you your name, or did you tell him your name?—When he said I had no objections for a cheap loaf, I said "No." Then he says, "What is your husband's name?" and I have told it word for word, as far as I can recollect.

3595. Mr. Mackenzie.] And then he wrote down your husband's name?—Yes, he did.

3596. Before your face?—Yes.

3597. Had you given him leave to do it?—No, I did not give him no leave at all; I never said nothing about it; he said, "What is your husband's name?" and I said, "George Crapper;" and he never said "Must I take it down?" nor I did not say nothing to him.

3598. Mr. Villiers.] You saw him write it down?—Yes, I did.

3599. What did you say to him when you saw him write it down?—I did not say nothing to him; he went on with all the names; I did not say nothing to him, because I did not know the man, nor did not know the meaning of the thing, and when the man was gone I took no further notice, and never expected hearing of it.

3600. What did he say to you about a cheap loaf?—He said no more. He says, "I suppose you like a cheap loaf."

3601. Have you seen your husband since you have been in town?—Yes, I have seen him.

3602. When did you come to town?—This morning; I came by the railway; I have been coming all night.

3603. Did he meet you?—Yes, he did.

3604. I suppose your husband knew you were coming down to this Committee?—He did not know that I was coming till I got this paper. I got this paper on Wednesday, and he was here when I came.

3605. He came down from the railway here with you, did not he?—From the railway station this morning he did; he met me there.

3606. And I suppose you talked about the petition as you came, did not you?—We did not talk nothing particular that I know of.

3607. There is no harm in it, and it is a very natural thing for you to do?—We did not talk nothing particular.

3608. He talked to you about what you came about, did not he?—He named what I came about.

3609. He told you he had been examined here?—Yes.

3610. And told you what he had said?—Yes.

3611. And what he said was true, was not it?—Yes.

3612. And you told him what you were going to say?—Yes, I did; I have said

said as near as I can say. What that man said to me I have said, and what I said to him I have said, word for word, for anything I know.

3613. Have you seen Potts to-day?—I have not seen him.

3614. Did you know that the man's name who came to you with the paper was Potts?—Yes; one of my neighbours told me it was Potts, but I did not know before.

3615. Who told you so?—A person in Hatfield.

3616. When did he tell you so?—On Wednesday before I came up.

3617. Is that the only person that ever spoke to you about it before you came up?—That was the person that told me; I was at our house when he came with some pears to sell, and he says, "You are going to London, are not you?" and I said, "Yes, I am;" and he said, "Well, they call that man Potts," and I says, "Do they?" He knew him very well, the person that said so; he says, "He lives at Doncaster, and I know him very well."

3618. Who else down there has spoken to you about coming to London?—Several; they all got to know when I got this paper; all my neighbours got to know.

3619. Did anybody ask you what you were going to say?—Oh no; there are several respectable people that knew I was coming, and I said I was not fit for coming at all; and they said, "Well, you must look up your spirits; you are going before gentlemen, you are not going before blackguards, and they will hear what you say.

3620. Do you know the name of the respectable gentleman that told you so?—Yes; they call him Mr. Gillett.

3621. What is he; an attorney?—No; he has been a tailor, but he lives independent now; he is a respectable gentleman, and respects me very much.

3622. You knew him before this?—I have known him all my life-time; I am a native of Hatfield.

3623. Did he call upon you to tell you about coming to London?—No, I met him as I was going into town; I was going to Thorne the day I got this letter, and met him.

3624. Did he ask you what you were going to say?—No, he did not ax me what I was going to say.

3625. But you told him?—I did not tell him, because we had no conversation any further about it.

3626. Did any other respectable person come and call upon you, or meet you?—None else but Mr. Gillett.

3627. He did not know Potts, did he?—No, he did not know nothing about him.

3628. Has Mr. Gillett signed any petition, do you know?—Indeed I do not know; I am sure I cannot state; he was coming over a close when I met him; he was going one way and I another.

Samuel Potts was called in.

3629. Mr. Mackenzie.] (To Ann Crapper.) Is that the man that called at your house on the day you have spoken of (pointing to Samuel Potts)?—Yes, it is.

3630. And you mentioned to him the names which you have given to the Committee?—Yes.

Samuel Potts was directed to withdraw.

3631. Mr. Villiers.] Have you seen Potts this morning before?—Yes, I did see him in that room, and I told my husband that was him.

3632. What room?—He was passing where we have been sitting.

3633. Mr. Mackenzie.] In the passage?—Yes; I should have known him.

3634. Mr. Villiers.] Did your husband show him to you, or did you show him to your husband; did your husband say that was the man?—Yes; he said that was the man, and I said "Yes, it is;" and if my husband had not said any thing I should have known him.

The Witness was directed to withdraw.

Ann Crapper.

28 July 1843.

The Witness was again called in.

3635. Mr. Villiers.] You have told us that you remember Potts coming into your house?—Yes.

3636. Had he got a pen and ink and paper with him?—Yes, he had both.

3637. He had got a pen and ink with him?—Yes.

3638. And he had got a piece of paper?—Yes.

3639. How big was the paper, do you think?—I did not take notice of the paper; I took no notice of the paper further than him writing the names down.

3640. It might have been a small piece or a large piece?—Indeed I cannot say whether it was or not.

3641. What he did in your presence was to write down some names?—Yes.

3642. He wrote your husband's name?—Yes.

3643. Did you read it after he had written it?—I did not read nothing.

3644. Then how do you know it was your husband's name?—Because I see'd it; I see'd all the names.

3645. Did you see your husband's name, and did you read your husband's name?—No, I did not read it.

3646. You did not read your husband's name after the man had written it?—No, I did not read it, but I saw him set it down; I did not read none of them, but I stood beside the man, and he wrote my husband's name.

3647. Mr. Darby.] What you mean is, that when you gave a name, he wrote something; but whether that name or not you do not know, as you did not read it?—But I do know.

3648. Mr. Henley.] Can you read writing?—Yes.

3649. Did you see the paper after he had written anything upon it?—I saw the paper when he had written all the names down, when he wrapped it up.

3650. Were the names written on it or were they not?—The names were on it; I saw the names on it, but I did not read them; I expect he had wrote all the names down that I had mentioned.

3651. Mr. Villiers.] Just answer this question again. After Potts had written the names down upon the paper, did you read what names he had written?—I did not read one.

3652. You gave some names to Potts, did not you?—Yes.

3653. When you had given him the names, he wrote them?—Yes.

3654. That is to say, you saw him writing after you had given him the names?—Yes, to be sure.

3655. Did you see what he had written?—No, I did not see, because I did not take no notice of the names.

3656. Lord Worsley.] Am I to understand you, that when you mentioned a name, he wrote?—Yes, to be sure.

3657. And when you mentioned another name, he wrote again?—Yes.

3658. You did not give him the names all at once?—No; he wrote the names down as I told him correctly; I told him one name, and he wrote it down; then I told him another name, and he wrote it down; but I did not look at them, but I stood beside him, and I saw him writing my husband's name down.

3659. Mr. Villiers.] You saw him writing your husband's name after you had told him your husband's name?—I saw him writing the very first, Crapper; I saw Crapper; I stood beside him, and did not think nothing more about it, or that I should have anything to do with it. I did not examine the thing particularly well, not thinking I should have been brought up upon that thing.

3660. You have only come here to speak the truth, and we do not believe you have done otherwise.—I hope I have done so.

3661. Mr. Henley.] Your husband's name you did see?—I did see my husband's name.

3662. Mr. Villiers.] Did you read your husband's name?—No, I did not read it; I could see it, and tell the letters, without reading it, by a glance of my eye.

3663. Can

Ann Crapper.

28 July 1843.

3663. Can you tell by a glance of your eye what a word is, without reading the letters?—To be sure I could tell, if I looked; I can read writing as well as anybody, for a woman, I will be bound to say.

3664. Did you read the writing?—If I looked at the name, I could glance at it, and tell what it meant.

3665. But did you read the writing?—You must not put upon a woman too much; I think I have answered the questions you gentlemen have put to me better than I thought I could have done.

3666. You have answered well; but you did not read the letters after he wrote them?—I did not read nothing. I gave him the names, and I expect he wrote them. I should think he would not write names I did not tell him; but so long as I told him the names, I think he would write them all down.

3667. Chairman.] Am I to understand you that when you mentioned a name to him you saw him write?—I saw him write.

3668. And then when you mentioned another you saw him write again?—Yes.

3669. And so on till you had mentioned the whole of them?—Yes.

3670. Mr. Hardy.] When was it you saw your husband's name by a glance of your eye; was it while he was writing the other names?—I did not take particular notice, but I stood over the man while he wrote my husband's name, and then I was thinking about the other names.

3671. You stood over him?—I stood over him.

3672. Was he sitting down, and you over him?—He was leaning over the table and I stood beside him, telling him the names, and he wrote them down, but I never looked at them.

3673. Chairman.] You mean to say you did not take the paper up afterwards and look at them?—No, I did not; I never had the paper in my hand. As soon as ever I told him the names, and he had written them down, he wrapped the paper up, and bade me the time of day, whether forenoon or after I cannot say, but he bade me the time of day, and went away.

3674. Then am I to understand you that he was standing beside you, and that you saw him write the names down, but that you did not take the trouble to take up the paper and look afterwards what names he had written?—No, I did not, because I did not think I had any business to do it.

3675. Lord Worsley.] From your position, you could see each letter as he wrote it, could not you?—Why, perhaps I might, if I had taken particular notice; but after he had wrote my husband's name down I did not take particular notice.

Mr. R. A. Christopher.	Mr. Henley.
Mr. Darby.	Mr. Forbes Mackenzie.
Mr. Greene.	Mr. Villiers.

R. ADAM CHRISTOPHER, Esq. IN THE CHAIR.

Mr. Richard Hill, called in; and Examined.

Mr. R. Hill.

31 July 1843.

3676. Chairman.] YOUR name is Richard Hill, is not it?—Yes.

3677. Do you reside in Epworth?—Yes.

3678. Have you any particular business?—I am a farmer, I believe; I farm my own land, part of it; I let some and farm the rest.

3679. Did you receive any summons to give evidence before this Committee?—Yes.

3680. Have you got that summons?—Yes; it is from the Chairman, Mr. Christopher, I believe.

Mr. R. Hill.

31 July 1843.

3681. Can you state to the Committee any reason why you were not able to attend upon the day for which you were summoned?—Yes; I understood, according to the summons, I was to be here on the 27th. My wife and I went out to a feast in Yorkshire, about 27 miles from Epworth, and my servants could not give account where I was gone when the summons arrived at my house. We got home about 11 o'clock on Wednesday evening, and on Thursday morning about nine o'clock, perhaps it was, Mr. Hudson came with this summons, and served it on me to attend.

3682. That is the reason you were not here sooner?—Yes, that is the reason; I could not come any sooner.

3683. Can you state to the Committee the purport of any correspondence or conversation that has taken place between you and Mr. Hastie, of Doncaster, with reference to the Epworth petition?—Yes.

3684. Will you state it generally?—I will state it as clearly as I possibly can; I saw Mr. Hastie, I fancy it is three weeks since, last Saturday, but I am not positive whether it is three weeks or a fortnight. I was at Doncaster market, and was going past his shop, and saw Mr. Hastie, and went in, and as soon as he saw me he knew me very well. I had been in the habit of buying his goods; he is a tea-dealer. As soon as we got in, we got talking; this Epworth petition came up, as I was a parishioner, and he asked me what was my opinion about it; and I told him that I believed the man had acted very wrong.

3685. What man do you mean?—This Potts. I never saw him, and know nothing about him; and I says, "Still I believe, Mr. Hastie, there is a bit of humbug about it;" those were the words I said to him, "I think there are a few names, two or three names that I fancy have signed, if it could be proved;" and he said he fancied the same; he fancied there were some odd names, and I think I mentioned some names.

3686. What names did you mention?—A man of the name of William Bolland, and another man of the name of Teanby, and another; there were three names I mentioned, I know, to him. That was the principal thing that I said to him, and since then I have got this summons.

3687. Have you had any conversation with him since then upon the subject?—No. When I received this summons I rather felt surprised that I should have to come up to London about such a thing as that; and I called on Mr. Hastie to ask him if I had said anything else on the Saturday to which I have referred; and he told me that that was what he understood that I had said.

3688. Do you, of your own knowledge, know that either of those three persons whom you mentioned to him attached their signatures to a petition for the repeal of the Corn Laws?—No, I do not; that was only opinion; I was giving him my opinion in a friendly way. I did not know anything about it, that they either had or had not; it was my opinion, by what I heard people say in the town.

3689. Did any of those persons inform you that they had signed the petition?—No; I do not know that I ever mentioned it to them.

3690. Then what reason had you to suppose they had?—It was the talk of the town; the public talk; some other people might fancy so as well as me.

3691. Mr. Mackenzie.] Did you mean Mr. Hastie to repeat what you said to him?—No; I did not think anything at all about the concern, because I think Mr. Hastie thinks the same as I thought.

3692. Were you surprised when you heard that he had repeated it?—Yes, I was; I was no ways pleased about it.

3693. Chairman.] Have you made inquiry in Epworth about any other signatures?—No.

3694. Have you made inquiry at all particularly?—No, I do not know that I have; I do not know anything about it.

3695. Then you have no reason, of your own knowledge, to suppose that either Teanby or Bolland forged names to any petition?—No, I have not, only by report; it was reported that Mr. Bolland had signed something of that sort.

3696. It is solely from common report?—That is all.

3697. Are you able to bring any proof of the fact?—Not at all.

3698. Mr.

3698. Mr. Mackenzie.] Did you say to Mr. Hastie that you could find witnesses to prove it?—No, never in my life, and Mr. Hastie would not say so if he was here.

3699. Mr. Darby.] Have you either seen Bolland or his wife on the subject of this petition?—No; I never mentioned it to him.

3700. My question was, did you ever see either Bolland or his wife upon the subject of this petition?—No.

3701. Never?—I have never seen them on the subject.

3702. Neither one nor the other?—Neither one nor the other.

3703. Mr. Villiers.] You alluded just now to a general report in Epworth about some persons who had signed this petition?—Yes.

3704. What was the report you heard?—The report was, that those men had signed, and had denied it. That was the report that I heard. It was the public talk in the town.

3705. And having heard that report, you mentioned it to Mr. Hastie?—I mentioned it to Mr. Hastie, he being a friend of mine; but with no thought of his mentioning it again.

3706. You only mentioned to him what was currently reported in Epworth?—Yes; that was all.

3707. You did not sign any petition for the repeal of the Corn Laws yourself, did you?—No; I did not.

3708. I believe you are not friendly to a repeal of the Corn Laws; you would not have signed such a petition?—No; at present I should not. I do not know what I might do at some future time.

3709. When did this talk begin at Epworth about certain persons who had signed the petition, but said they had not?—It began about the time when people were coming up; I do not know how long it may be since, I am sure.

3710. After the piece of work was made about the petition?—Yes, after the petition was talked about, and some people had been up.

3711. I suppose there was a meeting called about the petition, was not there?—Yes, I dare say there was; I did not attend; I think I was not at home. It was a meeting, if I understand you right, about the petition being a false petition, or something of that kind; I think there was something of that sort, but I was not in the town at the time.

3712. Was there any other report affecting this petition current in Epworth at that time?—I do not know that there was. What about?

3713. About the character of the people who went up, or the solicitation of the people who were sent up; about their having been solicited to go up?—No, I do not know that there was anything particular about that.

3714. You did not hear any report as to what persons had been busy about getting men to go up?—No, I do not know that I heard anything of the kind.

3715. Did you hear that any petition had been carried round to get people to sign; did you hear that somebody had gone round to get signatures to the second petition?—Oh yes; Mr. Hudson, the vestry clerk, went round, if I understand you right, with the other petition.

3716. And it was after that that people began to say that some of those persons had signed the petition, but now denied it?—I do not know that it was after; it was after the report was abroad that certain people were ordered up to London, but I do not know whether it was after Mr. Hudson's going round with the petition or not; I am not able to say.

3717. You do not think that the people came up to London before Mr. Hudson's petition was sent up, do you?—No, I should think not; I do not know.

3718. That petition was for the purpose of informing The House, was not it, that the other petition was not genuine?—I expect so.

3719. Then if people went up to London to prove that, it must have been after that second petition?—I should fancy so; I am not able to say; I took very little notice about the petition; I signed the petition that Mr. Hudson went round with myself.

3720. I think I understood you to say you had not any distinct or specific proof that men had signed the first petition, and then denied it?—Oh no.

Mr. R. Hill.

31 July 1843.

3721. Merely the general report of the place?—It was the general report of the place, and that was what I meant.

3722. Mr. Mackenzie.] When you talk of the general report of the place, how do you know there was this general report?—By hearing of it.

3723. Did many people talk to you about it?—It was talked of anywhere; it was generally the barbers' shops where the most talk was, and sometimes public-houses; I heard of it in several places. The opinion was that it was believed that some parties had signed, and then felt ashamed about signing, or something of that sort.

3724. This was just the current rumour?—Yes.

3725. You heard nobody mention any specific instance?—No, I did not, not particularly.

3726. Mr. Darby.] You said some time back, that the report was that three had signed?—Yes, that there were three names mentioned.

3727. Mr. Henley.] Do you remember what the third name was which you mentioned to Mr. Hastie; Bolland, you say, was one, and Teanby another; you said you mentioned three to him, but you have not told us what the third name was?—There was a third besides Mr. Bolland and Mr. Teanby. I do not know whether it was not Green; I think it was Green.

3728. Mr. Darby.] Do you mean Green the publican?—Yes, I think the other was him.

3729. Do you recollect particularly any individual from whom you heard that this report was going about?—No, I do not; it was the public talk.

3730. It might have been the public talk; but the question is, whether you can fix on any single person that you particularly heard state this?—I do not know that I can, any particular person.

3731. Is Goodall's one of the barbers' shops you have been speaking of, at which this report has been circulated?—No; he did keep a druggist's shop.

3732. Mr. Villiers.] I suppose it is at the barber's shop and the public-house where one hears the news at Epworth?—Yes, I believe those are the principal places for hearing it in Epworth.

3733. Mr. Darby.] Has any fact of any kind come to your own knowledge, by which you can state your belief that any man who signed that petition has denied it?—It was my opinion.

3734. The question put to you is a very plain one. Has any fact whatever come to your knowledge, which you can state to the Committee, which induced you to form that opinion?—No, I have not a fact; it was my opinion by hearing the people talk of it.

3735. The question you are now asked is, whether you can mention any single fact whatever within your own knowledge which induced you to form that opinion?—I do not know that I can, only by report.

3736. Report is not a fact; the question is, whether there is any single fact that you have knowledge of, from which you have formed that opinion?—I do not know that I have any fact.

3737. Mr. Villiers.] Do you reside in Epworth?—Yes.

3738. Are you a farmer?—Yes.

3739. Do you know anything of the petitions from Hatfield or Armthorpe or Cantley?—No.

3740. Have you any land there?—No.

3741. Chairman.] I believe you are well acquainted with Mr. Marshall, of Belwood Grange?—Yes.

3742. Have you had any conversation with him on the subject of this affair?—Yes.

3743. What did you tell Mr. Marshall your opinion was?—I told Mr. Marshall (that was the first beginning of it) that I believed that Mr. Potts had caused many names to be signed, that he had forged many names.

3744. You told that to Mr. Marshall?—Yes, I did, and I still think so.

3745. Mr. Henley.] You were understood to say, in the first part of your examination, were you not, that you had told Mr. Hastie that Potts, you thought, thought, had acted very wrong, but that there was humbug in the petition besides?—I did say so.

3746. Of course this made a great deal of talk in the place, people coming up to London?—Yes; that was the reason. I heard these different things, and I formed my own opinion about the matter.

3747. Mr. Villiers.] Have you known Mr. Hastie long?—Yes; I think I have known him fifteen years.

3748. He is a shopkeeper, is not he?—Yes; a tea-dealer. He lives in Doncaster.

3749. He is a respectable man?—Yes; I always think he is a very clever man indeed.

[The Witness withdrew.

COPY of a LETTER from James Hume, Esq. to J. C. Melvill, Esq.

Sir, Calcutta, 20 March 1844.

I AM directed by the Agricultural and Horticultural Society of India to request the favour of your submitting to the Honourable the Court of Directors the enclosed copy of a petition to the two Houses of Parliament, praying for the introduction of Indian wheat into British ports on an equalized duty with the production of Canada, which was agreed on at a general meeting of the society held on the 13th instant; together with a printed copy of a report of its wheat committee, which was confirmed at a preceding special meeting held on the 9th idem.

These documents enter so fully into detail on the question to which they refer, that I conceive it unnecessary to do more than respectfully to solicit attention to them, and to express the assurance of the members of the society, that from the interest which the Honourable Court has already evinced in this important matter, the prayer of the petitioners will meet with their cordial approbation and support.

I may add that the Earl of Auckland has been requested to take charge of the petition to the House of Lords, and that the one to the House of Commons has been entrusted to Joseph Hume, Esq. M. P.

I have, &c.
(signed) James Hume,
Hon. Sec. to the A[l] and H[l] Society of India.

AT a Special Meeting of the Agricultural and Horticultural Society of India, held on the 9th March 1844, the Secretary submitted the following Report:

REPORT of the WHEAT COMMITTEE, on the Introduction of Indian Wheat into British Ports on an equalized Duty with the Production of Canada.

IN entering on a report of the information we have before us respecting the question of the introduction of Indian wheat into British ports on an equalized duty with the production of Canada, which information is digested in the tabular statement herewith submitted, to which the reports may be considered as an appendage, your committee deem it desirable, with a view to its clearer elucidation, to class the subject under the following heads:

1st. The information as regards the agricultural view of the question.
2d. Such as refers to the ratio of production in the several districts.
3d. The cost of producing, and the profit derivable by the grower and speculator.
4th. The practicability of exporting the wheat when produced.

1st. Agricultural View.—The article appears to be produced generally on two descriptions of soil, the stiff clayey tracts of high land never inundated, and the light sandy alluvions, that are changing every year: but we have not any means before us of testing the relative value of each for the growth of wheat, or the relative extent of each available to this object. The time best adapted for sowing wheat in all parts of the country appears to be the month of October, being the period when the lands are recovering from the excess of moisture consequent upon the periodical rains. In the course of its growth on the higher lands, it would appear to require irrigation, so as to keep up a supply of moisture not naturally to be found in the soil; but an opinion prevails that the more irrigation is resorted to, the less valuable in quality is the produce, and that wheats deriving their sustenance only from the natural moisture of the soil are superior in quality to those assisted by irrigation*. It remains, however, yet to be proved, whether this difference arises from the act of irrigation, or is traceable to the component parts of the soils themselves, the irrigated crops being those on high clayey lands, and

* Mr. Bridgman, in his report from the Goruckpore district, observes, "In no case does irrigation appear to be indispensable; and it is always practised with caution, being considered to tend to produce the red blight in wheat and barley."

and the non-irrigated ones being alluvion. The period of reaping, too, is the same in the several parts of the country from whence we have returns, ranging from February and April, according as the crop is forward or otherwise. A great error in the cultivation of this article prevails all over this country in the admixture of other crops * with wheat; but this being the case with almost every other article of culture by the natives, it would be exceedingly difficult to effect a reform, and could, in all probability, only be accomplished gradually by the purchasers for export steadily rejecting such wheat as was at all mixed with other grain.

It is unnecessary in this Report to comment on the mode of agriculture in this country, or to point out the improvements that might be made in it; suffice it to say, that great benefit would accrue to native agriculture at large from improving the rotation of crops, and that we may fairly hope to see a great extension of cultivation of wheat as soon as we have a wide market open to it. Some of the finest wheat countries are to be found in the vicinity of our Calcutta market, but beyond Behar the distance would appear to be too great to allow of a profitable import at the present high rates of transport. Besides this consideration, it may be observed, that the places beyond that province are wheat-consuming districts, and the residents have consequently less reason or desire to transmit it to another market. It appears, therefore, probable that the chief export to Great Britain must be from the eastward and southward of Patna.

2d. Ratio of Production.—Coming to the second point, or that which refers to the ratio of production, we find, on reducing the measurement to one uniform standard, the Bengal beegah of 14,400 square feet, that the general average in the tabular statement, ranges from 6 to 7½ maunds per beegah. It has been proved, however, that this may be wonderfully enhanced, for in his report † of experiments made in the Goruckpore district on cereal grains obtained by the Society from Europe, Mr. J. H. Bridgman states, that from one variety of wheat the "common old red wheat," he had a return of ten times the produce of the best specimens of the common wheat of this country.

3d. Cost of Producing, and Profit derivable.—The next division of the subject brings us to the consideration of the profit to be derived from the culture, as a speculation. The cost of cultivation would seem to decrease in proportion as the article is grown nearer to Calcutta, for we find that about Bhauglepore, Goruckpore, &c., the outlay would be from Rs. 2 to Rs. 5, per Bengal beegah; whereas at Benares, Allahabad and Lucknow, it increases from Rs. 8 to Rs. 14; thus at once showing the advantages possessed by the lower parts of the country, and which appear to place the higher provinces in a great measure out of the field of competition at present, without reference to the enhanced cost of carriage, in itself a very serious tax on the article. This is more clearly displayed in the column which shows the rate at which good wheat can be landed in Calcutta per maund. This, from the nearer districts, would be, as appears by the statement from Rs. 1 to Rs. 1. 12 a., the average being Rs. 1. 5 a. 6 p.‡ which, at the average of a year, made out by Mr. Speede, in his memorandum submitted to your committee, at Rs. 1. 13 a. 4 p., the selling price in Calcutta, would yield before shipment to the grower, or Mofussil dealer, a profit of 37 per cent. It is unnecessary, in this place, to point out how much this profit would be enhanced to the party making purchases for shipment in the Mofussil, for it has already been dwelt on at some length in the minutes submitted to your committee, which minutes, together with other useful papers, bearing on this important question, the society will doubtless transfer to its committee of papers, for publication in its Journal. The returns from the higher provinces show a range of from Rs. 1. 10 a. to Rs. 2. 12 a. per maund as the price of landing good wheat in Calcutta, the average being Rs. 2. 1 a. 3 p., showing an excess on the Calcutta rate before stated, i. e. Rs. 1. 13 a. 4 p., of 3 a. 11 p., or a loss of more than 12 per cent. Thus, without taking into consideration the fact of the residents of the higher provinces being themselves large wheat consumers, we can hardly expect, perhaps, for some time to come, that much wheat will be drawn from that portion of the Indian empire for export to Great Britain.

4th. Practicability

* An exception is to be made in the case of the Saugor and Nerbudda territories, where, as we learn from the report of Major Ousely, other crops are very seldom sown with wheat.

† This report will be found in the Journal of the Society, vol. i. p. 142.

‡ Mr. Sarson's memorandum, founded on the purchase of upwards of 60,000 maunds of Doody wheat at Monghyr, shows the average price, including all charges, to be Rs. 1. 5 a. per maund.

4th. Practicability of Exporting Wheat in Good Condition.—We now come to the last point of our question, the practicability of exporting wheat when produced. To say nothing of the extent to which the export of flour may be carried, in which form much has been exported, and much more, it is believed, would be sent to Great Britain were sufficient encouragement afforded, experiment has shown the fallacy of the assertion that wheat cannot reach England from hence in good condition. It is true we have a great enemy to our wheats in the weevil (calandra granaria), but this insect is only found in granaries, when the grain is in store, and where, under the present Mahajannee system of purchase, it remains for two or three years before it is presented to the market. These golas, or store-houses, it may be observed, are seldom cleaned after the abstraction of the old stock, and the new stock is frequently stored without a previous exposure of the grain, whereby the wheat is not sufficiently hardened to resist even the ordinary attacks of the insect. We have, however, proof that wheat, properly cured, has lasted, under much exposure, for upwards of 18 months; that it has been sent to England and returned to this country in good condition, and has obtained a remunerative price, and borne a fair comparison with British and other European produce. With this evidence before us, we cannot but express a decided opinion, that whenever the export has failed, the failure must have been either in the selection, in taking old and infected wheat, or in the curing, or in want of efficient care and attention in the storing. Hence, as is too often the case, the article has been blamed for the faults of those who speculate in it, without fully understanding the requisites for its export.

In conclusion, your committee, with some confidence, place this short report, and its accompanying statement in the hands of the Society. The result of your committee's investigation has been to satisfy them that this country is able to grow wheat that would find a ready sale in the home market, and that it can be produced and exported at such cost as would yield a very liberal return for the capital employed. They look upon the establishment of an export trade from India in corn as pregnant with advantages in this country, and therefore take the opportunity of reiterating the recommendation contained in their last report, viz., that the Society will be pleased to nominate a committee for the purpose of preparing petitions to the two Houses of Parliament, praying the admission into the ports of Great Britain of wheat from this country, on the same terms as have already been conceded to wheat from Canada, and that copies of the petition be forwarded to the Board of Control and the Court of Directors.

It was moved by Mr. Staunton, seconded by Mr. Byrne, and unanimously agreed to, that the report of the committee be received and adopted, with the alterations made in the last paragraph, with the signature of the chairman attached*; and that the committee which has prepared the report, with Mr. Thomas Holroyd added, be requested to draw up the petitions to Parliament.

TO the Right Honourable the Lords Spiritual and Temporal of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, in Parliament assembled.

The humble Petition of the Agricultural and Horticultural Society of India,

Respectfully sheweth,

That your petitioners are members of a society which has for upwards of 20 years past existed in Calcutta, under the name of "The Agricultural and Horticultural

---

* It originally stood, "for the purpose of preparing memorials to the Board of Control and Court of Directors, urging the admission," &c.

Horticultural Society of India;" having for its object the promotion and improvement of agriculture and horticulture:

That the attention of your petitioners has been lately directed to the cultivation of wheat in India: That with a view to obtain good practical information on the mode pursued in the culture of this article, on the rates of production, on the cost of producing and profit derivable, and on the practicability of exporting it in good condition, your petitioners addressed themselves, during the past year, to agriculturists and other residents in various districts of Bengal and the North-Western Provinces, as also to parties engaged in the trade in Calcutta: That the result of such inquiries has been to satisfy your petitioners that this country is able to grow and export wheat that would find a ready sale in the home market, at remunerating prices, were sufficient encouragement afforded.

Your petitioners conceive it unnecessary in this place to occupy the time of Your Right Honourable House with any lengthy remarks in regard to the culture, &c. of wheat in India; but they would respectfully beg reference, for such details, to the report of your petitioners' committee, which accompanies this petition, and whereon is based the opinion formed by your petitioners of the certain advantage the opening of such a trade would afford, not only to Indian commerce, but also to that of Great Britain, in the necessary return of her manufactures.

While, however, your petitioners are fully satisfied that the capabilities of India as a wheat-growing country are very great, and that any quantity of corn could be exported to meet the daily increasing demand of the mother country, they would respectfully beg to draw the attention of Your Right Honourable House to the serious drawback to such export which now exists in the duty levied on this necessary article of food.

Your petitioners are aware of the passing, during the last year, of the Canada Wheat and Flour Bill into a law, and the consequent advantages now possessed by that colony. Actuated, therefore, by a desire to further the objects of their Society, and to assist not only in ameliorating the condition of the agricultural, labouring, and all other classes of India, but in a no less degree that of the mother country, your petitioners respectfully pray that Your Right Honourable House will be pleased to take into its earliest consideration the justice and expediency of allowing the admission into the ports of Great Britain of wheat from this country, on the same terms as have already been conceded to wheat from Canada.

And your petitioners, &c.

No. 1.
Governor Sir George Gipps to Lord Stanley.
27 August 1843.

Government House,
Sydney, 27 August 1843.

My Lord,

I HAVE the honour herewith to forward to your Lordship a copy of an address which I received on the 26th instant from the Legislative Council of this colony. It is signed by the Speaker, and was voted by the Council on the 24th instant. The address was, I believe, adopted in consequence of the proposal having been of late much agitated in the colony of putting such a duty on the importation of foreign corn as may act as a protection to the producer of corn in the colony; but I beg to explain, that the proposal for such a tax did not originate with me.

Address. (not dated.)

The present duty on corn is five per cent. ad valorem, with the exception of corn grown in Van Diemen's Land, which is imported duty free.

The quantity of corn imported into the colony in the three years 1840, 1841, and 1842, is as follows:—

	Qrs.
Van Diemen's Land - - -	25,218
Valparaiso - - - - -	37,815
Calcutta - - - - -	8,189
	71,222
Average per Annum - - -	23,740

It may be proper for me to explain, that when the subject of a tax on corn was incidentally mentioned in the old Council, I stated that I should not object to the conversion of the present ad valorem duty into an equivalent fixed duty, though I doubted whether the local legislature had power to make the conversion; their power being, by the 3 Geo. 4, c. 96, s. 2, and the 9 Geo. 4, c. 83, s. 26 and 27, limited to the imposition of ad valorem duties not exceeding 15 per cent.

The highest fixed duty which I could, under existing circumstances, advise, would be from 2*s*. to 4*s*. per quarter of eight bushels.

I should not, perhaps, conclude without stating, that the present moderate tax of five per cent. ad valorem, has been suspended three times during the last eight years, the following Acts of Council having been passed for the purpose of allowing all kinds of grain to be imported free of duty, in times of scarcity:—

COPY of a DESPATCH from Governor Sir George Gipps to Lord Stanley.

My Lord, Government House, Sydney, 5 October 1844.

I HAVE the honour herewith to inclose a petition to Her most Gracious Majesty from the Legislative Council of this colony, praying that wheat, maize, flour, and maize meal, the produce of the Australian colonies, may be introduced into the United Kingdom on payment only of nominal duties.

The petition is signed by the Speaker on behalf of the Council.

I have, &c.

(signed) Geo. Gipps.

Enclosure in No. 2.

To The QUEEN'S Most Excellent Majesty.

The Petition of the Legislative Council of the Colony of New South Wales, in Council assembled,

Humbly showeth,

Encl. in No. 2. THAT your petitioners have learnt that Your Majesty has granted to the provinces of Canada, the privilege of importing wheat and flour into the United Kingdom, at a nominal duty; a concession which emboldens your petitioners to hope that the same privilege will not be withheld from the colonists of Australia.

That your petitioners cannot believe that it is the intention of Your Majesty to act otherwise than with perfect equality and fairness towards every dependency of the British Crown; and feel therefore the fullest confidence that Your Majesty will remove the appearance, which now exists, of an intention to favour one colony above the rest.

That your petitioners have been taught to believe that it is the policy of Your Majesty to treat the colonies as integral parts of the empire in matters of trade; and that this policy can never be carried out, so long as commercial restrictions are allowed between one part of the empire and another.

That the Governor of this colony is prohibited, by a despatch from the Right honourable Lord Stanley, from giving his consent to any Bill imposing differential duties upon any goods or merchandize imported into this colony. And that it appears to your petitioners, that a rule which prevents them from distinguishing, in the amount of duty, between the produce produce of a British colony and a foreign State, would still more strongly negative the showing any preference to the produce of one colony over that of another.

That the colony of New South Wales has hitherto imported corn for its own consumption, not from any obstacle to agriculture presented by its soil and climate, but, with other causes, from the very limited market in which its produce could be disposed of. The farmer, whose calculation is based on the return of ordinary years, and who is naturally more anxious to avoid over-stocking his market than to provide against a scarcity, being seldom in a condition to provide the consumer with grain, in case of failure of crops.

That principally from this cause, viz. the smallness of the market for its produce, the colony has frequently been in danger of famine, while possessing millions of acres of fertile land; and that it has thus been driven into a one-sided commerce with South America.

That the territory of New South Wales differs very much in soil, climate, and elevation, and that it is reasonable therefore to suppose that a failure of crops would not be universal, but that the deficiency of one part would be compensated by the abundance of another, if adequate inducement were given to general cultivation; and that the same remark applies, with still more force, to the neighbouring colonies.

That the territory of New South Wales already supplies Great Britain with one-third of the wool imported for manufacturing purposes; and that the encouragement of agriculture, so far from proving injurious to the flockmasters, would tend to their advantage, by making food abundant and steady in price, and by raising up a prosperous interest, which would bear, jointly with them, the burthen of taxation.

That it is of the greatest importance to determine the minimum price of all colonial produce. This has recently been done, as to stock, by a calculation of what the hide, horns, wool, tallow, and gelatine (which the animal yields) are worth; but that no such calculation can be arrived at with regard to corn, except by opening to the farmer a large and steady market, like that of Great Britain.

That the distance which separates Australia from Great Britain, and the high rate at which labour must always be paid for in a colony, constitute more than an adequate protection to the British agriculturist against the competition of Australia, and that those doctrines of protection which spring from national and commercial rivalry are inapplicable to parts of the same empire.

That if the quantity of corn to be exported from the Australian colonies be insignificant when compared with the annual consumption of Great Britain, it is not, therefore, insignificant to them; and that if the importation of corn be small, it will be less likely to derange existing interests, and will find a market for itself, as it increases, by the simultaneous increase of the population of the United Kingdom.

That Your petitioners have been informed, that it is the intention of Your Majesty to withdraw the protection of one penny per pound, hitherto enjoyed by Australian wool; and that the same principle of free trade by which this withdrawal is sanctioned would equally require the placing the Australian, so far as his remote position and dear labour permit, on a level with the British agriculturist.

That the climate of Australia is peculiarly favourable to the growth of maize; a grain which, without coming into direct competition with the products of the British Isles, would yet afford a cheap and wholesome diet.

Your petitioners therefore humbly pray that Your Majesty will take the premises into your favourable consideration, and cause an Act to be passed to authorize the admission of wheat, maize, maize-meal, and flour, the produce of the Australian colonies, into the United Kingdom, subject as the same duties respectively, as wheat and flour the produce of Canada.

VAN DIEMEN'S LAND.

— No. 1. —

(No. 108.)

Copy of a DESPATCH from Lieutenant-Governor Sir E. Eardley Wilmot, Bart. to Lord Stanley.

Van Diemen's Land, Government House,
20 May 1844.

My Lord,

No. 1.
Lieut.-Governor Sir E. Eardley Wilmot to Lord Stanley, 20 May 1844.

One of the causes of the depression and pecuniary distress in this colony is the ruinous low price of the produce of the soil. Cattle imported from Port Phillip, and other parts of New South Wales, displace colonial cattle, and render native cattle of little value; sheep also, for food, are of little value, and we are supplied from New South Wales in abundance. It is only the wool of the flock which is of any value, and for which large flocks are kept by the settlers.

Wheat has the same disadvantage in the markets. In consequence of Valparaiso wheat now supplying Sydney and its dependencies, and a duty imposed at Sydney on Van Diemen's Land wheat, the cultivation of wheat will not pay its expenses; and thus the occupiers of the soil, with their heavy mortgages, are all but insolvent.

Many persons, as a last effort, are shipping large cargoes of wheat to England; but the voyage is so long, and the insurance so high and difficult to effect, that this is a hazardous speculation.

If your Lordship wishes to confer a boon upon this colony, which would tend greatly, if not entirely, to remedy the evils under which this colony is suffering, and which would indirectly invigorate and tell through all the arteries and veins of this country, you could not fix upon a gift more beneficial and just than the permitting the wheat of this country, not only to have the same favour shown to it as is shown to the wheat of Canada, but to allow it to be imported into England duty free. The voyage from Canada, as compared with that from Van Diemen's Land, is short; and great frauds, by the introduction of American wheat under the pretence of its being Canadian, are unavoidable. From Van Diemen's Land the voyage is four months or longer, the insurance high, and no other wheat can be introduced into England as Van Diemen's Land wheat, but it must be bonâ fide the produce of this island.

I most respectfully ask your Lordship to grant this boon to this colony. It will be highly appreciated by all the settlers here, will be no loss of any consideration to the revenue of England, and will give such an impetus to this colony, that the most beneficial effects in every department will be felt throughout the territory.

I have, &c.

EXTRACT of a DESPATCH from Lieutenant-Governor Sir E. Eardley Wilmot, Bart. to Lord Stanley, dated Government House, Van Diemen's Land, 14 July 1844.

No. 2.
Lieut.-Governor Sir E. Eardley Wilmot to Lord Stanley.
14 July 1844.

"THE two great staple productions of this island are wool and wheat.

"Flocks to any extent may be depastured in the boundless forests of this country, whose carcases are of little moment, but whose fleeces constitute the sole wealth of their owners. The wool trade never has been depressed below a remunerating price, because the food with which the flocks are supplied costs little or nothing, being the wild herbage of uncultivated wastes, and because the number of labourers employed in tending them are comparatively trifling. Wool, however, now fetches a full price in the market, and the late accounts from England of the rise in its value has inspired a spirit and confidence in the settlers of a most beneficial character.

"Wheat, however, of which this great country could grow an endless quantity, and that too of the first quality and description, is a low and losing adventure; the price (3*s.* 6*d.* per bushel) will not pay the costs of production, consequently the farmers will not grow it, will not employ labourers, either free or bond, and a general stagnation and depression has been and still continues to depress the colony. Thus it happens that no pass-holders are engaged; no activity nor industry are encouraged; and land of the first quality and in good condition, and with sufficient buildings upon it, sells for a less sum per acre than the minimum government price for which uncleared lands are offered for sale, nor can tenants be found but at a ruinous and nominal rent.

"The keystone of the remedy for this is a market. Let there be but a sale for the produce of these lands at a price, if not enriching, at least remunerating, and then the net lands of this island would immediately be restored to the cultivation of wheat; labourers would be sought after and engaged, and such an impetus would be given to the true mine of a nation's wealth, its agriculture, that I do not say the artificial prosperity of former years will be restored (for it would be injurious if it were so), but such a steady progressive restoration to a healthy state

state would gradually disclose itself, that I am confident this colony would not only defray its own expenses, but assist materially the expenditure of British funds.

" The quantity of wheat grown and exported to a foreign market (I mean a market out of the colony) need not be under any restraint and limit; and thus the growth of it by the convict stations for their own support, and for exportation by sale here through contractors, would not interfere by competition with the interests of the colonists; and thus the very means which improve and prosper the one will have the double advantage of benefiting both.

" The question then is, where can this market be found? Not in New South Wales, for it now gets a cheaper article from Valparaiso, &c., and has also placed a duty on the wheat of this colony. Nor can this market be found in any adjacent or neighbouring countries, where wheat is grown sufficient for their consumption.

" The only place is England; England, which already appreciates the value and quality of Van Diemen's Land wheat, which is heavier per measure than any other grown elsewhere, and which has the peculiar quality of keeping well, and not being attacked by the weavil. England already has given 9*s.* per bushel for this wheat, and it is bought up rapidly for seed, being of superior quality.

" I do most respectfully and most earnestly entreat your Lordship to consider favourably the appeal which I made to your Lordship in my despatch, No. 108, 20th May last, on this important subject. Allow Van Diemen's Land wheat to be imported duty free, and you will break at once the bonds which chain the enterprize and industry of this country; which weigh down to insolvency nineteen-twentieths of the landed proprietors of this territory; which affect indirectly every tradesman and artificer in this island, and which totally prevents the employment of those pass-holders, which are a dead weight upon British funds for want of employment, and who, unless means are devised to encourage 'the agricultural interests of the colony,' will render the population of this country a pauper population, instead of one able and willing to support itself."

" IN a new country like this, where there are no large towns, and where everybody is either a stockholder or an agriculturist, great distress is experienced from the want of a regular market. The pressure from this cause, upon the farmers and landed proprietors, induced them, during the last session, to present a petition to the Legislative Council, praying for the imposition of a duty on all foreign grain. This was, however, very properly rejected. It is difficult to conceive any more impolitic measure than to attempt to restrain a young colony, which, like a young child, requires to be bountifully fed, from procuring the largest and cheapest supply of food in its power."

SOUTH AUSTRALIA.

— No. 1. —

(No. 19.)

COPY of a DESPATCH from Governor G. Grey to Lord Stanley.

No. 1.
Governor G. Grey to Lord Stanley.
6 February 1844.

My Lord, Government House, Adelaide, 6 Feb. 1844.

SOME of the principal merchants and inhabitants of this province have recently requested me to bring under your Lordship's notice the advantages which would result to South Australia if corn, the produce of this colony, was admitted into Great Great Britain upon the same terms as corn grown in the Canadian provinces is now allowed to be imported into England.

I entirely concur in the opinion entertained by these gentlemen of the benefit which would be conferred by such a measure, not only upon South Australia, but upon the Australian colonies generally. I am, however, aware that this is a measure of general policy which may possibly involve considerations with which I am unacquainted, or regarding which I am only imperfectly informed; and I therefore propose merely to state to your Lordship the capabilities of this country for producing wheat and other grain, and the degree to which it would at once be able to avail itself of the privilege to which I am now alluding, should Her Majesty's Government see fit to confer such a boon upon this colony.

In the first place, the capabilities of this country for producing wheat are so great, that at the present moment the best samples of wheat are disposed of at something less than 3*s.* per bushel, and the average market price of wheat in the town of Adelaide may be stated to be 2*s.* 6*d.* per bushel. I am also of opinion, that in future years from 2*s.* 6*d.* to 2*s.* 9*d.* per bushel would be a fair remunerating price for the farmer.

Secondly, with regard to the quantity of wheat which this colony could at once export for the British market.

I have no means of estimating with any degree of accuracy the surplus quantity of wheat from the harvest of 1842 which still remains in the colony, the settlers having been unable to find a market for it; but I am aware, that in addition to this surplus from the year 1842, which is considerable, there will be a surplus from the harvest of 1843 of at least 25,000 quarters of wheat, the whole of which could be at once exported; and I have no doubt that if South Australian wheat was admitted into England on the same terms as Canadian wheat, that we should soon be able to export 100,000 quarters annually for the British market.

I am concerned to be obliged to state to your Lordship that hitherto the settlers have had great difficulty in finding a market for their surplus produce; and although vessels are at the present moment loading with wheat for Sydney, New Zealand, Western Australia, and the Mauritius, and another vessel is about to be laid on for Hong Kong for the purpose of trying the China market, I am still apprehensive that a great deal of our surplus wheat will remain undisposed of.

Under these circumstances, therefore, it is evident that Her Majesty's Government would be conferring a great boon on this country by placing it on the same footing as Canada with regard to the importation of corn into Great Britain; and the increased market afforded to South Australian produce would enable the settlers here to consume British manufactured goods (our chief article of import) to a much greater extent than they do at present.

COPY of a DESPATCH from Governor G. Grey to Lord Stanley.

My Lord, Government House, Adelaide, 3 June 1844.

THE accompanying petition, which is very numerously and respectably signed, was this day presented to me, for the purpose of transmission to your Lordship.

Enclosure.

The object of the petitioners is to solicit your Lordship to recommend to Her Majesty's Government the enactment of a law for the admission into Great Britain of corn, the produce of South Australia, on the same terms as Canadian corn.

Upon the 6th of February last, in my despatch No. 19, I brought this subject under your Lordship's notice, and I beg again to solicit your Lordship's attention to that despatch, as affording any information which may be required on the subject of the enclosed petition.

I have, &c.

(signed) G. Grey.

Enclosure in No. 2.

To the Right Honourable Lord Stanley, Her Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for the Colonies.

The humble Memorial of Her Majesty's loyal Subjects, the undersigned Colonists of the Province of South Australia,

Showeth,

THAT your memorialists by dint of great labour and perseverance, accompanied by a considerable amount of suffering, have succeeded in the short space of seven years from the first occupation of a country never before trodden by a civilised man, in raising most of the necessaries and many of the luxuries of life, not only in sufficient quantities for their own consumption, but already affording them a considerable amount for export. Encl. in No. 2.

That, as far as wheat is concerned, the production is already beyond their wants, to the extent of about 200,000 bushels; and they are, in default of markets, suffering under a most serious depression of its price.

Under these circumstances, it has been most gratifying to them to see manifested in your Lordship's recent measure for the admission of Canadian wheat at a nominal duty, a kindly feeling towards the colonies, which your memorialists believe is as consistent with sound policy as it is just, and which, if applicable to Canada, is far more so, as your memorialists believe, to South Australia, inasmuch as its colonists are subject to far heavier charges for its transport to the shores of Great Britain.

Your memorialists are unwilling to draw invidious distinctions between themselves and other colonists, but they cannot help observing that the inhabitants of this colony are essentially British in all their feelings, and, though so far distant, not less loyal subjects of the Crown than those of the British Isles.

They will forbear to trouble your Lordship with a long address; but, impressed with your sense of justice, and of your knowledge of the soundness of the policy which seeks to make every colony of Great Britain in all respects an integral part of the British empire, (especially called for at a moment in which a restrictive and anti-commercial policy seems to pervade the legislature of foreign nations toward our country,) earnestly implore your Lordship to pass a law through Parliament for the admission of corn, the produce of South Australia, on the same terms as Canadian corn.

And your memorialists will ever pray, &c.
